Many customers said they decided to shop in town rather than join the huge crowds expected at larger malls, a situation that delighted local store owners and managers.

FBI questions Democrat whip on $4,000 gift

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Democratic whip John J. McFall said Friday he has been questioned by the Federal Bureau of investigation about $4,000 in cash contributions from Tongsun Park. Park is a South Korean businessman whose gifts to congressmen are under investigation by the Justice Dept.

McFall, who said he was questioned last week, told reporters there was no indication he was a target of the investigation during the meeting with two FBI agents in the Washington office of a lawyer friend, J. D. Williams.

The California Democrat talked with reporters after filing a detailed accounting of how the $4,000 received from Tongsun Park in 1972 and 1974 was spent as part of a special office fund maintained to meet expenses not provided for otherwise.

ASKED WHETHER he thought Park was trying to bribe him, McFall said: "No, I don't. I think the man was offering me a campaign contribution. I would have accepted it as a campaign contribution if I had thought it was legal."

At the time, McFall said, he knew Park "only as a businessman promoting sale and export of California rice, a large portion of which was then shipped through the port of Stockton in my district."

McFall acknowledged earlier this month that he received $3,000 from Park in October, 1974, and put it into the office account because he was under the impression, incorrect at the time, that contributions from foreign nationals were illegal.

Such contributions did not become legal until Jan. 1, 1975, but McFall said acceptance of funds for the office account were then and still are legal.

In explaining how Park's contributions rose to $4,000, McFall said that in drawing up the detailed accounting "lo and behold, we found another $1,000" contributed by Park in 1972.

Dec. 3 deadline for financial aid rushes suburbs

by BILL HILL

A Dec. 3 application deadline for the federal government's public works employment act has put the squeeze on several Northwest suburbs.

Officials of Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove expressed surprise at the Friday deadline, which reportedly was announced in the Federal Register Nov. 19 but went unnoticed.

James Holzwart, administrative assistant for the Village of Arlington Heights, said he expected the deadline for filing applications for the government's $3 billion program to be in the last week of December. Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said he thought the cut-off date was to be Jan. 15.

BOTH MEN, however, said applications would be filed in time.

The Dec. 3 deadline has caused particular problems for Arlington Heights because the police-fire headquarters it will request financing for is just being designed by architects. The federal program requires that projects be ready for construction within 90 days after approval, which means the village has a maximum of five months to prepare plans and hire a contractor for the project.

L.A. Hanson, Arlington Heights village manager, said he has decided to file two applications "to be safe."

The other application will ask for nearly $5 million for a second flood control basin at Wilke and Kirchoff roads.

"WE'LL SUBMIT that as our ace-in-the-hole because engineering plans are done and we're all ready to go with that," Hanson said.

Buffalo Grove has applied for two projects, but Larson plans to submit three more applications by Friday. The two requests filed with the Economic Development Administration, U.S. Dept. of Commerce, ask for

Passenger saves bus after stricken driver dies

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Wallace Laube of Orlando was stretched out in the front seat of a bus traveling near Nashville, Tenn., when he saw the driver slump over the wheel.

"The left front wheel of the bus had already left the road and was on the grassy median strip," said Laube, who jumped into action.

"I got hold of the wheel. I pulled his arms off the wheel and pushed his foot off the gas pedal with my foot."

LAUBE SAID he had been dozing early Wednesday, when he saw the driver, Charles O. Grimes, slump over the wheel while the Greyhound bus was traveling south on Interstate 65, 10 miles northeast of Nashville about 3:30 a.m. Grimes died of a heart attack.

Laube, a bricklayer, was coming home from a job in Waterloo, Iowa. He said it took him several minutes to bring the bus from 55 mph to a stop because he was driving while standing. He and the other 41 passengers were unharmed.

He said most of the passengers, who were awakened from naps, remained calm, especially after he spoke into the bus microphone.

After stopping the bus, Laube said he pulled the driver from the seat. Another passenger tried to revive Grimes while Laube drove the bus completely off the road.

"A lady flagged down a northbound Greyhound bus," Laube said. "I flagged down a car with a CB radio in it and they radioed for help." Greyhound employes drove the bus to Nashville.

It's Howdy Doody time

Young and old greet Buffalo Bob

by DIANE MERMIGAS

For a brief moment Friday morning, the world was as innocent as a child's dream of Christmas and as carefree as a visit to Howdy Doody's Peanut Gallery.

About 500 of suburbia's young and young-at-heart gathered in the Randhurst Shopping Center mall, Mount Prospect, for a special appearance by Buffalo Bob Smith and Clarabell the Clown, stars of the original and recently revived Howdy Doody Show.

But, Howdy Doody, the All-American boy puppet which Smith created and gave voice to nearly 30 years ago, was missing from the scene.

"He gets air sick," quipped Smith. "Besides, it's too difficult to set up a puppet stage and work the strings for just one, short show."

SOMEHOW, IT didn't make much difference.

The duo's 20-minute show of songs and slapstick comedy, which began promptly at 9 a.m., preceeded the traditional day-after-Thanksgiving arrival of Santa Claus and the grand opening of Santaland at the indoor mall.

Crowds that began huddling around a makeshift stage and lining up stairways as early as 7:30 a.m. became ecstatic when the 58-year-old Buffalo Bob shouted, "Hey, kids — what time is it?"

"It's Howdy Doody time," the peanut gallery responded and then broke into a roaring rendition of the show's theme song.

It was difficult to tell who was more excited — the pig-tailed, freckle-faced youngsters propped atop their dad's shoulders or the parents who were alumni of Doodyville, which epitomized the wholesome approach to children's programming that television took some 25 years ago.

IT SEEMED as though the time encompassing two generations stood still.

Buffalo Bob in a fringed buckskin jacket and the mute Clarabell, who communicates by honking bicycle horns, were still singing tunes like the "Cheer-up Song."

The characters were unchanged and even the audience response was the same.

"I think kids are kids are kids as evidenced by the fact that they scream and carry on now the same way they did back then, back in the old days of Howdy Doody," said Buffalo Bob, minutes before the show began.

"THESE KIDS are no different than their parents were when they were at that age, and Howdy Doody hasn't changed either. It is a show designed to give kids some good, clean entertainment. We give them songs and great stories. But, mostly, Howdy Doody is fantasy," he said of the newly syndicated Howdy Doody series that is televised weekdays at 8:30 a.m. on WGN, channel 9 in Chicago.

Smith and his sidekick Lew Anderson, who portrays Clarabell Hornblow, say they are happy and grateful to be back in the business of bringing laughter and a bit of make believe to children.

It is an experience Smith has deeply missed the past 16 years while operating several radio stations and a liquor store in New York, and living in semiretirement off of $1 million he received in 1951 after selling NBC the rights to the Howdy Doody Show.

But, a telephone call from officials at the University of Pennsylvania in 1970 changed all that. Buffalo Bob, Howdy Doody and Clarabell had been asked to recapture the good old days for a live crowd of nostalgia-hungry students.

THE SHOW went on, more than 2,000 students went crazy clapping and singing the "Tootsie Roll Song," and the event set off an endless string of performances the trio has made on college campuses and in shopping centers across the country since then.

A rekindled interest in the puppet and his friends naturally led to a new version of the old show, Smith said.

"The technical advances since our show went off the air are marvelous. We used to tape before a live audience. We were limited to three sets and a peanut gallery of about 40," says Smith who resides in Pompano Beach, Fla., just a half-hour's drive from the north Miami studio where the new show is taped.

"NOW WE TAPE portions of the show before a live peanut gallery of about 400 people on the weekends, and during the rest of the week we tape other parts of the show on location or elsewhere in the studio," he said. "We

Suspect arrested for murder try

An argument outside a Palatine Township tavern early Friday morning ended in the shooting of two persons and the arrest of a third for attempted murder, police reported. Cook County Sheriff's police said they arrested Jesusa Patton, 27, of Adrian, Mich., and charged her with two counts each of attempted murder and aggravated battery after she allegedly shot Antonio Vasquez, 22, of Wood Dale and his sister, Stella, 18, also of Adrian, Mich. The brother and sister were taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, where they were listed Friday afternoon in serious but improved condition in the hospital's intensive care unit. Ms. Patton allegedly used a .22 caliber revolver to shoot Antonio Vasquez in the arm and back and Stella Vasquez in the face and back. The shooting occurred in the parking lot outside the Stonehenge Pub, 201 W. Dundee Rd.

Police led on wild deer chase

A deer buck led seven Mount Prospect policemen on a chase through rush-hour traffic in the village Friday morning, but the romp ended tragically when the buck stumbled, fell and injured itself in a creekbed and had to be destroyed. Police said the buck first was reported at 6:35 a.m. near Lancaster Street and Central Road in the village, and led two sergeants and five patrolmen on a 30-minute chase through central Mount Prospect, stopping rush-hour traffic as it tore across yards and ran down Main Street and Central Road. The deer crossed Northwest Highway and the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks and fled south toward Wellers Creek, where it stumbled and crippled itself, police said. Police caught up with the injured animal, and destroyed it at 7:10 p.m.

Officials cancel special tax levy

Schaumburg Township officials Friday said they expect to be able to finance construction of a mental health center though they cancelled a special tax levy that would have raised $100,000 for it. Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships plan to build a $660,000 mental health center at Nerge and Rohlwing roads and expect to use $100,000 for each township plus $460,000 in federal grants. Schaumburg Township had planned to raise its share of the money next year through a special property tax levy of 19 cents per $1,000 assessed valuation, but canceled the tax because there is no assurance that the federal grants will be approved, township officials said.

2 plead innocent to rock-toss death

Two more young men charged with participating in the rock-throwing death of a milk truck driver near Woodstock pleaded innocent Friday. Daniel E. Craig, 20, and James E. Glasdtr, 19, both of Cary, entered innocent pleas before McHenry County Circuit Court Judge James Cooney. In all, five youths are accused of tossing a boulder in the path of a tanker driven by David L. Klawes, 26, of Lawrence, on the night of Oct. 19. The big rock decapitated Klawes.

Children helping 13-year-old girl cope with anemia

by JOHN N. FRANK

Children in Rolling Meadows and Palatine will start selling candy door-to-door this week to help a young friend who has won a three-month battle for survival.

Although 13-year-old Connie Schorsch has recovered from a rare form of anemia which struck her in August, still ahead are nine months of restricted activity and uncounted bills for her mother and stepfather to pay.

"It all happened so fast. She wasn't sick, she hadn't been sick," her mother, Dorothy Rosen, said.

CONNIE PASSED out Aug. 22 and was taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. Officials at the hospital recommended transferring her to Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago to discover the problem.

Doctors at Children's Memorial determined that Connie had A-plastic anemia, a rare form of anemia that causes bone marrow to cease producing vitally needed white blood cells, thus causing weakness and high susceptibility to infections.

What causes it "is a mystery to medicine. It's something that you're born with in your system and something activates it," Mrs. Rosen said. "We were extremely lucky it was detected as soon as it was."

Doctors in Chicago recommended sending Connie to a clinic in Seattle where a bone marrow transplant — the only treatment for the disease — could be performed.

THE TRANSPLANT was Sept. 15 with Connie's older brother Brian, 15, acting as donor. The marrow was extracted from him with needles and given to Connie just as a blood transfusion would be, Mrs. Rosen said.

A Buffalo Grove boy, Bobby Libit, then 7, underwent a similar treatment in 1975 when he too was stricken with A-plastic anemia. Bobby has since completely recovered.

Connie spent the 50 days following the transplant in a sterile room to avoid infection. Her mother flew home to return to her job at Western Electric, where her husband also works, for three and a half weeks while Connie recuperated.

Physical therapy began in October to tone up her muscles, which had been unused since she entered Northwest Community.

"NOW SHE CAN get around as good as I can," Mrs. Rosen said. "Her case is an extremely good case. She's been a very fortunate child."

Her long ordeal wasn't without moments of intense pain, however. When she left Chicago, her joints ached and her hair fell out as a side effect of the drugs she took for treatment.

But despite the pain, "She's been in pretty good spirits though the whole thing. She understands what's happened, she feels that she went through a lot but she didn't have to experience a lot of things other patients have gone through," Mrs. Rosen said.

Mrs. Rosen rented an apartment in Seattle to be close to her daughter and has stayed there since September, except for the three and a half week period when she reteurned to work.

ALTHOUGH SHE should be home for Christmas, it will be some time before Connie can do all the things most 13-year-olds do.

Connie will have to avoid crowds until next September in order to minimize the risk of infection, and that means she cannot return to Sandburg Junior High School in Rolling Meadows this winter, Mrs. Rosen said.

There also is a possibility that Connie's system will reject the marrow transplant, but Mrs. Rosen said the survival rate for transplant patients is about 60 to 70 per cent, which is considered good.

"It's up to how the system and the blood is going to react to the graft," she said.

Despite the problems ahead, "she's looking forward to coming home and seeing people and her friends," Mrs. Rosen said.

CONNIE'S FRIENDS will be selling candy Friday through Dec. 17, hoping to raise $4,000 for the Rosens, Doris Graham, president of the Sandburg parents association, said.

Although the Rosens have medical insurance, "there's still the ambulance bills and some things no insurance covers," such as more than $2,000 in flight expenses to Seattle plus rent for the apartment there and food bills, stepfather Ronald Rosen said. "It's been a tremendous financial strain."

But the months of pain and strain are drawing to a close, and the most important thing to the Rosen family is that Connie is cured — and she'll be home by Christmas.

The suit also said Domino was intoxicated one night and the band was in the same condition on another night. Domino's contract was for $17,000 for the 24 performances, the suit said.

• Actress Ellen Corby, 63, who plays Grandma on the television series "The Waltons," continues to improve slowly from a stroke she suffered Nov. 10.

• Singer Lotte Lenya, 78, visited the Library and Museum of the Performing Arts in New York during an exhibit honoring her partnership with composer Kurt Weill.

• Caroline Kennedy will celebrate her 19th birthday today. She accompanied her mother, Jacqueline Onassis on a Thanksgiving Day fox hunt in Bedminster, N.J.

Britain's Laborite government this week announced plans to give Scotland and Wales limited self-government through regional parliaments. Man survives his fall despite parachute failing MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — Neither fear nor panic gripped Robert Herd when he knew his parachute would not deploy properly.

"I just felt a strong need to get to work to get the reserve chute open," Herd said Friday from a hospital bed in Morgantown.

As he plummeted through 1,100 feet of darkness, the 47-year-old master sergeant popped open his reserve chute, held it out to inflate it and watched helplessly as it tangled with his primary chute.

He estimates he hit the ground traveling at about 80 miles per hour.

"I WASN'T SURE whether I had survived or not," said the Waynesburg, Pa., college professor and member of the 2nd Battalion 19th Special Forces, National Guard unit, which conducted maneuvers in Morgantown last weekend.

"I just laid there. The possibility ran through my mind that I might be dying right then. The minutes ran by and I didn't feel any loss of lucidness or that I was going into deep shock. I was surprised by how little emotion there was. But I have had a lot since."

Herd's outfit took off from Morgantown Airport at 10 p.m. on a night parachute exercise mission and jumped about an hour later. After he left the C-130 plane, Herd said he did not feel the customary jolt of the main parachute opening.

"I looked up and could see that the main parachute had been pulled out, but it hadn't deployed properly and opened into a nice canopy.

"SO I WENT for the reserve chute. I pulled the rip cord on it and took the folded canopy into both hands and threw it away from me — common procedure for opening an emergency chute.

"It just went right up past my nose and got tangled up in the useless parachute. I could see all my friends up there and they were getting farther away all the time. At the time of impact, I was still trying to untangle my reserve chute from the main.

"I landed on my feet, but my speed was so great I was immediately on my back. I was in very, very great shock, but I didn't lose consciousness. I moaned to see if I could. I never lost consciousness."

An emergency ambulance was waiting at the drop area as a standard precaution. It whisked him to West Virginia University Medical Center where he was X-rayed. He was found to have no internal organ damage, but did have a cracked vertebra.

Suspect arrested for murder try

An argument outside a Palatine Township tavern early Friday morning ended in the shooting of two persons and the arrest of a third for attempted murder, police reported. Cook County Sheriff's police said they arrested Jesusa Patton, 27, of Adrian, Mich., and charged her with two counts each of attempted murder and aggravated battery after she allegedly shot Antonio Vasquez, 22, of Wood Dale and his sister, Stella, 18, also of Adrian, Mich. The brother and sister were taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, where they were listed Friday afternoon in serious but improved condition in the hospital's intensive care unit. Ms. Patton allegedly used a .22 caliber revolver to shoot Antonio Vasquez in the arm and back and Stella Vasquez in the face and back. The shooting occurred in the parking lot outside the Stonehenge Pub, 201 W. Dundee Rd.

Police led on wild deer chase

A deer buck led seven Mount Prospect policemen on a chase through rush-hour traffic in the village Friday morning, but the romp ended tragically when the buck stumbled, fell and injured itself in a creekbed and had to be destroyed. Police said the buck first was reported at 6:35 a.m. near Lancaster Street and Central Road in the village, and led two sergeants and five patrolmen on a 30-minute chase through central Mount Prospect, stopping rush-hour traffic as it tore across yards and ran down Main Street and Central Road. The deer crossed Northwest Highway and the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks and fled south toward Wellers Creek, where it stumbled and crippled itself, police said. Police caught up with the injured animal, and destroyed it at 7:10 p.m.

Officials cancel special tax levy

Schaumburg Township officials Friday said they expect to be able to finance construction of a mental health center though they cancelled a special tax levy that would have raised $100,000 for it. Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships plan to build a $660,000 mental health center at Nerge and Rohlwing roads and expect to use $100,000 for each township plus $460,000 in federal grants. Schaumburg Township had planned to raise its share of the money next year through a special property tax levy of 19 cents per $1,000 assessed valuation, but canceled the tax because there is no assurance that the federal grants will be approved, township officials said.

2 plead innocent to rock-toss death

Two more young men charged with participating in the rock-throwing death of a milk truck driver near Woodstock pleaded innocent Friday. Daniel E. Craig, 20, and James E. Glasdtr, 19, both of Cary, entered innocent pleas before McHenry County Circuit Court Judge James Cooney. In all, five youths are accused of tossing a boulder in the path of a tanker driven by David L. Klawes, 26, of Lawrence, on the night of Oct. 19. The big rock decapitated Klawes.

Children helping 13-year-old girl cope with anemia

by JOHN N. FRANK

Children in Rolling Meadows and Palatine will start selling candy door-to-door this week to help a young friend who has won a three-month battle for survival.

Although 13-year-old Connie Schorsch has recovered from a rare form of anemia which struck her in August, still ahead are nine months of restricted activity and uncounted bills for her mother and stepfather to pay.

"It all happened so fast. She wasn't sick, she hadn't been sick," her mother, Dorothy Rosen, said.

CONNIE PASSED out Aug. 22 and was taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. Officials at the hospital recommended transferring her to Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago to discover the problem.

Doctors at Children's Memorial determined that Connie had A-plastic anemia, a rare form of anemia that causes bone marrow to cease producing vitally needed white blood cells, thus causing weakness and high susceptibility to infections.

What causes it "is a mystery to medicine. It's something that you're born with in your system and something activates it," Mrs. Rosen said. "We were extremely lucky it was detected as soon as it was."

Doctors in Chicago recommended sending Connie to a clinic in Seattle where a bone marrow transplant — the only treatment for the disease — could be performed.

THE TRANSPLANT was Sept. 15 with Connie's older brother Brian, 15, acting as donor. The marrow was extracted from him with needles and given to Connie just as a blood transfusion would be, Mrs. Rosen said.

A Buffalo Grove boy, Bobby Libit, then 7, underwent a similar treatment in 1975 when he too was stricken with A-plastic anemia. Bobby has since completely recovered.

Connie spent the 50 days following the transplant in a sterile room to avoid infection. Her mother flew home to return to her job at Western Electric, where her husband also works, for three and a half weeks while Connie recuperated.

Physical therapy began in October to tone up her muscles, which had been unused since she entered Northwest Community.

"NOW SHE CAN get around as good as I can," Mrs. Rosen said. "Her case is an extremely good case. She's been a very fortunate child."

Her long ordeal wasn't without moments of intense pain, however. When she left Chicago, her joints ached and her hair fell out as a side effect of the drugs she took for treatment.

But despite the pain, "She's been in pretty good spirits though the whole thing. She understands what's happened, she feels that she went through a lot but she didn't have to experience a lot of things other patients have gone through," Mrs. Rosen said.

Mrs. Rosen rented an apartment in Seattle to be close to her daughter and has stayed there since September, except for the three and a half week period when she reteurned to work.

ALTHOUGH SHE should be home for Christmas, it will be some time before Connie can do all the things most 13-year-olds do.

Connie will have to avoid crowds until next September in order to minimize the risk of infection, and that means she cannot return to Sandburg Junior High School in Rolling Meadows this winter, Mrs. Rosen said.

There also is a possibility that Connie's system will reject the marrow transplant, but Mrs. Rosen said the survival rate for transplant patients is about 60 to 70 per cent, which is considered good.

"It's up to how the system and the blood is going to react to the graft," she said.

Despite the problems ahead, "she's looking forward to coming home and seeing people and her friends," Mrs. Rosen said.

CONNIE'S FRIENDS will be selling candy Friday through Dec. 17, hoping to raise $4,000 for the Rosens, Doris Graham, president of the Sandburg parents association, said.

Although the Rosens have medical insurance, "there's still the ambulance bills and some things no insurance covers," such as more than $2,000 in flight expenses to Seattle plus rent for the apartment there and food bills, stepfather Ronald Rosen said. "It's been a tremendous financial strain."

But the months of pain and strain are drawing to a close, and the most important thing to the Rosen family is that Connie is cured — and she'll be home by Christmas.

Survey shows shoppers will spend more on gifts

by LEA TONKIN

'Tis the season to have tired feet, an aching back and unswerving determination to make the most of the holiday sales season.

And if the shoppers turn out as expected in local stores and shopping cnters, Santa will do well in the Northwest suburbs this year.

Many consumers in the Chicago area plan to spend more for holiday expenses than they did in 1975, a recent Continental Bank survey shows. Fifth-nine per cent of the 750 families surveyed by the banks said they plan to spend more than $200.

FOOD AND CANDY, toys, clothing, games, cosmetics, perfume and books appeared on one out of two gift lists in the bank survey. Forty per cent of those in older age groups planned to include money as Christmas gifts.

Wives will do most of the shopping at shopping centers and neighborhood stores, the survey indicated. Thirty-one per cent of the resondents said they plan to delay some holiday gift-buying beyond Dec. 25 to take advantage of after-Christmas sales.

More than a third of consumers in the Northwest and North suburbs surveyed by Continental Bank said they are financially better than in 1975. Forty-one per cent said their incomes increased, but a rising number of area consumers reported they are less confident about business conditions than they were three months earlier.

Although 36 per cent of all consumers surveyed by the banks said they use credit cards more frequently at Christmastime than the rest of the year, only 24 per cent use credit cards for the majority of their holiday purchases. Twenty-four per cent said they'll use credit cards for less than 10 per cent of their holiday purchases.

THE HIGHER postage rates this year did not significantly affect the families' plans for sending greeting cards. Fifty-four per cent said they'll send the same number of cards as they did in 1975 and 16 per cent of the respondents said they'll expand their mailing lists. Twenty-eight per cent of the families plan to send fewer cards this year than the 1975 holiday season.

Thanksgiving marks the start of serious holiday shopping, said Earl Johnson, executive manager of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce and President of the Northwest Assn. of Chambers of Commerce.

"From the optimism I've seen around town, merchants are looking for a good Christmas season," Johnson said. "Not only in the downtown stores but also in the shopping centers. When you talk to banks, there's more money available this year."

Many consumers this year are looking for higher priced gifts than they purchased last year, said Hugh Muncy of Des Plaines, an executive of the Illinois Retail Merchants Assn. Fine jewelry and fashion items are popular gifts, Muncy said. "We probably will see an increase of five to seven per cent in sales as compared to last year."

"Regional shopping centers should do well, and so should the well-stocked downtown stores and Chicago neighborhood stores," the retailing expert said. Muncy said an increasing number of shoppers look for holiday gifts at close-to-home stores, although they'll travel to seek out bargains.

Large holiday shopper crowds came to the Randhurst regional shopping center in Mount Prospect and the Woodfield center in Schaumburg Friday, indicating that many local customers are getting an early Christmas season start.

It's Howdy Doody time

can do a lot more with the show now."

Smith has repurchased the rights to the new show and created several new characters including "Outer Orbit 8," a space-age puppet and "Happy Harmony," a leggy brunette clad in hot pants who serves as a school teacher to Howdy Doody and his friends and takes part in the singing-dancing routines.

But, the old Doodyville gang is still around: Dilly Dally, Howdy's best friend; Phineas T. Bluster, the villainous mayor; Flub A Dub, a character that is eight animals in one and John J. FiDoozle, "America's number one private eye."

"I think it's wonderful. I'm the happiest guy in the world. It's a thrill to know that people want you back again after all this time," said Smith, who attentively checks the tuning of his organ and if the magic tricks are properly rigged before each show.

"THE NICE thing about it this time around is meeting the alumni. I used to write my songs for them and now I write them for their children. It's a gratifying business," said Smith, a grandfather of four who gave himself the name, Buffalo Bob, in honor of his hometown, Buffalo, New York.

"It's been good to be back at this," said Anderson, a father of three who has been playing Clarabell since 1954 when he replaced Bob Keeshan who has since become television's Captain Kangaroo.

Buffalo Bob serenades on a variety of instruments, hosts the show and takes all the punches.

The New Howdy Doody Show attracts at least the 15 million fans that were left teary-eyed in 1960 when the Doody gang left the air.

And, what's the future of Howdy Doody?

"Well, what's the future of Mickey Mouse or Peter Pan," Smith said. "Howdy Doody will go on forever. And I'll be there as long as the kids want me."

Buffalo Bob and Clarabell greet crowds at Randhurst.

Rhodesian nationalists accept independence date

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — The month-old deadlock in the Rhodesia peace conference over the date for majority independence was broken Friday.

Chairman Ivor Richard of Great Britain aid after a meeting with the two Nationalist "Patriotic Front" leaders that on Monday the conference will get down to ways of setting up a pre-independence interim government.

"Patriotic Front" leaders Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo accepted with two minor textual amendments to Britain's compromise proposal to set the independence deadline for March 1, 1978.

"I AM HAPPY to say that I will have a bilateral meeting with Mr. Mugabe and Mr. Nkomo on Monday to discuss the next stage of the conference," Richard said.

"The date issue will no longer hold up the work of the conference," Richard said.

Conference officials had said Richard would consider adjourning the talks if the nationalist leaders turned down Britain's latest bid. The two "Patriotic Front" leaders had stalemated the negotiations since they began Oct. 28 by demanding Dec. 1, 1977, as a binding independence date.

British spokesman David Brighty said the Monday meeting between Richard and the two nationalists will involve the structure of an interim government to run Rhodesia pending full majority rule independence.

RICHARD HAD preliminary discussions on the interim regime with the two other black leaders at Geneva, Bishop Abel Muzorewa and the Rev. Ndabandingi Sithole, as well as with the white minority government delegation led by Foreign Minister Pieter van der Byl.

Brighty said the two amendments demanded by the two 'Patriotic Front" leaders were "small textual changes."

One of them, he said, involved writing "the British government" instead of "they."

Mugabe and Nkomo said only that: "Britain accepted our amendments."

"There is movement," Nkomo said.

MUZOREWA, president of the African National Council and the man with the largest popular black support in Rhodesia, threatened to leave Geneva unless there was progress in the talks by next week.

"Already the granting of independence to Zimbabwe (Rhodesia) has been delayed by one month while some people are wining, dining, bickering and dithering in expensive, luxurious and posh hotels," Muzorewa said.

Muzorewa's aides said the black leader was referring to Mugabe and Nkomo, both of whom are staying in high-price hotels.

The conference is estimated to cost about $10,000 per day just for accommodation and transport for the six delegations.

Accidents heavy after first winter storm

by DAVE IBATA

Winter's first storm of the year clobbered the Northwest suburbs Friday night as rain turned to snow, causing more than 50 auto accidents on icy roads in area communities between 4 and 11 p.m.

The U.S. Weather Service Friday night forecasted between 1 and 3 inches of snow would accumulate in the Northwest suburbs by noon Saturday on the heels of a blizzard that swept out of the Rockies and slammed into the Midwest.

The storm, the worst of the season in the Western high country, dumped two feet of snow at Lead, S.D., and howled as a blizzard through Wyoming and Colorado.

CARRIED ALONG by a cold front, the storm crossed the Mississippi River by sunset Friday and slammed into Chicago by 9 p.m. Several hours of light rain preceded the storm, making roads slick.

Twelve car crashes were reported in Schaumburg alone. Mount Prospect police reported 11 accidents, three of them involving injuries.

Des Plaines and Arlington Heights both reported eight property damage auto accidents between 4 and 10 p.m. Friday.

The weather service issued a travelers' advisory for portions of the Midwest from Chicago northward in what it described as "a major winter storm."

The weather service warned that "strong and northerly winds blowing snow and very cold temperatures will make travel dangerous from the Rockies eastward across the Plains from Nebraska southward to Oklahoma and northern Texas."

THE ILLINOIS State Police reported trucks were sent out to salt roads west of Barrington Road at 10 p.m. Friday, amid reports of heavy snow accumulation in the far Northwestern suburbs.

State police at 10:30 p.m. said all other trucks were on standby, and would be dispatched to salt remaining roads in the Northwest suburbs by midnight.

In one of the more serious area auto accidents, a 16-year-old Mount Prospect youth, Kurt Aspen, suffered extensive internal injuries when a car he was driving collided with a car driven by another 16-year-old village youth at 7:37 p.m. at Central Road and Emerson Street.

Aspen, 311 S. Emerson St., was rushed to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, where he underwent surgery late Friday night.

FIVE OTHER persons suffered minor injuries when cars they were riding in in Mount Prospect Friday evening collided.

In a three-car collision at Busse Road and Willow Lane at 5:23 p.m. Friday, driver Joe Monaco, 59, and his wife Ida, 58, suffered injuries when their auto was struck from behind by a car driven by Esther Sanders, 53. All are from Mount Prospect.

The impact ruptured the gasoline tank of Monaco's auto, and fire broke out.

Firefighters extinguished the blaze and rushed the injured to Northwest Community Hospital, where Joe Monaco and Ms. Sanders were treated and released, and Mrs. Monaco was admitted for observation. She was reported in fair condition Friday night.

In a two-car crash at Algonquin Road and Dempster Street at 8:49 p.m. Friday in Mount Prospect, a car driven by Robert Alm, 30, of 2135 Tonne Rd., Arlington Heights, turned into the path of car driven by Donato Barrera, 24, of 1549 Ellinwood st., Des Plaines.

The two drivers suffered cuts and bruises, and were transported to Northwest Community for treatment.

Survey shows shoppers will spend more on gifts

by LEA TONKIN

'Tis the season to have tired feet, an aching back and unswerving determination to make the most of the holiday sales season.

And if the shoppers turn out as expected in local stores and shopping cnters, Santa will do well in the Northwest suburbs this year.

Many consumers in the Chicago area plan to spend more for holiday expenses than they did in 1975, a recent Continental Bank survey shows. Fifth-nine per cent of the 750 families surveyed by the banks said they plan to spend more than $200.

FOOD AND CANDY, toys, clothing, games, cosmetics, perfume and books appeared on one out of two gift lists in the bank survey. Forty per cent of those in older age groups planned to include money as Christmas gifts.

Wives will do most of the shopping at shopping centers and neighborhood stores, the survey indicated. Thirty-one per cent of the resondents said they plan to delay some holiday gift-buying beyond Dec. 25 to take advantage of after-Christmas sales.

More than a third of consumers in the Northwest and North suburbs surveyed by Continental Bank said they are financially better than in 1975. Forty-one per cent said their incomes increased, but a rising number of area consumers reported they are less confident about business conditions than they were three months earlier.

Although 36 per cent of all consumers surveyed by the banks said they use credit cards more frequently at Christmastime than the rest of the year, only 24 per cent use credit cards for the majority of their holiday purchases. Twenty-four per cent said they'll use credit cards for less than 10 per cent of their holiday purchases.

THE HIGHER postage rates this year did not significantly affect the families' plans for sending greeting cards. Fifty-four per cent said they'll send the same number of cards as they did in 1975 and 16 per cent of the respondents said they'll expand their mailing lists. Twenty-eight per cent of the families plan to send fewer cards this year than the 1975 holiday season.

Thanksgiving marks the start of serious holiday shopping, said Earl Johnson, executive manager of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce and President of the Northwest Assn. of Chambers of Commerce.

"From the optimism I've seen around town, merchants are looking for a good Christmas season," Johnson said. "Not only in the downtown stores but also in the shopping centers. When you talk to banks, there's more money available this year."

Many consumers this year are looking for higher priced gifts than they purchased last year, said Hugh Muncy of Des Plaines, an executive of the Illinois Retail Merchants Assn. Fine jewelry and fashion items are popular gifts, Muncy said. "We probably will see an increase of five to seven per cent in sales as compared to last year."

"Regional shopping centers should do well, and so should the well-stocked downtown stores and Chicago neighborhood stores," the retailing expert said. Muncy said an increasing number of shoppers look for holiday gifts at close-to-home stores, although they'll travel to seek out bargains.

Large holiday shopper crowds came to the Randhurst regional shopping center in Mount Prospect and the Woodfield center in Schaumburg Friday, indicating that many local customers are getting an early Christmas season start.

can do a lot more with the show now."

Smith has repurchased the rights to the new show and created several new characters including "Outer Orbit 8," a space-age puppet and "Happy Harmony," a leggy brunette clad in hot pants who serves as a school teacher to Howdy Doody and his friends and takes part in the singing-dancing routines.

But, the old Doodyville gang is still around: Dilly Dally, Howdy's best friend; Phineas T. Bluster, the villainous mayor; Flub A Dub, a character that is eight animals in one and John J. FiDoozle, "America's number one private eye."

"I think it's wonderful. I'm the happiest guy in the world. It's a thrill to know that people want you back again after all this time," said Smith, who attentively checks the tuning of his organ and if the magic tricks are properly rigged before each show.

"THE NICE thing about it this time around is meeting the alumni. I used to write my songs for them and now I write them for their children. It's a gratifying business," said Smith, a grandfather of four who gave himself the name, Buffalo Bob, in honor of his hometown, Buffalo, New York.

"It's been good to be back at this," said Anderson, a father of three who has been playing Clarabell since 1954 when he replaced Bob Keeshan who has since become television's Captain Kangaroo.

Smith and Anderson are close friends who work well together. Clarabell squirts seltzer water in Buffalo Bob's face and plays skilled clarinet accompaniment to the singalongs.

Buffalo Bob serenades on a variety of instruments, hosts the show and takes all the punches.

The New Howdy Doody Show attracts at least the 15 million fans that were left teary-eyed in 1960 when the Doody gang left the air.

And, what's the future of Howdy Doody?

"Well, what's the future of Mickey Mouse or Peter Pan," Smith said. "Howdy Doody will go on forever. And I'll be there as long as the kids want me."

Buffalo Bob and Clarabell greet crowds at Randhurst.

Rhodesian nationalists accept independence date

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — The month-old deadlock in the Rhodesia peace conference over the date for majority independence was broken Friday.

Chairman Ivor Richard of Great Britain aid after a meeting with the two Nationalist "Patriotic Front" leaders that on Monday the conference will get down to ways of setting up a pre-independence interim government.

"Patriotic Front" leaders Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo accepted with two minor textual amendments to Britain's compromise proposal to set the independence deadline for March 1, 1978.

"I AM HAPPY to say that I will have a bilateral meeting with Mr. Mugabe and Mr. Nkomo on Monday to discuss the next stage of the conference," Richard said.

"The date issue will no longer hold up the work of the conference," Richard said.

Conference officials had said Richard would consider adjourning the talks if the nationalist leaders turned down Britain's latest bid. The two "Patriotic Front" leaders had stalemated the negotiations since they began Oct. 28 by demanding Dec. 1, 1977, as a binding independence date.

British spokesman David Brighty said the Monday meeting between Richard and the two nationalists will involve the structure of an interim government to run Rhodesia pending full majority rule independence.

RICHARD HAD preliminary discussions on the interim regime with the two other black leaders at Geneva, Bishop Abel Muzorewa and the Rev. Ndabandingi Sithole, as well as with the white minority government delegation led by Foreign Minister Pieter van der Byl.

Brighty said the two amendments demanded by the two 'Patriotic Front" leaders were "small textual changes."

One of them, he said, involved writing "the British government" instead of "they."

Mugabe and Nkomo said only that: "Britain accepted our amendments."

"There is movement," Nkomo said.

MUZOREWA, president of the African National Council and the man with the largest popular black support in Rhodesia, threatened to leave Geneva unless there was progress in the talks by next week.

"Already the granting of independence to Zimbabwe (Rhodesia) has been delayed by one month while some people are wining, dining, bickering and dithering in expensive, luxurious and posh hotels," Muzorewa said.

Muzorewa's aides said the black leader was referring to Mugabe and Nkomo, both of whom are staying in high-price hotels.

The conference is estimated to cost about $10,000 per day just for accommodation and transport for the six delegations.

by DAVE IBATA

Winter's first storm of the year clobbered the Northwest suburbs Friday night as rain turned to snow, causing more than 50 auto accidents on icy roads in area communities between 4 and 11 p.m.

The U.S. Weather Service Friday night forecasted between 1 and 3 inches of snow would accumulate in the Northwest suburbs by noon Saturday on the heels of a blizzard that swept out of the Rockies and slammed into the Midwest.

The storm, the worst of the season in the Western high country, dumped two feet of snow at Lead, S.D., and howled as a blizzard through Wyoming and Colorado.

CARRIED ALONG by a cold front, the storm crossed the Mississippi River by sunset Friday and slammed into Chicago by 9 p.m. Several hours of light rain preceded the storm, making roads slick.

Twelve car crashes were reported in Schaumburg alone. Mount Prospect police reported 11 accidents, three of them involving injuries.

Des Plaines and Arlington Heights both reported eight property damage auto accidents between 4 and 10 p.m. Friday.

The weather service issued a travelers' advisory for portions of the Midwest from Chicago northward in what it described as "a major winter storm."

The weather service warned that "strong and northerly winds blowing snow and very cold temperatures will make travel dangerous from the Rockies eastward across the Plains from Nebraska southward to Oklahoma and northern Texas."

THE ILLINOIS State Police reported trucks were sent out to salt roads west of Barrington Road at 10 p.m. Friday, amid reports of heavy snow accumulation in the far Northwestern suburbs.

Kin held in killing of father, 2 boys

A Chicago elevator repairman was charged Friday with the Thanksgiving Day murder of his brother-in-law and two young relatives in what may have been an argument over a television set. William Bardlett, 24, was ordered held without bond in the shooting deaths of his brother-in-law, Cecil White, 31, White's son, Cecil Jr., 9, and his grandnephew, Dwayne Bardlett, 2. The murder weapon, a .22-caliber "Saturday night special," was found beneath the Bardlett boy's body in Bardlett's West Side Chicago apartment. Homicide Sgt. John Keane said the motive for the shooting may have stemmed from White's threat to remove a television set from Bardlett's apartment.

Pikarsky broke law: Rep. Skinner

Milton Pikarsky, Regional Transportation Authority Board chairman, violated state law by taking teaching fees from the University of Illinois this summer, state Rep. Cal Skinner Jr. said. Skinner, a Crystal Lake Republican, said Pikarsky should resign because "he's an illegal double-dipper." He said records in the comptroller's office show Pikarsky was paid a total of $2,000.01 by the U. of I. on April 12 and 27, May 26 and June 25. The RTA Act specifies the RTA chairman may not be an employe of any agency of state government. It also prohibits him from engaging in any other "business or employment" while he heads the authority. Neither Pikarsky nor the RTA's spokesman was available for comment or explanation.

Lawmaker linked to bet service

A state legislator said Friday he served temporarily as the registered agent of a racetrack betting messenger service accused of closing without paying bettors. But Rep. Leland Rayson, D-Tinley Park, said he no longer has any dealing with Win-Place-Show Express Inc. Rayson, who is an attorney, said he was the registered agent for Win-Place-Show "from sometime last August until early October" when he was repaced by Julius Ware, one of the owners. He said he had no owner interest in Win-Place-Show or in two other messenger services he had helped set up.

Sunday's fire costly: Edison

Commonwealth Edison estimated Friday it lost $8 to $10 million dollars in property damage in a spectacular Sunday night fire which took the life of a Chicago firefighter. Officials say damage at the utility's Fisk Generating Station was heaviest in the coal conveyor system. The collapse of part of that system caused fireman Walter Watroba, 41, to be trapped under debris for more than 7 hours Sunday night and Monday morning. He died less than an hour after being freed of the rubble. The conveyor system also was the scene of a small fire Friday, but no injuries were reported in the second blaze. Edison officials said they have no official explanation for the cause of the fire Sunday.

Windows on 100 cars broken

What does it cost to replace a car window? Chicago police say it will be $5,000 to $7,000 to repair the damage done by vandals who broke windows on 100 parked cars in the Northwest Side. Police said witnesses saw a youth lean out of a slow-moving car and hit the windows with a pipe. Other windows on the 17-block route of the vandals had small holes, probably caused by pellets from an air gun. In the same general area of the city, less than two weeks earlier, two youths were arrested and charged with shattering 70 car windows with a pellet gun.

Child abuse cases increase 140%

Child abuse and neglect reports in Illinois in fiscal 1976 increased 140 per cent to a record high of 6,748, but one less death resulted from the abuses than in 1975, a state official said Friday. Mary Lee Leahy, director of the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services, said 52 children are known to have died from abuse in Illinois in the year which ended June 30. More than 2,400 neglect cases last year were reported, representing mor than one third of the 6,748 total. In the previous year the total was 2,801 and only 5 per cent of the cases reported were for neglect. "Most of the increase can be attributed to recent changes in the law and to a growing public awareness of the child abuse problem," Mrs. Leahy said.

Peoria man held in shooting

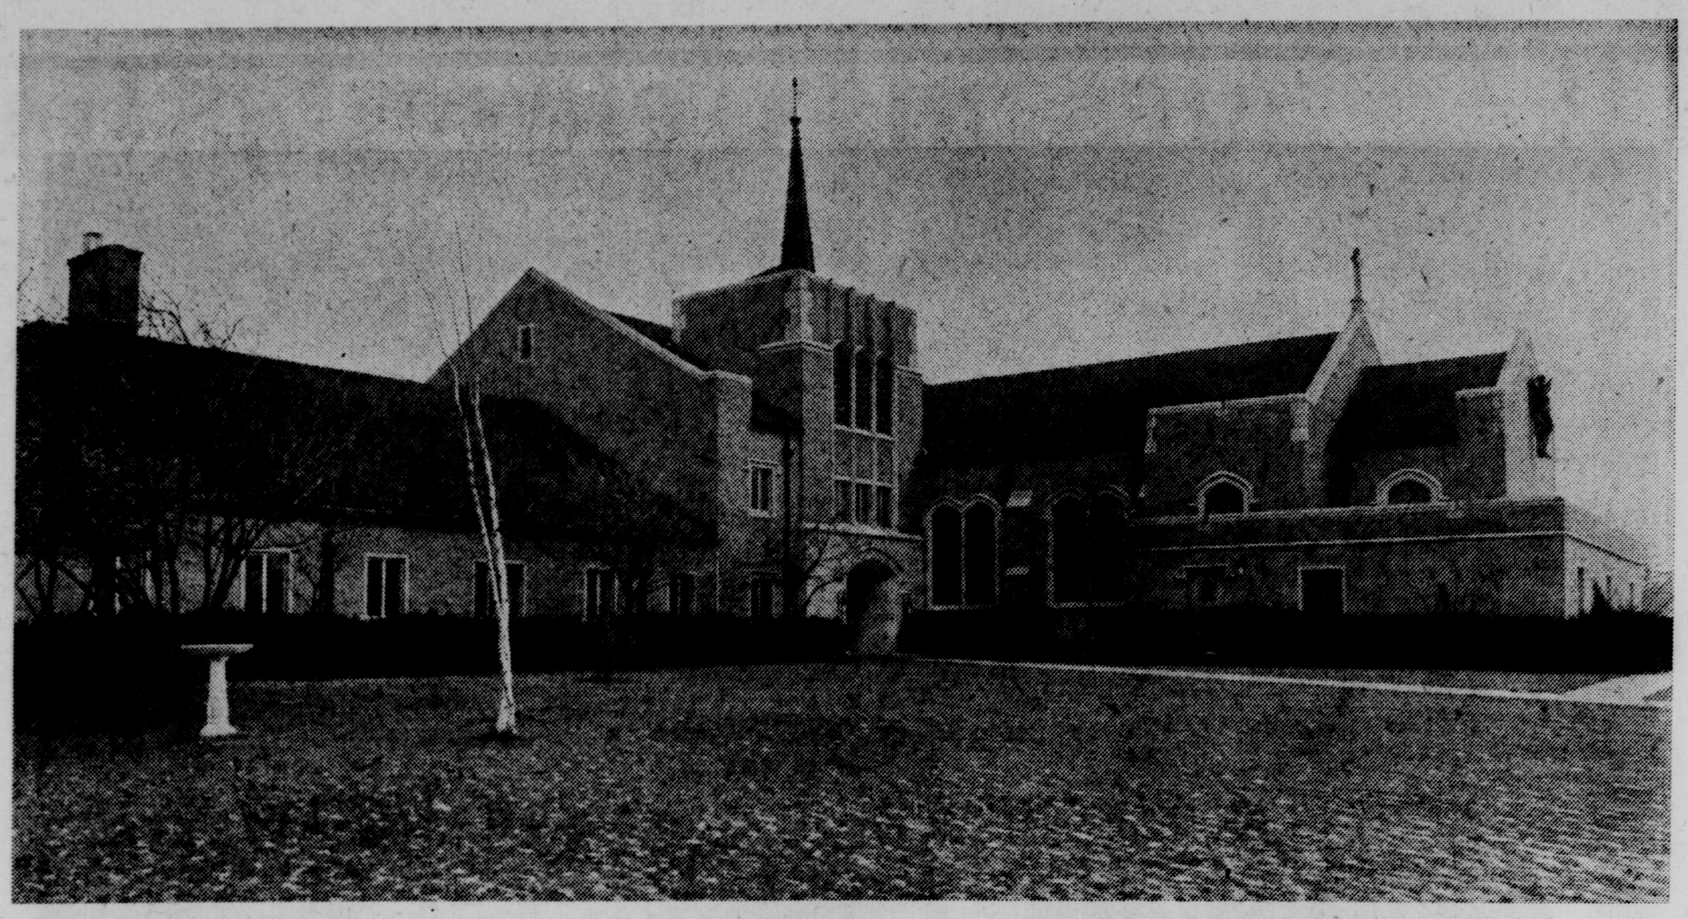
A Peoria man was held Friday on charges of attempted murder in the wounding of Illinois state police trooper Carl L. Kobler. Kobler was shot in the arm Tuesday when he stopped a car for a traffic violation in northern McDonough County near Bushnell. A spokesman said his condition had improved enough so that he was released from McDonough County Hospital on Thanksgiving Day. The trooper said several shots were fired from the car after it was stopped on Walnut Grove Road. Another trooper managed to halt the car and arrest the two occupants about 10 minutes later. Police identified them as Dean Kaufman, 19, and Rosemary Shepherd, 17, both of Peoria. A police spokesman said Kaufman was charged with attempted murder and to counts of aggravated battery. Miss Shepherd was held in McDonough County Jail where she was to be picked up by Fulton County authorities on burglary charges, the spokesman said.

Insurance figure cleared

The man accused of altering an insurance examination taken by William M. Daley, son of the Chicago mayor, has been cleared of perjury charges by the Illinois Court of Appeals. The court overturned the perjury conviction of Robert Wills, 56, Springfield, in a ruling late Wednesday. Wills was convicted by a Cook County Circuit Court jury July 17, 1974, of lying to a grand jury when he denied he altered Daley's exam to enable him to receive an insurance broker's license. He was sentenced to serve six months in jail. On Feb. 5, 1975, a Sangamon County jury acquitted Wills of forgery charges in a case involving the same alleged alterations. The appellate court agreed with Wills' lawyer, who argued that since Wills had been acquitted of making any alterations, he could not be convicted of lying when he denied making the changes.

Fire danger eases a bit

Rainfall late Thanksgiving Day in Southern Illinois, the first since Oct. 30, gave weary foresters a breather from firefighting duties. But they said the rainfall — about one inch — has not been the needed soaking rain. Drought conditions had left fields and forests bone dry. Both state and federal foresters in a 27-county area had been kept on the run night and day by dozens of blazes in November. Before the rain late Thursday, state foresters battled five Thanksgiving Day fires.



St. Joseph Novitiate may someday be a permanent home for the area's retarded adults.

Group charges discrimination in suit

Home for retarded battle goes on

by KURT BAER

It takes a lot of time and love to build a home. And when it's a home for 93 retarded adults it can take lawyers and judges too.

Martin Pratt understands this. He has devoted the past 20 years of his life, ever since his daughter, Nancy, was born retarded, to wishing and working for a place where retarded adults can live with dignity.

Pratt, 453 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine, is president of the Suburban Townships Assn. for the Retarded which nearly a year ago filed a suit in U.S. District Court charging McHenry County with discrimination against the mentally retarded.

THE SUIT GROWS from the McHenry County board's refusal to permit the association to start a home for mentally retarded adults in the St. Joseph Novitiate, 2710 S. Country Club Rd., Woodstock. Retarded residents would come from Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships, as well as McHenry County, to live at the former novitiate.

The discrimination suit has moved slowly through the federal court, Pratt admits. But his confidence that the association will ultimately prevail is unshaken.

"We'll win and we'll be able to meet the needs of the retarded in this area," he says.

Pratt defines that need in the deeply personal terms of his own family which, he says, is "magnified" by the experiences of other families with a retarded member in the Northwest suburban area.

Martin Pratt

"Our daughter is 20 years old. She has the body of a young woman but the mind of a child. She also has cerebral palsy and has to wear braces. We love her dearly at home," Pratt says.

"BUT MY WIFE and I realize we're not going to live forever, and we have had to start thinking about where and how Nancy will live the rest of her life.

"Our experience is magnified by that of many other families in this area," Pratt says.

"If you were to sit back and dream of a home, you could not come up with a better one than the novitiate building," he says.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas R. McMillen recently denied a motion by the association for a summary judgemenet in its favor.

"We'll now prepare to go to trial on a class action suit," says Pratt. "I expect that will come up in three to four months."

JOINING THE association in its suit against McHenry County, are Miss Pratt, four other mentally retarded adults, and the Congregation of the Resurrection, a Catholic order that wants to sell the vacant 118-room novitiate and the surrounding 86-acre estate to the association for $1.3 million.

The McHenry County Zoning Board voted 5 to 1 in favor of the home in July 1975, after eight months of hearings. But the county board vetoed the project by a 22 to 1 vote in August 1975.

More than 130 McHenry County residents signed a petition objecting to the home. But Pratt says real estate interests in the area were primarily responsible for the board's rejection.

"While we have neve been able to prove it, I have always suspected that developers would like to buy the property and subdivide it into a mini-Inverness. With large, expensive homes on 1.5-acre lots, a developer could make a lot of money there," he says.

"By and large, the people in the area were behind us," he says.

ADULTS AT THE home would be supervised in their living quarters. There would be handicrafts and other training programs for the residents, as well as recreational programs on the novitiate grounds and in the community.

Money to buy the building would come in the form of revenue bonds issued by the Illinois Health Facilities Authority, Pratt said. Payments from the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid and the U.S. Social Security Administration for each resident more than 21 years old would be used to pay off the bonds during a 30 year period, he said.

The association would support the very few residents between 18 and 21, he said. "We want to make it possible to raise money in the community so that no one would have to pay."

The Suburban Townships Assn. for the Retarded is composed wholly of volunteers from the Northwest suburbs, the parents of retarded persons and others who are interested in their care.

Pratt says he does not mind waiting for the courts to act. The Congregation of the Resurrection, as a party to suit, will not sell the property to another buyer, he says.

"I'm somewhat religious," he says, "and looking at the novitiate I really can think that God chose this for our purposes."

Handicapped man won their love

Small town mourns for Gray

WINDSOR, MO. (UPI) — Gail Gray's funeral was one of the biggest in memory in this town of 3,000. Downtown businesses closed. Farmers came into town from their fields. Policemen served as pallbearers.

But Gray was no prominent merchant or distinguished official.

He was a mongoloid, physically deformed and mentally retarded. In a big city he might have been shut into an anonymous institution, but in the town of Windsor he became known, loved and protected.

"Gail leaves a family of only one brother and one sister. But he leaves also a family of more than 3,000 persons," the Rev. Ralph Prosser said in his eulogy.

GRAY, A LIFELONG resident of the area 80 miles southeast of Kansas City, was orphaned in 1958 at the age of 30. That was when residents pitched in to help him with places to stay and odd jobs to provide him money.

He lived at various homes for five years, then moved into a rest home where he lived until it closed at the end of October. He spent his last few weeks with a widow who wanted company.

On Nov. 15, he was sweeping the sidewalk outside the Merryfield Pharmacy, furiously as he always did, when he collapsed and died of a heart attack. He was 48. His funeral three days later brought about 175 persons.

Gray was a familiar figure in the town. He helped at livestock and household auctions, directed parking at town ball games, delivered newspapers, shoveled snow and swept sidewalks.

WHEN HE DIED, his entire possessions were in a shoebox: a billfold stuffed with pictures of town children, who in turn printed his picture in their school yearbooks, toy deputy badges, a harmonica, an ashtray and a 1968 court notice which said he was mentally deficient.

He called the children "sugar" and older women "sweet little sugar plums" and he liked to give his friends big hugs.

When elderly residents of the rest home died, he was always the first to arrive at the funeral home. He would stand by the coffin with the minister, take off his hat, look in, step back and give a tearful salute, then leave before the service began.

Gray had a way of pulling his hunched frame erect, putting his feet together and saluting. He always did it at funerals, when the flag went by in a parade or when he saw the President on television.

At his funeral, the Rev. Prosser, holding back tears, quoted a Biblical passage: "Verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

The minister then approached the coffin as he had done so many times with Gray at his side at the funeral home. He touched the coffin, looked in, stepped back and paused. Then, he saluted.

Pratt, 453 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine, is president of the Suburban Townships Assn. for the Retarded which nearly a year ago filed a suit in U.S. District Court charging McHenry County with discrimination against the mentally retarded.

THE SUIT GROWS from the McHenry County board's refusal to permit the association to start a home for mentally retarded adults in the St. Joseph Novitiate, 2710 S. Country Club Rd., Woodstock. Retarded residents would come from Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships, as well as McHenry County, to live at the former novitiate.

The discrimination suit has moved slowly through the federal court, Pratt admits. But his confidence that the association will ultimately prevail is unshaken.

"We'll win and we'll be able to meet the needs of the retarded in this area," he says.

Pratt defines that need in the deeply personal terms of his own family which, he says, is "magnified" by the experiences of other families with a retarded member in the Northwest suburban area.

Martin Pratt

"Our daughter is 20 years old. She has the body of a young woman but the mind of a child. She also has cerebral palsy and has to wear braces. We love her dearly at home," Pratt says.

"BUT MY WIFE and I realize we're not going to live forever, and we have had to start thinking about where and how Nancy will live the rest of her life.

"Our experience is magnified by that of many other families in this area," Pratt says.

"If you were to sit back and dream of a home, you could not come up with a better one than the novitiate building," he says.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas R. McMillen recently denied a motion by the association for a summary judgemenet in its favor.

"We'll now prepare to go to trial on a class action suit," says Pratt. "I expect that will come up in three to four months."

JOINING THE association in its suit against McHenry County, are Miss Pratt, four other mentally retarded adults, and the Congregation of the Resurrection, a Catholic order that wants to sell the vacant 118-room novitiate and the surrounding 86-acre estate to the association for $1.3 million.

The McHenry County Zoning Board voted 5 to 1 in favor of the home in July 1975, after eight months of hearings. But the county board vetoed the project by a 22 to 1 vote in August 1975.

More than 130 McHenry County residents signed a petition objecting to the home. But Pratt says real estate interests in the area were primarily responsible for the board's rejection.

"While we have neve been able to prove it, I have always suspected that developers would like to buy the property and subdivide it into a mini-Inverness. With large, expensive homes on 1.5-acre lots, a developer could make a lot of money there," he says.

"By and large, the people in the area were behind us," he says.

ADULTS AT THE home would be supervised in their living quarters. There would be handicrafts and other training programs for the residents, as well as recreational programs on the novitiate grounds and in the community.

Money to buy the building would come in the form of revenue bonds issued by the Illinois Health Facilities Authority, Pratt said. Payments from the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid and the U.S. Social Security Administration for each resident more than 21 years old would be used to pay off the bonds during a 30 year period, he said.

The association would support the very few residents between 18 and 21, he said. "We want to make it possible to raise money in the community so that no one would have to pay."

The Suburban Townships Assn. for the Retarded is composed wholly of volunteers from the Northwest suburbs, the parents of retarded persons and others who are interested in their care.

Pratt says he does not mind waiting for the courts to act. The Congregation of the Resurrection, as a party to suit, will not sell the property to another buyer, he says.

"I'm somewhat religious," he says, "and looking at the novitiate I really can think that God chose this for our purposes."

Handicapped man won their love

Small town mourns for Gray

WINDSOR, MO. (UPI) — Gail Gray's funeral was one of the biggest in memory in this town of 3,000. Downtown businesses closed. Farmers came into town from their fields. Policemen served as pallbearers.

But Gray was no prominent merchant or distinguished official.

He was a mongoloid, physically deformed and mentally retarded. In a big city he might have been shut into an anonymous institution, but in the town of Windsor he became known, loved and protected.

"Gail leaves a family of only one brother and one sister. But he leaves also a family of more than 3,000 persons," the Rev. Ralph Prosser said in his eulogy.

GRAY, A LIFELONG resident of the area 80 miles southeast of Kansas City, was orphaned in 1958 at the age of 30. That was when residents pitched in to help him with places to stay and odd jobs to provide him money.

He lived at various homes for five years, then moved into a rest home where he lived until it closed at the end of October. He spent his last few weeks with a widow who wanted company.

On Nov. 15, he was sweeping the sidewalk outside the Merryfield Pharmacy, furiously as he always did, when he collapsed and died of a heart attack. He was 48. His funeral three days later brought about 175 persons.

Gray was a familiar figure in the town. He helped at livestock and household auctions, directed parking at town ball games, delivered newspapers, shoveled snow and swept sidewalks.

WHEN HE DIED, his entire possessions were in a shoebox: a billfold stuffed with pictures of town children, who in turn printed his picture in their school yearbooks, toy deputy badges, a harmonica, an ashtray and a 1968 court notice which said he was mentally deficient.

He called the children "sugar" and older women "sweet little sugar plums" and he liked to give his friends big hugs.

When elderly residents of the rest home died, he was always the first to arrive at the funeral home. He would stand by the coffin with the minister, take off his hat, look in, step back and give a tearful salute, then leave before the service began.

Gray had a way of pulling his hunched frame erect, putting his feet together and saluting. He always did it at funerals, when the flag went by in a parade or when he saw the President on television.

At his funeral, the Rev. Prosser, holding back tears, quoted a Biblical passage: "Verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

The minister then approached the coffin as he had done so many times with Gray at his side at the funeral home. He touched the coffin, looked in, stepped back and paused. Then, he saluted.

ICC rules may close betting services

and STEVE BROWN

State officials are preparing to use Illinois Commerce Commission regulations to close the messenger betting services that have proliferated in the suburbs and Chicago.

the Herald has learned Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scariano has asked commerce commission officials to enforce the state motor carrier regulations on off-track betting operations in hopes of putting the services out of business.

Scariano declined to comment Friday when asked if the ICC would be used as a means of ending the booming business which allegedly is draining $300,000 a day from the gross profits at race tracks in Illinois. However, Marvin S. Lieberman, ICC chairman, confirmed that he had conferred with Scariano.

"We want to determine if the manner of operation possibly puts the services under regulations of the motor carrier act," Lieberman said. He said if the services did qualify as motor carriers — companies carrying property for hire — the services would have to meet all of the regulations for certification.

LIEBERMAN DECLINED to state how long the ICC would take to study the situation.

"I am waiting for some material," Lieberman said.

He said the certification process would call for the services to appear before the commission and that equipment, rates and the "fitness to carry property for hire" would be criterion for determining if the services would be licensed.

"Any motor carrier not licensed would be operating illegally," Lieberman said.

Law enforcement officials have been unable to control the operation of the betting services since the messenger operations first appeared in 1975. The services say they only take orders for bets and purchase pari-mutuel tickets at race tracks.

Police have raided a number of messenger services, but none of the employes were convicted.

NEW ATTENTION has been drawn to the services since complaints charging the services were not paying off on winning bets have been made to the racing board and police.

The Herald has found that no complaints have been filed against the four messenger services known to be operating in the Northwest suburbs.

Records filed with the Illinois Secretary of State show that Arnold's Pony Express, 704 N. River Rd., Mount Prospect; Mercury Messenger Service, 2400 E. Oakton St., Elk Grove Township; Front Runner, 962 So. Milwaukee Ave., near Wheeling, and Cavallo Messenger Service, Rand and Frontage roads, Palatine Township, are all doing business in the Northwest suburbs.

Generally, the messenger services are not regulated by any state or local government agency. Racing board officials said they planned to launch a wide-ranging investigation earlier this month, but it was learned the effort has been stymied because little is known about the ownership of the companies. In most cases, the newly formed corporations have not been required to file an annual report with the state, consequently only the name of a registered agent, usually an attorney not involved in the operation, is known.

SCARIANO AND other racing board members have said they fear syndicate involvement in the services.

The Herald also learned the Federal Bureau of Investigation is observing the operation of some of the messenger services to determine if there is organized crime involvement.

Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley recently called for an ordinance to ban the operation of the messenger services in the city. Daley has expressed an interest in legalizing off-track betting in Chicago under the city's auspices.

Some law enforcement officials have hinted the messenger services may be booking their own bets and not placing wagers at racetracks. Such actions would be illegal, but investigators said it is nearly impossible to determine if the wagers are being placed at the tracks or covered privately because the services are not required to disclose any of their

by PAUL GORES

Since late 1973 business in the Northwest suburbs has been a bit sticky for the Sperry & Hutchinson Co. The energy crisis and a barrage of new promotional ideas cut into the image of S&H green stamps as a retail business booster in this part of the country.

But S&H officials say green stamps are again gaining popularity as a top promotional gimmick for gas staions, supermarkets and even banks and hotels. They say the red and green signs of S&H green stamps will become a common sight here once again.

The S&H sign is already prominent in Palatine, where a green stamp redemption center opened this fall at 56 W. Wilson St. It is the first center in the Northwest suburbs since one at Rahdhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect closed last March.

"We're doing pretty well," said Maureen O'Meara, the store manager. "But there are still a lot of people that don't know we're here."

MERCHANDISE ranging from wrist watches to coffee tables is on display at the center, each item marked with the number of filled green stamp books necessary to purchase it. Catalogs also are available at the center, featuring everything from speedboats to horse shoes.

"You can get almost anything in here," Ms. O'Meara said.

But it wasn't long ago when a green-stamp saver was hard pressed to find a place to redeem the S&H booklets and certificates. Or even to find a merchant who had some more stamps, booklets and certificates to give away.

Chester F. Stevens, regional public affairs manager for S&H, explained why.

"When the energy crisis hit, the gas stations didn't have enough of the product to sell," Stevens said. "So they stopped promoting. There was enough demand without a promotion."

HE SAID SUPERMARKETS stopped giving away green stamps because of a "proliferation of stamps" and a surge of new promotional gimmicks.

"People were using new promotions, like calling themselves discount stores," Stevens said. "But now the supermarkets are finding out that they're spending as much promoting their low prices as they would have spent on stamps."

Stevens said retail merchants buy the stamps from S&H to lure buyers to their businesses. Stamps also help gas stations, supermarkets and other retail firms to develop regular customers, Stevens said.

Stevens said S&H's ability to buy the merchandise in large quantities and at lower cost provides a profit margin on the company's income from retailers.

"More and more gas stations are using them (stamps) again," Stevens said. "They're making a real comeback."

STEVENS SAID green stamps are expecially popular at truck stops, where large fill-ups of gas let truckers acquire large quantities of stamps in a short period of time. One stamp is given for each 10 cent purchase.

"Gas stations aren't the only ones giving away stamps," Stevens said. Stamps are often given away through in-house promotions. Hotels and banks are also rewarding patronage with green stamps, Stevens said.

The stamps are redeemable for name-brand merchandise only at redemption centers. Ms. O'Meara said S&H certificates may be bought at the centers also and then redeemed for merchandise. The customer must pay tax on the items, however.

Stevens said there are about 340 truck stops nationwide that now offer green stamps, and about 3,700 gas stations distribute them.

"Our sales are up over last year right now," he added.

Sperry & Hutchinson Co. is 80 years old this year and is the only national savings stamp company, Stevens said.

$250,000 to remodel the village hall and $650,000 to install sewers and water mains for the future village center.

Larson's three new requests will be for $750,000 for a village hall addition, $250,000 to install traffic lights and straighten the intersection of Ill. Rte. 83 and Buffalo Grove Road, and $100,000 for a water main along Buffalo Grove Road from Dundee Road to Downing Road.

Newly-incorporated Prospect Heights also has been rushed by the Dec. 3 deadline to complete a sidewalk study and its application. A special city council meeting was called for Wednesday to give final approval to an application requesting funds to install sidewalks near schools located along Cook County roads.

THERE WILL be stiff competition for the $64 million appropriated for projects in Illinois, according to Gene Ramsey of the U.S. Dept. of Commerce office in Springfield. More than 500 applications have been received in Illinois. Ramsey predicted the $64 million will cover only about 60 projects.

Northwest suburban applicants may be at a disadvantage because the unemployment rate in the area is lower than in many other regions of the state.

The applications will be judged by four criteria, Ramsey said, with the unemployment rate representing 25 per cent of the applicant's score and the number of unemployed persons accounting for an additional 30 per cent. The ratio of labor costs to the cost of the total project also will count 30 per cent and the per-capita income of the area will be figured at 15 per cent, he said.

ROLLING MEADOWS and Mount Prospect were among the first to apply for the federal money. Rolling Meadows has asked for $750,000 to pay for improvements to the city's water system and Mount Prospect has filed five applications totaling $3.8 million.

Mount Prospect's requests are for $1 million for a new well and two reservoirs; $950,000 for new water mains; $220,000 for new sidewalks; $815,000 to complete several unfinished streets; and $865,000 for improvements along Weller Creek.

Applications for the federal money will also be filed this week by Elk Grove Village and the Palatine and Elk Grove park districts.

Michigan woman charged in murder try

An early-morning argument outside a Palatine Township tavern Friday ended in the shooting of two persons and the arrest of a third for attempted murder, police reported.

Cook County Sheriff's Police said they arrested Jesusa Patton, 27, of Adrian, Mich., and charged her with two counts each of attempted murder and aggravated battery after she allegedly shot Antonio Vasquez, 22, of Wood Dale, and his sister Estella, 18, of Adrian, Mich.

Palatine firefighters rushed the brother and sister to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, where they were reported Friday afternoon in serious but improved condition in the hospital's intensive care unit.

The shooting occurred in the parking lot outside the Stonehenge Pub, 201 W. Dundee Rd., at 1:25 a.m. Friday, police said.

MS. PATTON allegedly used a .22-caliber revolver to shoot Antonio Vasquez in the arm and back, and Stella Vasquez in the face and back.

Patrons at the Stonehenge Pub rushed outside after hearing the gunshots, and apprehended and disarmed Ms. Patton, police said. The patrons called police and held Ms. Patton until a patrol car arrived within five minutes after the shooting, police said.

Ms. Patton appeared before Associate Judge Martin G. Luken Friday afternoon for a bond hearing in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court where bond was denied.

Ms. Patton was ordered transported to Cook County Jail, Chicago, to await a Monday court hearing in Niles.

Deer dies protecting his freedom

A deer buck led seven Mount Prospect policemen on a chase through rush-hour traffic in the village Friday morning, but the romp ended tragically.

The fallow deer stumbled and fell in a creekbed and was crippled. It was destroyed by a patrolman, police said.

The buck apparently strayed into the village sometime the previous night, and first was reported to police near Lancaster Street and Central Road at 6:35 a.m.

Sgt. Warren A. Fischer of the Mount Prospect police found the buck roaming the 400 block of North Elm St., police said. Fischer called for assistance over his radio, and gave chase.

POLICE SAID the deer ran through yards and jumped fences to elude patrolmen. The buck reportedly ran through the Gregory School yard at 400 E. Gregory St., and then dashed west to Main Street.

The deer then ran south for two blocks on Main, stopping rush-hour traffic before running through more yards to Louis Street and Central road, police said.

The buck veered south across Central, tying up more traffic, and disappeared in the neighborhood bounded by Central and Mount Prospect roads and Northwest Highway, police said.

Police said the deer reappeared as it crossed Northwest Highway, fleeing south toward Wellers Creek. The deer stumbled and fell into the creekbed, injuring itself.

Fischer, another sergeant and five patrolmen found the injured deer, its escapade ended. A patrolman drew his service revolver and destroyed the deer at 7:01 a.m.

busier malls and starting to shop earlier to avoid the crowds and get a better selection," she said.

MERCHANTS LIKE Alfred Mitchell, owner of Mitchell's Jewelers, Evergreen Shopping Center, and Carol Sloan, owner of Muriel Munday, Dunton Court Shopping Center, were delighted with the buying activity.

"One woman just told me she thought the selections in town are better than at the bigger stores," Mrs. Sloan said. "It's always busy after Thanksgiving, but this year seems heavier than usual."

Shoppers who plan on beating the crowds today by staying in town might be surprised. Most Arlington Heights merchants interviewed predicted another day of crowded streets and shops.

Derks appointed to police chiefs unit

Arlington Heights Police Chief Robert P. Derks has been appointed to the International Assn. of Chiefs of Police Public Relations and Mass Communication Committee for the upcoming year.

Serving with Derks are police chiefs from Pueblo, Colo.; St. Louis, Mo.; Pasadena, Calif.; Inner Grove Heights, Minn.; Foster City, Calif.; Feasterville, Pa.; and staff officers from Montreal, Canada, the Ohio State Highway Patrol, and the U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Command.

Christian heritage movie

"In God We Trust," a movie examining America's Christian heritage, will be presented at 6:30 p.m. Sunday at the First Baptist Church of Arlington Heights, 1211 W. Campbell St. The presentation is in connection with the church's annual "Honor America Day."

Police seek 4 robbers in attack

Des Plaines police are seeking four robbers who attacked a 23-year-old Arlington Heights man and then robbed him of $75.

Police said Carlos M. Contreras told them he was jumped by four men while he walked through the parking lot of the River Rand Bowl, 191 S. River Rd., sometime after sunset Thursday.

The thieves beat Contreras until he was unconscous and took his wallet and $75 cash, police said. After Contreras regained consciousness, he reported the robbery to Mount Prospect police, who transported the victim to Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, shortly after midnight Friday, police said.

Contreras reportedly suffered facial cuts and bruises, and groin and side injuries. Police said he refused treatment at the hospital.

The deer then ran south for two blocks on Main, stopping rush-hour traffic before running through more yards to Louis Street and Central road, police said.

The buck veered south across Central, tying up more traffic, and disappeared in the neighborhood bounded by Central and Mount Prospect roads and Northwest Highway, police said.

Police said the deer reappeared as it crossed Northwest Highway, fleeing south toward Wellers Creek. The deer stumbled and fell into the creekbed, injuring itself.

Fischer, another sergeant and five patrolmen found the injured deer, its escapade ended. A patrolman drew his service revolver and destroyed the deer at 7:01 a.m.

busier malls and starting to shop earlier to avoid the crowds and get a better selection," she said.

MERCHANTS LIKE Alfred Mitchell, owner of Mitchell's Jewelers, Evergreen Shopping Center, and Carol Sloan, owner of Muriel Munday, Dunton Court Shopping Center, were delighted with the buying activity.

"One woman just told me she thought the selections in town are better than at the bigger stores," Mrs. Sloan said. "It's always busy after Thanksgiving, but this year seems heavier than usual."

Shoppers who plan on beating the crowds today by staying in town might be surprised. Most Arlington Heights merchants interviewed predicted another day of crowded streets and shops.

Derks appointed to police chiefs unit

Arlington Heights Police Chief Robert P. Derks has been appointed to the International Assn. of Chiefs of Police Public Relations and Mass Communication Committee for the upcoming year.

Serving with Derks are police chiefs from Pueblo, Colo.; St. Louis, Mo.; Pasadena, Calif.; Inner Grove Heights, Minn.; Foster City, Calif.; Feasterville, Pa.; and staff officers from Montreal, Canada, the Ohio State Highway Patrol, and the U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Command.

Christian heritage movie

"In God We Trust," a movie examining America's Christian heritage, will be presented at 6:30 p.m. Sunday at the First Baptist Church of Arlington Heights, 1211 W. Campbell St. The presentation is in connection with the church's annual "Honor America Day."

Police seek 4 robbers in attack

Des Plaines police are seeking four robbers who attacked a 23-year-old Arlington Heights man and then robbed him of $75.

Police said Carlos M. Contreras told them he was jumped by four men while he walked through the parking lot of the River Rand Bowl, 191 S. River Rd., sometime after sunset Thursday.

The thieves beat Contreras until he was unconscous and took his wallet and $75 cash, police said. After Contreras regained consciousness, he reported the robbery to Mount Prospect police, who transported the victim to Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, shortly after midnight Friday, police said.

Contreras reportedly suffered facial cuts and bruises, and groin and side injuries. Police said he refused treatment at the hospital.

The way we see it

Help for vandal foes

In another attempt to curb increasing incidents of vandalism, the Cook County Board has become the latest governing unit to approve an ordinance designed to make parents responsible for destruction of property by their children.

The county law places maximum fines of $1,000 on parents of youthful offenders and makes court supervision of up to one year possible for vandalism convictions.

We believe the new county law is a good one and is another in a series of positive steps by local governments to discourage vandalism. Whether these new ordinances will be effective remains to be seen. Much will depend upon the courts and whether the law is applied consistently so parents will know the consequences of the vicious acts of needless destruction by their children.

Suburban Comm. Mary McDonald said the new county law is necessary because of excessive damage in the forest preserves and unincorporated areas of the county. The county has modeled its law after municipal ordinances in several Northwest suburban communities.

These vandalism ordinances are designed to curb what has become one of our most expensive crimes of youth. Thousands of tax dollars are spent every year simply to repair the destruction.

With a concerted effort by municipal and county officials, we are confident progress can be made in curbing the vandalism problem.

At the same time, we were encouraged by the new activist role by the Parent Teacher Assn. against school vandalism. The PTA organizations can play an important role in making parents aware of the vandalism problem as a national as well as a suburban problem.

As we've said before, the greatest deterrent to vandalism is an effort by parents to know what their children are doing and to set an example that vandalism is unacceptable. Local and regional law enforcement agencies now have the authority to involve the parents in those cases where the parents are unwilling to do so themselves.

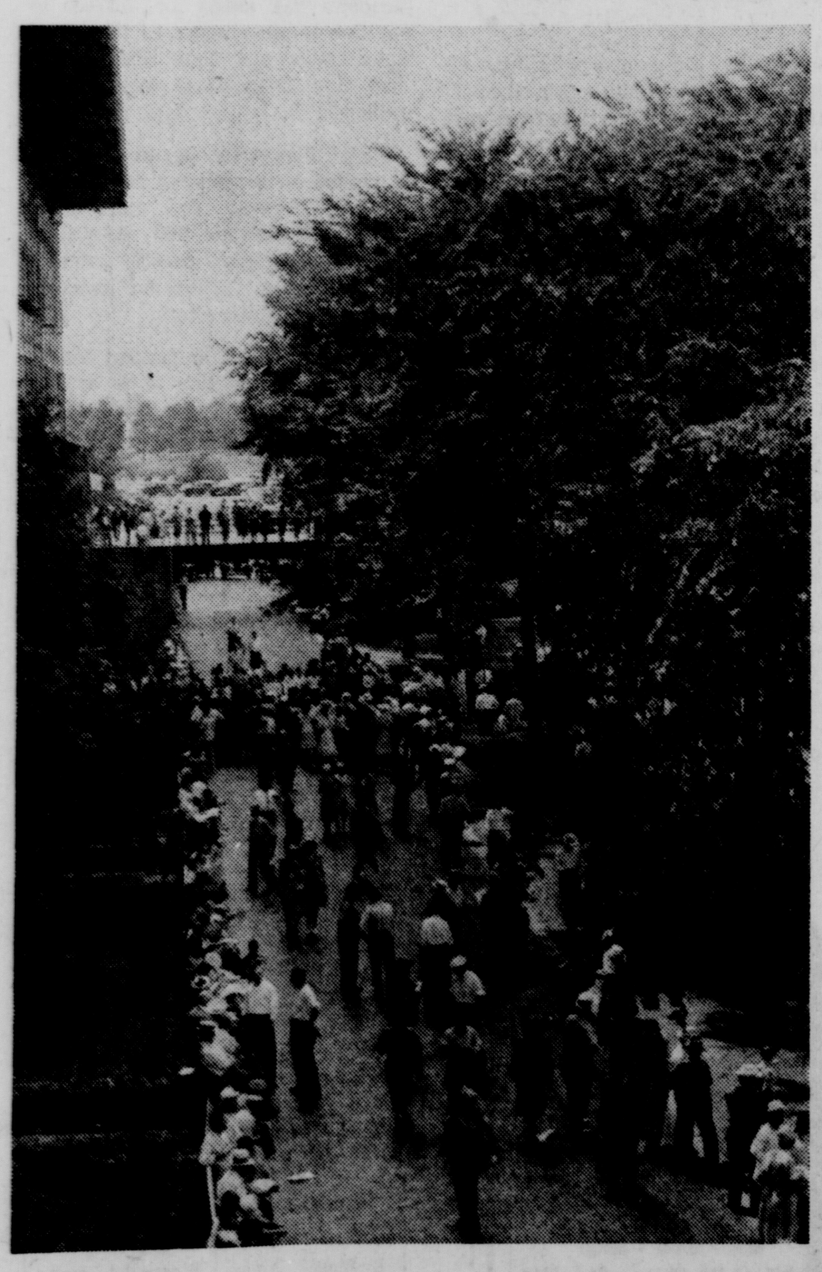
Track restoration deserves praise

It is sometimes hard to remember that Arlington Park race track was part of this area before many of the Northwest suburbs we know today existed.

However, the next track racing season will celebrate its 50th anniversary, an event that clearly reminds us that it was an important part of the area before the process of "suburbanization" began here.



A GENTEEL ELEGANCE once greeted visitors to Arlington Park race track. During the 1960's many beautiful trees gave way to concrete.

Plans were announced this week by officials of Arlington Park to restore the track to its former aura of genteel grandeur in honor of that anniversary.

Plans call for planting trees, improving landscaping and generally upgrading the appearance of the track, which was altered during the 1960's as asphalt was spread for additional parking and the grandstand was expanded.

At that time dozens of trees, some as much as 50 feet tall, were cut down. The expansion was doubtless necessary, but pictures of the area as it was during its heyday in the 1930's make clear what was lost to "progress."

Joseph Joyce, chairman of the board of Madison Square Garden Corp., has announced the plans to improve the track. The improvements started last month when 200 18-to 20-foot silver maple trees were planted in the infield.

The beautification project is one of a series of things track officials have done recently to make Arlington Park a better neighbor in the area. Last July 4, the community was invited in for a celebration, which officials say will be repeated next year.

It is good to see such projects being undertaken by track officials. While it will take many years for those lost 50-foot tall trees to be replaced, it is nevertheless heartening to see efforts being made in that direction.

Consumer activists help and anger agency chief

by MICHAEL J. CONLON
A Commentary

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The phenomenon of he consumer activist standing outside government, watching and criticizing, is no longer a phenomenon. If anything, it has become part of the establishment.

But are those people — Ralph Nader, the people who work for him, the people he trained, the countless others who may even have preceded Nader but whose careers were somehow made more legitimate by him — really doing any good?

More precisely, do the people inside government at whom they direct their pressure, really think they accomplish anything?

TAKE DR. Sidney Wolfe, for instance. He is the young, intense, hard working, harsh and uncompromising head of the Health Research Group, financed by Nader's umbrella money raising organization, Public Citizen Inc., and charged with scrutinizing government health policy.

And take Dr. Alexander M. Schmidt, who on Dec. 1, leaves the government after three and one-half years as head of the Food and Drug Administration — a longer term in that job, he says, than any of his predecessors of the last decade.

We recently asked Schmidt what he thought of Wolfe, since the two have been at opposite ends of frequent debates over the safety of drugs, test methods and the question of whether the FDA is traveling a snail's path in the jet age.

More precisely, we asked:

"What do you think at this point of Sid Wolfe and others on the outside. Are they doing the right thing? Are they unnecessarily strident? Are they contributing anything?

SAID SCHMIDT: "The answer to all your questions is yes. One of the biggest complaints about the agency is its slowness, and sometimes Sidney Wolfe has given us a good kick in the rear and we reached more promptly having been stung by not only Sidney Wolfe but by the publicity he can command.

"I think it is one of the most interesting things I've witnessed; how he can command media attention. And the combination of the information that Sidney Wolfe can bring to our attention, plus the media attention, plus congressional attention to what he says has stimulated the agency many times to do things quicker and, I'll even concede, better.

"I think that he at times criticizes the agency in an unwarranted fashion and I've been quite irritated that he gives things to the press before I get them, publicizing leaks of information such as the chloroform data and criticizing us for not acting.

"Sometimes I think the criticism is unwarranted. But on balance, certainily, that group and the many other groups that watch FDA can help us a lot more than they hurt us and we have tried to support consumer groups."

So, we asked Wolfe what he thought of Schmidt.

"HE IS PLEASANT. He is bright and he has good intentions and he knows what's wrong. He just has not had the courage to act upon the information that he has.

"There's been a really inexplicable slowness to act on some of the worst problems that have risen during his stay at the FDA — estrogens I think being the worst example. It's now been a year and three months since they first learned about the human evidence of cancer and they have not acted yet.

"Another example is polyvinyl chloride for food packaging. They proposed it but have not gone ahead. Schmidt is almost what I suppose Shakespeare would call a tragic character. He has not been assertive enough either in asking for legislative authority or in using the authority that he has now."

Does anyone listen to Wolfe?

Four weeks ago, Wolfe said, he and Nader were asked by one man to forward some names on who should be chosen as the next FDA commissioner. The man was Jimmy Carter.

Economists offer no consensus

Carter must gain economic confidence

by RAY CROMLEY
A Commentary

WASHINGTON (NEA) — When Gerald Ford became president, he called in batteries of economists for a series of summit meetings. There were economists of the left, of the right and of the middle, liberal and conservative, business and labor, academic and government. The works.

Some reporters sat in on those meetings, designed to develop thoughts for managing the flagging economy.

Regardless of announcements made, one thing came through loud and clear to those of us present. The economists could not agree on the problem and they could not agree on answers.

What was done, therefore, was to leave it to Arthur Burns and his Federal Reserve Board — with Burns saying, honestly and consistently, that management of the money supply itself was not enough. But it had to do because no one could get together on a program.

NOW PRESIDENT-elect Jimmy Carter has the problem, or will on January 20. If newspaper and magazine reports are correct, he must depend on the same assorted body of economists. Or their cousins.

Yet there are no more signs today than there were two years ago, that these men can agree on what must be done — or what shouldn't be done.

Worse, there are faint signals, if reports are to be believed, that despite Carter's soothing words, the new president and Burns are moving toward a head-on collision. Presumably Carter wants to step up the supply of money at a faster rate, though he has not said so. And Burns has served notice he plans no such accommodation, but rather intends what might be interpreted as a slight tightening.

This leaves Carter lost in a plethora of conflicting advice, with no one to guide him. His situation, of course, is no better and no worse than that of the last half dozen presidents. None of them did well in the crunch on meeting economic crises.

What this means is that Carter, no more than any of his predecessors, knows how to reduce unemployment and inflation in the short run. Nor in the long run either, except by cut and try — a minor fix here and there.

IN THE END, I suspect, any satisfactory solution depends less on economic-financial steps than on somehow building confidence among a great many groups.

Confidence among consumers so that they will increase their buying.

Confidence among manufactureres so that they will take the risk and spend the capital necessary to buy new plants and modernize equipment. Confidence among investors so that they will buy the stocks and bonds the companies sell to achieve this expansion and modernization.

And confidence by management and labor that the future will be stable — so that there will not be successive rounds of price boosts and hefty labor requests in honest anticipation of continued inflation.

How a man — even if president — goes about inspiring this widespread confidence among those who have lived through the depression of the 1930s and the current recession — is a mystery. The political scientists and psychologists are even more divided than the economists.

'Seniors regret Teichert loss'

Robert D. Teichert's decision not to seek the third term as Village president of Mount Prospect in the 1977 spring election is discomforting news to senior citizens. It means to them the second big loss in the last two years.

The first big loss was the resignation of Marjorie Boswell as a director of the Mount Prospect Health Department in the spring of 1975. She played an important role in organizing the Senior Citizens Advisory Council and in founding of the senior citizens services in our community.

To freshen our memories, Mrs. Boswell, with Mayor Teichert's cooperation, got the first federal cash grant for funding the Senior Citizens Services Center, which as of now has grown to a very important institution in our community.

Mrs. Boswell is credited with organizing the meal discount program for seniors, giving senior citizens discounts on restaurant meals, when eaten at certain hours, from 10 to 50 per cent. As of today, 20 restaurants are still participating in this program.

Getting back to Robert Teichert, we senior citizens should remember that he was the first mayor to focus the community's interest to the needs of the elderly. During his two terms as a mayor, a number of programs to help the seniors were instituted. The two most worthy of mention are the subsidized taxicab rides within the limits of the village and reduction of vehicle fee to $1.

Also, thanks to Mayor Teichert's support, federally subsidized housing for seniors is on the way to Mount Prospect.

In my opinion, Mayor Teichert's greatest contribution to this community's elderly is the founding of the Senior Citizens Center, which soon will be opened in the current library building. This is the fulfillment of a dream of the senior citizens leadership — the accomplishment of this century. It is comforting to thousands of senior citizens who will have a place not only to promote togetherness, but also to expand their activities by initiating new programs.

The Mayor and all six Trustees voted unanimously to give the floor space in the current library building for senior citizens center.

Senior citizens fared well during Mayor Teichert's tenure; it was an honor of knowing and associating with both Bob and his wife Alice.

Turning to the brighter side of the news, the library board has announced the moving week as of Nov. 29. The new library is expected to open for business on Dec. 6.

Another item of good news is that Trustee Edward Rhea has announced his candidacy for mayor's seat. I think he will make a fine mayor.

John Dean—attempting to right wrongs

by DICK KLEINER

LOS ANGELES — (NEA) — "It troubles me terribly," says John Dean, "that it will happen again."

The "it" he's referring to is, of course, the Watergate affair. He sees a parallel between what happened in 1972 — the Watergate investigation was tabled until after the election — and this year.

Dean has recently stated that Dick Cook, a White House staff member in 1972, approached President Ford, then an influential congressman, and asked him to try to block the Patman Committee inquiry into Watergate.

BUT NOTHING came of Dean's statement. He says no one in an official capacity has approached him for amplification. And he says he and some media friends are "having nightmares" of a new outburst of Watergate investigations — now that the '76 election is over.

He says Cook first denied having spoken to him about Ford's complicity in the movie to impede the Patman inquiry. But later, Dean says, Cook changed his story and currently says he is "unsure" whether or not he spoke to Dean.

"At first," Dean says, "Cook said he was at Lockheed at the time of the Patman inquiry. Now he admits that was wrong, and he says his memory was off by two years."

Dean says many TV and newspaper reporters have indicated to him they wanted to write more about the Ford-Cook incident, before the election. But, he says, they were told by their producers and editors not to touch the story.

WITH THE election over, Dean believes the shackles will be off and that the probe into Ford's connection with the story will begin in earnest.

Dean, one of the leading figures in the Watergate scandal, is a writer. He does interviews for Rolling Stone magazine, and his book about his connection with Watergate, "Blind Ambition," is on the best seller list.

He feels now that his future is in writing. It can't be in law. He was disbarred and says now that he belives his disbarment was "a right decision."

"I MADE bad judgments," he says. "I don't deserve to practice law."

He says he was "uncomfortable" doing the things he had to do.

"I know right from wrong," he says. "I rationalized my way by having others handle things for me. I saved myself, I thought."

Dean's book, written almost like a novel, includes a great deal of dialogue. He relies on his memory for that, a memory first made famous when he testified before the Ervin committee and was able to recreate entire conversations.

"I've always been a listener," he says. "My memory is eclectic. I can still hear those people talking. When (Leon) Jaworski first heard the Nixon tapes, he compared them with my testimony. now

" 'John, it's frightening,' he said to me. 'You used the exact language and phrases that they did.' "

Curiously, John Dean started out to be a writer. He was an English major, first at Colgate and then at the College of Wooster in Ohio. In his junior year, he became a dual English-political science major. His senior thesis was called "Verisimilitude in Political Novels."

So Watergate, which changed many things, turned him back from politics to writing.

"When I was in the White House," he says, "I was very ambitious. I enjoyed being in the inner power, where the movers and the shakers lived. It was that that excited me, not the money, not the public recognition.

"TODAY, I'M generally in Levis, working at the typewriter. I look at things differently now. When I was covering the Kansas City convention, I realized that I was happier being an observer than a participant.

"My biggest problem now is public recognition. I'm uncomfortable being recognized. I've lost my privacy. I miss my anonymity. I become uncomfortable in restaurants. People turn around to watch me eat. But I'm hoping my anonymity will one day return."

He would like to get into screenplay writing. At one point, during the height of the Watergate crisis, he wrote a treatment for a screenplay (about a black woman nominated to be a Supreme Court justice) and had a "handsome" offer for it.

"I showed it to Lowell Weicker (the Republican senator from Connecticut). He said I might someday be involved in an impeachment hearing and that the screenplay wouldn't win me any friends. So I dropped it."

But now he says he's reading 10 screenplays a week, to familiarize himself with the technique. He calls it "a beautiful craft."

DEAN LOOKS ahead these days, although he's forced often to look back. He has regrets over what he did, or didn't do.

"The most troublesome thing to me," he says, "is the way I had the opportunity to do so many things right — and I abused that opportunity. Since then, I've tried to right the wrongs. It sounds mucky, but it's true."

He believes former President Nixon, who is now writing a book about his involvement in Waterage, "has the opportunity to write an all-time classic."

"It could become the piece of literature to read," Dean says. "But I'll be surprised if he does it the way he should do it. If it's like 'Six Crises,' it won't be the way it should be."

He says he feels no bitterness toward Nixon.

"I can't defend his behavior," he says. "But, then, I can't defend my own behavior, either. It was indefensible."

Dorothy Meyer's column

Call me a curb jogger

Kindly people are always giving me ideas for a column and one of the most frequent suggestions is jogging, the theory being that it would be a good topic because everybody's doing it.

A long time ago, however, a professor told my class that it's fine to use imagination in writing but not to the extent that we try to build an entire story around something we've never experienced.

That's how come I've never written anything about sighting the Loch Ness monster.

Or jogging.

Or even hiking.

(AFTER DINNER Thanksgiving Day, my son suggested a brisk walk and I said I'd go along — provided he'd carry me.)

Once in awhile I sprint a little, though.

But that's only from the front porch to the curb and back again, and only on weekend mornings.

On weekend mornings I didn't have to get dressed to go to work as soon as I get up, and I can ignore my hair which looks like I just stuck my finger in a light socket. It's also that blessed time when I can linger over breakfast and lots of cups of coffee and read the morning newspaper — which is at the curb.

SO I PUT on my old Goodwill reject bathrobe and, with my hair standing on end, I sprint to the curb, snatch up the paper and sprint back to the house.

I have to sprint because if I stroll out there and passing motorists catch sight of me, they always lose control of their vehicles and crash into the little tree on my parkway.

The city used to replace the little trees but after the third replanting I had to sign a statement that I would hereafter sprint until such time as I got a new robe and wore a babushka.

But that's as close as I come to jogging or any other violent exercise and it's hardly worth mentioning.

PRO-EXERCISE people generally, and joggers specifically, think I am anti-movement because I smoke too much. But I was born this way.

As a child, if I ran I got a nosebleed.

When I outgrew nosebleeds — but before I started smoking — I discovered that I was naturally short-winded. Once I ran a block to catch a train, and five hours later when I arrived in Muskegon, Michigan, I was still puffing.

So I quit running.

I would also like to quit sprinting.

Dear Santa Claus:

I would like a new bathrobe for Christmas. And a babushka. And one small tree — I forgot and strolled to the curb again this morning.

Groups ask total Carter pardon

by DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President-elect Jimmy Carter's campaign promise to pardon some resisters of the Vietnam War is a step forward. But it fails to deal with most of those jeopardized or punished, amnesty groups say.

According to the groups and individuals involved, Carter's proposal to "pardon" draft resisters without a requirement for alternative service, as President Ford's program, will not solve the problem.

During the campaign, Carter said that he was opposed to "blanket amnesty" because it would "equate illegal defection from service in Vietnam with sacrificial service there by many who objected to the war regardless."

AT OTHER POINTS in the campaign, most notably his speech before the American Legion in Seattle, Wash., and in the Playboy interview, Carter said the question of deserters "ought to be handled on an individual basis in accordance with our nation's system of military justice."

No one in the amnesty movement, however, is quite sure what that means and the movement has made it clear that an amensty or pardon that does not include veterans is unacceptable.

"Bad Paper" discharges of veterans are the heart of the problem.

According to Fritz Efaw, the draft resister nominated for vice president at the Democratic National Convention, Carter's proposal ignores "the vast majority of more than a million Americans who need amnesty."

"TOTAL AMNESTY," says Jim Credle, director of the Veterans Affairs Program at Rutgers University, "should include nearly 800,000 Vietnam-era veterans who hold less than honorable discharges, which are in effect lifetime sentences keeping them from most private and public jobs, and virtually every right and benefit they earned, including unemployment insurance, education and training and even medical treatment."

Duane Shank of the National Intereligious Service Board for Conscientious Objectors, has estimated that those either punished or in legal jeopardy for war-related offenses during the Vietnam era include 23,849 draft resisters, presumably those a Carter pardon would affect; 792,503 veterans with bad discharge, some 1 million nonregistrants for the draft; and an unknown number of civilian war resistors, such as demonstrators arrested for disorderly conduct during anti-war demonstrations.

The amnesty groups would like to see Carter, as part of his "pardon" do something about upgrading the "bad paper" discharges of the veterans. The vast majority of these discharges, they say, were so-called "administrative," indicating the vet was never tried by court-martial or found guilty of any crime.

John Dean—attempting to right wrongs

by DICK KLEINER

LOS ANGELES — (NEA) — "It troubles me terribly," says John Dean, "that it will happen again."

The "it" he's referring to is, of course, the Watergate affair. He sees a parallel between what happened in 1972 — the Watergate investigation was tabled until after the election — and this year.

Dean has recently stated that Dick Cook, a White House staff member in 1972, approached President Ford, then an influential congressman, and asked him to try to block the Patman Committee inquiry into Watergate.

BUT NOTHING came of Dean's statement. He says no one in an official capacity has approached him for amplification. And he says he and some media friends are "having nightmares" of a new outburst of Watergate investigations — now that the '76 election is over.

He says Cook first denied having spoken to him about Ford's complicity in the movie to impede the Patman inquiry. But later, Dean says, Cook changed his story and currently says he is "unsure" whether or not he spoke to Dean.

"At first," Dean says, "Cook said he was at Lockheed at the time of the Patman inquiry. Now he admits that was wrong, and he says his memory was off by two years."

Dean says many TV and newspaper reporters have indicated to him they wanted to write more about the Ford-Cook incident, before the election. But, he says, they were told by their producers and editors not to touch the story.

WITH THE election over, Dean believes the shackles will be off and that the probe into Ford's connection with the story will begin in earnest.

Dean, one of the leading figures in the Watergate scandal, is a writer. He does interviews for Rolling Stone magazine, and his book about his connection with Watergate, "Blind Ambition," is on the best seller list.

He feels now that his future is in writing. It can't be in law. He was disbarred and says now that he belives his disbarment was "a right decision."

"I MADE bad judgments," he says. "I don't deserve to practice law."

He says he was "uncomfortable" doing the things he had to do.

"I know right from wrong," he says. "I rationalized my way by having others handle things for me. I saved myself, I thought."

Dean's book, written almost like a novel, includes a great deal of dialogue. He relies on his memory for that, a memory first made famous when he testified before the Ervin committee and was able to recreate entire conversations.

"I've always been a listener," he says. "My memory is eclectic. I can still hear those people talking. When (Leon) Jaworski first heard the Nixon tapes, he compared them with my testimony. now

" 'John, it's frightening,' he said to me. 'You used the exact language and phrases that they did.' "

Curiously, John Dean started out to be a writer. He was an English major, first at Colgate and then at the College of Wooster in Ohio. In his junior year, he became a dual English-political science major. His senior thesis was called "Verisimilitude in Political Novels."

So Watergate, which changed many things, turned him back from politics to writing.

"When I was in the White House," he says, "I was very ambitious. I enjoyed being in the inner power, where the movers and the shakers lived. It was that that excited me, not the money, not the public recognition.

"TODAY, I'M generally in Levis, working at the typewriter. I look at things differently now. When I was covering the Kansas City convention, I realized that I was happier being an observer than a participant.

"My biggest problem now is public recognition. I'm uncomfortable being recognized. I've lost my privacy. I miss my anonymity. I become uncomfortable in restaurants. People turn around to watch me eat. But I'm hoping my anonymity will one day return."

He would like to get into screenplay writing. At one point, during the height of the Watergate crisis, he wrote a treatment for a screenplay (about a black woman nominated to be a Supreme Court justice) and had a "handsome" offer for it.

"I showed it to Lowell Weicker (the Republican senator from Connecticut). He said I might someday be involved in an impeachment hearing and that the screenplay wouldn't win me any friends. So I dropped it."

But now he says he's reading 10 screenplays a week, to familiarize himself with the technique. He calls it "a beautiful craft."

DEAN LOOKS ahead these days, although he's forced often to look back. He has regrets over what he did, or didn't do.

"The most troublesome thing to me," he says, "is the way I had the opportunity to do so many things right — and I abused that opportunity. Since then, I've tried to right the wrongs. It sounds mucky, but it's true."

He believes former President Nixon, who is now writing a book about his involvement in Waterage, "has the opportunity to write an all-time classic."

Prober ties FBI to Hampton killing

A civil liberties activist Friday accused the FBI of arranging the killing of a Black Panther leader in 1969, and asked Congress to investigate the case. Morton Halperin, director of an investigative project supported by the American Civil Liberties Union, made the accusation in a letter to Richard Sprague, chief counsel to the House Select Committee on Assassinations. He said the committee should look into the killing of Black Panther leader Fred Hampton, who was shot to death during a police raid on his Chicago apartment in December 1969. Halperin alleged that FBI complicity in the killing is established by documents and other evidence unearthed in support of a $47.5 million damage suit filed by relatives of Hampton and Mark Clark, another Panther killed in the raid, against federal, state and local authorities.

Quake rumbles through N. Carolina

A scary but harmless earthquake rumbled through the coastal area of Northern California Friday before dawn, awakening thousands of residents to the sound of rattling dishes and rustling windowshades. The quake shook the needle off the seismograph at Ferndale. At the University of California in Berkeley, 250 miles south, the quake was recorded at 3:20 a.m. and had a Richter magnitude of 6, which is strong enough to be potentially damaging. Meanwhile in San Francisco, a cloud of teargas mixed with the fog over the Golden Gate Bridge for five hours early Friday, burning the eyes and noses of motorists and causing three persons to be hospitalized. The gas apparently came from the nearby Presidio army base, where it also wafted through fog-covered trees and roadways in the early morning hours.

U.S., Russ sign accord on fishing

The United States and the Soviet Union signed an agreement Friday under which the Soviets accept the U.S. right to regulate trawler fishing within 200 miles of the American coast, a U.S. State Dept. official said. He said the agreement sets forth only the general principles governing Soviet fishing within the 200-mile U.S. coastal conservation zone, and that specific details concerning catch quotas would be worked out by the time the agreement takes effect March 1, 1977.

2 propane tanks explode

Two 30,000-gallon propane tanks, one of which might have been rammed by a derailed freight train, exploded Friday in Belt, Mont., touching off a fire which swtpt two big grain elevators, a farm cooperative and several homes in this town of 700. Eleven persons were injured. The injured were taken by ambulance over icy roads to a hospital in Great Falls 30 miles away. Six were treated for burns and released while the others were admitted to the hospital.

Police, workers clash in Pamplona

Riot police fired rubber bullets at stone-throwing demonstrators in a series of clashes Friday with construction workers striking for the fifth day in the northern city of Pamplona, Spain. Police sources said clashes erupted when some 300 pickets tried to get non-striking workers to walk off a construction site. They said the pickets stoned police. The strike by 7,500 of Pamplona's 12,000 construction workers is part of a plague of labor and political unrest that has gripped Spain in recent weeks. The Pamplona workers walked out just as 30,000 construction workers in Vizcaya province won pay hikes and ended a 44-day strike. A nationwide walkout by 80,000 grade-school teachers deprived more than 3 million schoolchildren of classes for the fourth day Friday while 2,500 prison employes continued protests and sit-ins for pay hikes, prison reforms and the right to form a labor union.

Report Syria pressuring Palestine

Syria is pressuring Palestinian guerrillas to stop using southern Lebanon as a staging area for raids on Israel, high ranking Christian rightist sources said Firday. The Syrian lobbying appeared aimed at averting a clash with Israel, which has demanded its border with Lebanon be free of both Palestinians and the Syrian-dominated Arab peace-keeping troops in Lebanon. Reports from southern Lebanon Friday indicated Palestinian commandos have pulled back from some areas, but officials did not confirm the retreat.

Meanwhile, the United States is quietly urging Israel and Syria to avoid sudden or unilateral actions on Lebanon's potentially explosive border with Israel, diplomatic sources said Friday. The sources played down the chances of a military clash between Israel and the Syian peacekeeing forces in Lebanon, and said troop movements and warnings by both sides had more political than military significance.

S. Yemen downs Iranian plane

South Yemen forces have shot down an Iranian air force plane operating over the South Arabian Sultanate of Oman, a foreign ministry spokesman said Friday. The downing of the Iranian plane gave rare publicity to one of the quietest and longest wars being conducted against Communist forces in the Middle East. Iran has maintained 3,500 troops in Oman since 1973 to support Oman's 14,000-strong army in its fight against Communist rebels in Dhofar province, which borders South Yemen. The Omani army is directed mainly by some 450 British officers, some on assignment and others on contract to lead the fight against the rebels supported by South Yemen.

Israel sanctioned by UN group

The U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization voted Friday to sanction Israel again for allegedly defying international laws in its archeological excavations of Jerusalem. UNESCO also gave overwhelming approval to a resolution calling for action to strengthen news agencies in poor nations in the hope of balancing the Western dominance in the field of international news.

Ford, Carter have a quiet day

Interrupting a family reunion, President Ford met twice with budget experts and White House aides Friday to map out new federal spending plans in the seclusion of his mountain-top retreat at Camp David, Md.

Meanwhile, President-elect Jimmy Carter secluded himself in his home in Plains, Ga., for the post-Thanksgiving weekend to concentrate on selecting his cabinet and other top officials for his administration.

A TURKISH family dispossessed by Wednesday's earthquake gathers around the ruins of their home with the few belongings they managed to save. More than 3,500 persons are feared dead.

U.S. airlifts supplies to Turkey quake victims

VAN, Turkey (UPI) — Giant U.S. Air Force C-130 cargo jets Friday began airlifting supplies to tens of thousands made homeless by Wednesday's earthquake that killed more than 3,500.

Relief squads of the Red Crescent — Turkey's equivalent to the Red Cross — struggled through a blinding blizzard to relieve victims huddling around salvaged stoves or open fires in the ruins of eastern Turkish towns and villages.

The Turkish Radio said the official death toll had passed 3,500, with more bodies still buried under the rubble. Rescue officials said they still were unable to reach many villages devastated by the quake.

THE AMERICAN supplies — 1,120 tents with individual heating systems, 10,000 blankets and cooking pots — were flown in from the United States Incirlik Air Base in southern Turkey. United States officials in Ankara said 25 C-130s would be taking part in the supply airlift operation.

Foreign aid also was arriving from Italy, Switzerland and West Germany. Red Crescent teams in Istanbul, Ankara and other major cities collected clothes, shoes, socks, blankets and drugs but officials said damaged roads and unseasonably freezing weather hampered distribution to victims.

A relief worker in Ercis, where 149 persons died, said, "Until now we have only received 250 tents, 500 blankets and 3,000 loaves of bread."

"If only I had a shovel," said Mehmet Zeki, who lost his wife, three children and 86-year-old mother. "They died under the bricks and stone, shouting and screaming till morning."

OFFICIALS SAID they received no reports of deaths or damage from an aftershock, measuring 5.5 on the open-ended Richter scale, that struck in the same general area Thursday.

Wednesday's quake, which measured 7.6 on the same scale, was the strongest in Turkey since a quake in 1939 killed 30,000. Another 3,000 died in the Lice quake in southeast Turkey 14 months ago.

Ahmet Yilmaz said he was in his farmyard when the earth began rumbling. "I tried to walk towards the stable, but the stable came toward me. I looked toward the house. It was shaking unbelievably. The stable wall fell on me. The house also collapsed. I dragged myself from under the wall and ran toward the house. I managed to get my badly injured wife from beneath the rubble. But my three-year-old daughter was crushed to death."

Most of the dead were in Muradiye and other towns just north of Lake Van — determined as the quake's epicenter. Only three buildings remained standing in Muradiye, a town with a population of 50,000 before the quake struck.

5 children die as fire sweeps through house

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Five children died in a house fire Friday despite efforts by the three adults in the dwelling to coax the children to crawl along the floors of the smoke-filled home to safety.

"The kids evidently got lost, crawled back to their rooms and they just fell to the floor and died of smoke inhalation," said Fire Chief Paul Warwick. "It's just tragic."

Two of the children who died were the sons of Edward Wayne Coker — Darrell Wayne, 3, and Jimmy Lynn, 2. Also killed were Marty Allen, 7, Sheila Renee Tyer, 6, and George Walter Tipton, 4, the children from two previous marriages of Mrs. Edgar Trout — Coker's sister.

Warwick said Trout smashed an upstairs window with his hand and tossed his 2-year-old son, William, to a man standing in his yard. Then Trout, his wife, Barbara, and Coker leaped to the ground.

"Mr Trout was sitting in a car crying and quite emotionally upset when I arrived at the scene," Warwick said. "We didn't force him, but we had to talk him into going to the hospital — his hands were all burned and cut up."

Trout and his young son were released from Baptist Hospital after treatment for minor injuries. His wife and brother-in-law were hospitalized in satisfactory condition, suffering from broken bones and smoke inhalation.

Warwick said Coker and his two children had moved in with the Trouts and their four children about two weeks ago.

THE CHIEF said four of the dead children were found in their bedrooms and another was discovered on the floor of an upstairs closet, where he had apparently crawled to get away from the heat.

"In a fire like this the heat is so bad, so strong," Warwick said. "The flames engulfed the entire downstairs and just got so hot they were rolling through the house.

"We haven't determined the cause of the fire," said the chief. "The inside of the house is mostly burned away."

11 die after gas line explodes

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Eleven persons were killed and 48 injured Friday in a fiery gas explosion in Tlalnepantla, just outside the city limits. Most of the dead were children, police said.

The explosion sent a wave of blazing gas through 18 houses and shops.

Authorities said they believed the blast was touched off by a mechanical shovel, operated by two men working in road construction, which ruptured the gasoline line. Police were looking for the two men, who have fled the scene.

Some of the victims apparently were still asleep when the blast occurred at 8:25 a.m. Chicago time. Red Cross rescue workers said nine of the dead were children, the youngest only 3 years old.

Authorities have ordered an investigation into the accident.

A scary but harmless earthquake rumbled through the coastal area of Northern California Friday before dawn, awakening thousands of residents to the sound of rattling dishes and rustling windowshades. The quake shook the needle off the seismograph at Ferndale. At the University of California in Berkeley, 250 miles south, the quake was recorded at 3:20 a.m. and had a Richter magnitude of 6, which is strong enough to be potentially damaging. Meanwhile in San Francisco, a cloud of teargas mixed with the fog over the Golden Gate Bridge for five hours early Friday, burning the eyes and noses of motorists and causing three persons to be hospitalized. The gas apparently came from the nearby Presidio army base, where it also wafted through fog-covered trees and roadways in the early morning hours.

U.S., Russ sign accord on fishing

The United States and the Soviet Union signed an agreement Friday under which the Soviets accept the U.S. right to regulate trawler fishing within 200 miles of the American coast, a U.S. State Dept. official said. He said the agreement sets forth only the general principles governing Soviet fishing within the 200-mile U.S. coastal conservation zone, and that specific details concerning catch quotas would be worked out by the time the agreement takes effect March 1, 1977.

2 propane tanks explode

Two 30,000-gallon propane tanks, one of which might have been rammed by a derailed freight train, exploded Friday in Belt, Mont., touching off a fire which swtpt two big grain elevators, a farm cooperative and several homes in this town of 700. Eleven persons were injured. The injured were taken by ambulance over icy roads to a hospital in Great Falls 30 miles away. Six were treated for burns and released while the others were admitted to the hospital.

Police, workers clash in Pamplona

Riot police fired rubber bullets at stone-throwing demonstrators in a series of clashes Friday with construction workers striking for the fifth day in the northern city of Pamplona, Spain. Police sources said clashes erupted when some 300 pickets tried to get non-striking workers to walk off a construction site. They said the pickets stoned police. The strike by 7,500 of Pamplona's 12,000 construction workers is part of a plague of labor and political unrest that has gripped Spain in recent weeks. The Pamplona workers walked out just as 30,000 construction workers in Vizcaya province won pay hikes and ended a 44-day strike. A nationwide walkout by 80,000 grade-school teachers deprived more than 3 million schoolchildren of classes for the fourth day Friday while 2,500 prison employes continued protests and sit-ins for pay hikes, prison reforms and the right to form a labor union.

Report Syria pressuring Palestine

Syria is pressuring Palestinian guerrillas to stop using southern Lebanon as a staging area for raids on Israel, high ranking Christian rightist sources said Firday. The Syrian lobbying appeared aimed at averting a clash with Israel, which has demanded its border with Lebanon be free of both Palestinians and the Syrian-dominated Arab peace-keeping troops in Lebanon. Reports from southern Lebanon Friday indicated Palestinian commandos have pulled back from some areas, but officials did not confirm the retreat.

Meanwhile, the United States is quietly urging Israel and Syria to avoid sudden or unilateral actions on Lebanon's potentially explosive border with Israel, diplomatic sources said Friday. The sources played down the chances of a military clash between Israel and the Syian peacekeeing forces in Lebanon, and said troop movements and warnings by both sides had more political than military significance.

S. Yemen downs Iranian plane

South Yemen forces have shot down an Iranian air force plane operating over the South Arabian Sultanate of Oman, a foreign ministry spokesman said Friday. The downing of the Iranian plane gave rare publicity to one of the quietest and longest wars being conducted against Communist forces in the Middle East. Iran has maintained 3,500 troops in Oman since 1973 to support Oman's 14,000-strong army in its fight against Communist rebels in Dhofar province, which borders South Yemen. The Omani army is directed mainly by some 450 British officers, some on assignment and others on contract to lead the fight against the rebels supported by South Yemen.

Israel sanctioned by UN group

The U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization voted Friday to sanction Israel again for allegedly defying international laws in its archeological excavations of Jerusalem. UNESCO also gave overwhelming approval to a resolution calling for action to strengthen news agencies in poor nations in the hope of balancing the Western dominance in the field of international news.

Ford, Carter have a quiet day

Interrupting a family reunion, President Ford met twice with budget experts and White House aides Friday to map out new federal spending plans in the seclusion of his mountain-top retreat at Camp David, Md.

Meanwhile, President-elect Jimmy Carter secluded himself in his home in Plains, Ga., for the post-Thanksgiving weekend to concentrate on selecting his cabinet and other top officials for his administration.

A TURKISH family dispossessed by Wednesday's earthquake gathers around the ruins of their home with the few belongings they managed to save. More than 3,500 persons are feared dead.

U.S. airlifts supplies to Turkey quake victims

VAN, Turkey (UPI) — Giant U.S. Air Force C-130 cargo jets Friday began airlifting supplies to tens of thousands made homeless by Wednesday's earthquake that killed more than 3,500.

Relief squads of the Red Crescent — Turkey's equivalent to the Red Cross — struggled through a blinding blizzard to relieve victims huddling around salvaged stoves or open fires in the ruins of eastern Turkish towns and villages.

The Turkish Radio said the official death toll had passed 3,500, with more bodies still buried under the rubble. Rescue officials said they still were unable to reach many villages devastated by the quake.

THE AMERICAN supplies — 1,120 tents with individual heating systems, 10,000 blankets and cooking pots — were flown in from the United States Incirlik Air Base in southern Turkey. United States officials in Ankara said 25 C-130s would be taking part in the supply airlift operation.

Foreign aid also was arriving from Italy, Switzerland and West Germany. Red Crescent teams in Istanbul, Ankara and other major cities collected clothes, shoes, socks, blankets and drugs but officials said damaged roads and unseasonably freezing weather hampered distribution to victims.

A relief worker in Ercis, where 149 persons died, said, "Until now we have only received 250 tents, 500 blankets and 3,000 loaves of bread."

"If only I had a shovel," said Mehmet Zeki, who lost his wife, three children and 86-year-old mother. "They died under the bricks and stone, shouting and screaming till morning."

OFFICIALS SAID they received no reports of deaths or damage from an aftershock, measuring 5.5 on the open-ended Richter scale, that struck in the same general area Thursday.

Wednesday's quake, which measured 7.6 on the same scale, was the strongest in Turkey since a quake in 1939 killed 30,000. Another 3,000 died in the Lice quake in southeast Turkey 14 months ago.

Ahmet Yilmaz said he was in his farmyard when the earth began rumbling. "I tried to walk towards the stable, but the stable came toward me. I looked toward the house. It was shaking unbelievably. The stable wall fell on me. The house also collapsed. I dragged myself from under the wall and ran toward the house. I managed to get my badly injured wife from beneath the rubble. But my three-year-old daughter was crushed to death."

Most of the dead were in Muradiye and other towns just north of Lake Van — determined as the quake's epicenter. Only three buildings remained standing in Muradiye, a town with a population of 50,000 before the quake struck.

5 children die as fire sweeps through house

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Five children died in a house fire Friday despite efforts by the three adults in the dwelling to coax the children to crawl along the floors of the smoke-filled home to safety.

"The kids evidently got lost, crawled back to their rooms and they just fell to the floor and died of smoke inhalation," said Fire Chief Paul Warwick. "It's just tragic."

Two of the children who died were the sons of Edward Wayne Coker — Darrell Wayne, 3, and Jimmy Lynn, 2. Also killed were Marty Allen, 7, Sheila Renee Tyer, 6, and George Walter Tipton, 4, the children from two previous marriages of Mrs. Edgar Trout — Coker's sister.

Warwick said Trout smashed an upstairs window with his hand and tossed his 2-year-old son, William, to a man standing in his yard. Then Trout, his wife, Barbara, and Coker leaped to the ground.

"Mr Trout was sitting in a car crying and quite emotionally upset when I arrived at the scene," Warwick said. "We didn't force him, but we had to talk him into going to the hospital — his hands were all burned and cut up."

Trout and his young son were released from Baptist Hospital after treatment for minor injuries. His wife and brother-in-law were hospitalized in satisfactory condition, suffering from broken bones and smoke inhalation.

Warwick said Coker and his two children had moved in with the Trouts and their four children about two weeks ago.

THE CHIEF said four of the dead children were found in their bedrooms and another was discovered on the floor of an upstairs closet, where he had apparently crawled to get away from the heat.

"In a fire like this the heat is so bad, so strong," Warwick said. "The flames engulfed the entire downstairs and just got so hot they were rolling through the house.

"We haven't determined the cause of the fire," said the chief. "The inside of the house is mostly burned away."

11 die after gas line explodes

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Eleven persons were killed and 48 injured Friday in a fiery gas explosion in Tlalnepantla, just outside the city limits. Most of the dead were children, police said.

The explosion sent a wave of blazing gas through 18 houses and shops.

Authorities said they believed the blast was touched off by a mechanical shovel, operated by two men working in road construction, which ruptured the gasoline line. Police were looking for the two men, who have fled the scene.

Some of the victims apparently were still asleep when the blast occurred at 8:25 a.m. Chicago time. Red Cross rescue workers said nine of the dead were children, the youngest only 3 years old.

Authorities have ordered an investigation into the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Stottlemire

Susan M. Self– John Stottlemire

A persimmon and white color scheme was chosen by Susan M. Self, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Self, Arlington Heights, for the ceremony uniting her with John H. Stottlemire, son of the Charles Stottlemires, Mount Prospect. Their wedding took place Oct. 30 at 3:30 p.m. at St. Raymond Catholic Church, Mount Prospect.

Susan wore an ivory organza gown trimmed with Venise lace and appliques of pearl-encrusted Alencon lace. An Alencon lace headpiece secured her cathedral-length veil. She carried a cascade of orchids, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Her attendants wore persimmon gowns with matching capes and picture hats, and carried colonial bouquets of persimmon roses, yellow mums, Abby garnets, eucalyptus and baby's breath.

TERRY PERSCHON, Mount Prospect, was maid of honor. The bride's sisters, Barbara and Rosemary, served as bridesmaids, as did Nancy Glasby, Batavia, the groom's sister.

Best man was Tom Cosky of Spring Grove. Peter Thompson, Mount Prospect, and Ken Self, the bride's cousin, Park Ridge, served as ushers. Groomsmen were the bride's brother, Art; the groom's brother-in-law, Michael Glasby; and John Valentino, Mount Prospect.

The wedding was followed by a reception for 225 guests at Party House, Chicago. Susan and John took a two-week wedding trip to San Francisco and Hawaii. They have made their home in Mount Prospect.

The bride graduated from Prospect High School. Her husband, a Hersey graduate, also attended Harper College.

I did it again — I started my Christmas shopping early yesterday at a handsome enclosed mall shopping center with a hundred stores and plenty of coffee shop stops. (I went with a fellow teacher-friend since we had the day off. So did every other teacher, parent and child in Southern Illinois.)

But with all the enticing shops, I ended up, as usual, in the book store. I always figure, since I can't afford to give the kind of gift I'd like to, I'll give a book about it. My dad will receive a book on vegetable gardening which he could have written himself, my favorite funny neighbor child will receive "One Hundred Worst Riddles" (sample: "What wears a red suit, carries a bag of toys and falls down the chimney?" Answer: Santa Klutz.)

And all my antique friends, by vitue of age or inclination, will receive, of course, books on their favorite collectible. There is a positive spate of them this year, and I'd like to pass along some of the new titles to you.

FOR BEGINNERS or advanced: "Collector's Complete Dictionary of American Antiques" by Frances Phipps (Doubleday and Co. $25). This is a scholarly work but pretty well mentions everything — a good starting point on any subject.

I have mentioned books on prints before, but here's a new one: "Old American Prints for Collectors" by John and Katherine Ebert, (Charles Scribner's Sons, $15). This book includes a good glossary.

"Antiques, Professional Secrets for the Amateur: The Art of Restoration" by Michel Doussy (Quadrangle: The NY Times Book Co. $10) - excellent for the handyman or refinisher. I should have bought it before we started on that old bucket bench which now stands in the middle of the family room on a bunch of newspapers, while the house reeks of varnish. I never think of these projects in the summertime when the windows are open.

"Early New England Gravestone Rubbings" by Edmund Vincent Gillon, Jr. (Dover Publishers, Inc. $3.50). This is a great little book well illustrated with examples of an early American art form.

I EXAMINED A book I had recommended to you before, sight unseen, and am glad to report it is quite complete and probably would be of great help to those who like the Avon containers: "Avon Encyclopedia" by Bud Hastin. It sells for $12.95.

"The Song Sheet" by Helen Westin is a guide to popular music from 1890 to 1945, with current valuations and many color illustrations, $14.95.

One that would appeal to old auto buffs or children, beautifully photographed in color and reasonable: "Fire Engines in Color" by Arthur Ingram and Denis Bishop (MacMillan Publishers, $4.95).

Books on antiques and related subjects are becoming more and more popular, and these are only a small sample of what is available. I'm sure there is a book to fit the interest, or stir one up, in any heart. Of course, most book stores do not and could not stock all the books related to limited fields of collection. Take, for instance, and just off the top of my mind, books about glass objects starting with the letter "C". You might be a collector of carnival, Cambridge, custard, cut, candlesticks, or candy containers. There is a book and usually more than one for each of these.

Some book companies deal exclusively in publications on antiques and collectibles, and if you need a book on a limited or special subject, I might be able to refer you to the proper company. Yes, even if Uncle Charlie collects old razors or Aunt Min likes postal cards from the early 1900s. Write Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Il. 60006, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Marriott's Lincolnshire Resort brought about a new blend of ingredients — the assistant cook, Allan Ehrhart of Palatine, married the pantry supervisor, Cheri Jacobson of Lake Zurich.

Their double-ring wedding ceremony took place Oct. 30 at 4 p.m. at Rolling Meadows Community Church. Cheri is the daughter of Reginald Jacobson of Wildwood, Ill.; Allan's parents are Allan Ehrhart of Mount Prospect and Mrs. Ray Steinbeck of Palatine.

Jaundice a symptom of various diseases

Six years ago I had infectious hepatitis. Recently I came into contact with someone who stated she had yellow jaundice. I would like to know if yellow jaundice is contagious, and, if so, how is it transmitted? I would also like to know if these are similar diseases or what the differences between the two may be.

I have been told that a person who has had hepatitis is not permitted to donate blood. Is this true? Also, what damage is done to the liver if a person is infected with hepatitis a second time?

Jaundice is a sign of many different diseases. It can be caused by pernicious anemia from vitamin B-12 deficiency. Or it can be caused from excess blood destruction in other forms of anemia.

Jaundice can be caused by any number of infections, involving the liver, including yellow fever, and infectious hepatitis. In this instance the liver is no longer able to form bile and eliminate excess pigment.

The liver may be damaged by chemicals — including alcohol — to the extent that it cannot rid the body of pigments that cause jaundice. The liver can also be damaged by cancer.

The drainage of bile from the liver may be blocked, causing jaundice. This can occur from stones in the bile duct, small obstructions in the smallest bile ducts or even a tumor surrounding the bile duct from cancer of the pancreas.

There are two forms of infectious hepatitis that cause jaundice (and both can occur without evident jaundice, too). One type is from a virus in contaminated food or water. This disease is contagious in the way that food poisoning is contagious, and if you do not eat or drink anything containing the virus you will not catch the disease.

The other form of hepatitis was once called serum hepatitis as it is transmitted by the blood. It tends to occur after receiving blood or plasma that contains the virus. It can occur when a cut or break in the skin is exposed to bodily secretions containing the virus. Surgeons have a high risk of being infected, from a nick in the skin, and contamination form a person who harbors the invectious virus. Drug addicts who use contaminated needles are apt to get this form of hepatitis.

The persistence of the virus in blood and bodily secretions has resulted in blood banks trying to avoid obtaining blood from anyone who has ever had the disease, and that ususally means turning down all potential doners who have had jaundice. A blood test is also done to determine if a person has had an infection or is a carrier of the virus.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-8, Living With Your Liver, to give you more information on how the liver works and what causes jaundice. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. You can't tell how much damage will result from infectious hepatitis. Many people recover without any apparent residual damage.

I should add that serum hepatitis (Hepatitis B) can be transmitted in other ways besides needles and blood transfusions. I do not know what kind of jaundice your friend has, but everyone needs to know that this form of hepatitis can also be transmitted by sexual intercourse.

Don't leave heat off when away for winter

Dear Dorothy: We go south every winter. This year we planned to cut down the heat completely. One reason is to eliminate the risk of anything going wrong in the heating system. A second is to help conserve energy. Friends keep saying we run bigger risks in having no heat on. What's your counsel? — Mrs. N.W.D.

Checked this with a battery of experts. All think some heat is a must. They concur in a 55-degree setting being the best. Some mentioned the damage dampness can do, including the possibility of a massive case of mildew. And all suggest it's wise to have a good friend or neighbor check the house periodically to make sure all is in order. One last thing: Shut off outdoor faucets from the inside.

Dear Dorothy: Let me share my quick and easy method for baking bread crumbs. Use whatever bread is on hand, like leftover dinner rolls, French bread, and so forth. Tear the bread into medium-sized pieces and put in the blender, using medium speed. In a few seconds you have the freshest of bread crumbs and you can season them or just use plain. They can be stored in closed containers in refrigerator or freezer for weeks on end. —Kelly Reppe

Dear Dorothy: For burned-on glop on pans or for something sticking to frying pans, use one tablespoon of baking soda and a cup of water. Boil this and the pans will come out clean. —Donna Adams

This works fine on everything but aluminum. Baking soda stains aluminum — every time.

Dear Dorothy: Is it true that it's best to water house plants with water that's been kept standing? — Barbara Mathews

Yes.

Dear Dorothy: Some time back we had our concrete porch enclosed. Instead of going outside, our dog used it occasionally. Each time, I cleaned up with cleanser as quickly as possible, but there is an odor coming from the floor. I'm concerned because we would like to put indoor-outdoor carpeting on the porch. We've used all manner of things — baking soda, vinegar, charcoal. None has helped. What else can be try? —Mrs. C.P.

Hate to have to say this, but unless the cement was properly treated with a sealer, you may not be able to get the odor out. In the state you describe, it would be a disaster to put down any kind of carpeting. The odor would come right through. All I can suggest is leaving it open to the elements for some months.

Flower power

Bouquets benefit some behavior

In what may be the first scientific study of its kind, flowers have been shown to have a beneficial effect on hospitalized psychiatric patients.

Dr. John A. Talbott, associate professor of psychiatry at Payne Whitney Clinic, Cornell University Medical College, N.Y., states that chronic schizophrenics improved in three distinct areas of behavior merely by the presence of flowers in the hospital dining room. Of added interest, he says in the journal Hort Science, is that the improvement took place quickly, in the first week that flowers were placed on dining room tables.

Much has been written about "Flower power" in helping physically and mentally handicapped individuals adjust to their conditions. Although the statements have been made by physicians, psychologists, nurses and other qualified persons, they have always been based on subjective observations, not controlled scientific tests.

THE SIGNIFICANCE of Dr. Talbott's report is that it is believed to be the first verification, using standard testing methods, of the value of horticultural therapy, according to Florists Transworld Delivery. The intensity floral-delivery network, an affiliate of the National Council for Therapy and Rehabilitation through Horticulture, has been keeping hospitals and nursing homes informed on horticultural therapy developments.

Assisting Dr. Talbott in the study were Dr. Daniel Stern, chief of psychiatry research at New York State Psychiatric Institute, and Dr. Joel Ross, Meyer Psychiatric Center, New York.

The presence of yellow chrysanthemums in the patients's dining room resulted in three significant behavior changes: an increase in conversation among the 15 schizophrenics in the experimental; an increase in time spent in the dining room; and an increase in the amount of food consumed.

CITING THE results of his preliminary report as "particularly encouraging," Dr. Talbott notes that previous studies have stressed the "enormous difficulty encountered in affecting the behavior of chronic mental patients." He urges further research into the effectiveness of stimulating the senses of psychiatric patients.

"The presence of the chrysanthemums enhanced morale and positive feelings about working . . ." the study says.

The study was conducted in two consecutive four-week periods, with the nature of the experiment concealed from the patients and hospital staff. The patients were observed in their normal dining room environment in the first four weeks. During the second period, flowering chrysanthemum plants were placed on each table.

Noting that he cannot explain why "flowers exert their effects on mental patients," Dr. Talbott says the beneficial results were visible and occurred with "unexpected rapidity."

Horticultural therapy, the use of flowers and plants as part of a general treatment program, is being increasingly adopted by hospitals and nursing homes across the country. It has recently been endorsed by the network of Veterans' Administration hospitals.

Needy children helped with holiday candles

The Palatine Center of Infant Welfare will sponsor their annual Luminaria sale Saturday, Dec. 11 and Sunday Dec. 12 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Palatine Road Parking Lot, 16 South Bothwell at Palatine Road. Proceeds will go to an area therapeutic nursery school for emotionally disturbed children ages two and a half to six.

Luminaria, meaning "Little Fire," is an age-old custom dating to a colony along the Rio Grande River in Mexico. Originally the Luminaria were small piles of burning pinon wood. Today they are utility candles placed inside brown paper bags with enough sand to hold the candle erect.

The candles are to be lit between 6 and 10 on Christmas Eve. If all the homes on a block or street use Luminaria, it creates a seemingly endless row of lights giving a fairyland effect. Many families entertaining during the holidays find this a great way to decorate the outsides of their homes.

Luminaria, including bags, candles and sand, will be sold in sets of five for $1. (Please bring your own containers for sand.) Instructions for creating the Luminaria will be provided in each set.

Advance orders from Home Owners Associations are welcome. For six kits or more or for further information, please call: Mrs. Ann Kagen 358-5318; Mrs. Rose Baum 397-7270; Mrs. Elaine May 359-2144.

FBI career man tackles auto thefts to terrorism

by TONI GINNETTI

Thousands of miles and 25 years of crime fighting have brought William F. Beane back to where it started.

Chicago in 1951 was a place where the tallest edifice was the Board of Trade building and the most time-consuming investigations for a young rookie FBI agent were interstate auto thefts.

But that was 1951. Chicago is no longer a starting ground. The buildings have grown; kidnapings, terrorism and organized crime have taken the limelight from interestate auto theft, and the rookie has become special agent in charge of the Northern District of Illinois.

"When I came here, I moved into the Atlantic Hotel. That's been torn down," Beane says glancing out his ninth floor window in the Dirksen Federal Building. "Physically, there has been a great change."

A DISTRICT of Columbia native who will take up residence in the Northwest suburbs, Beane, 51, returned to Chicago in August. He assumes the helm of the bureau's district office following the promotion of Richard Held to the bureau's Washington headquarters as the No. 2 man to Director Clarence Kelley.

The move has come after more than two decades of duty in nine cities on criminal assignments that have ranged from international jewel thefts to kidnapings.

And this changed city to which Beane has returned in many ways mirrors the evolution time has brought to his bureau.

"I THINK the role of the FBI has changed," he says. "For example, I worked here on stolen car cases almost exclusively. I devoted a lot of time to interviewing juveniles who had taken a car in Indiana and gone for a joy ride.

"Of course there's the organized crime era. I don't think Director (J. Edgar) Hoover acknowledged in 1951 that there was a Mafia or Cosa Nostra so we did not devote a lot of time to it, not because we didn't think it merited it, but because there were no laws to deal with it. If organized crime robbed a bank, we pursued them as bank robbers.

"But when Bobby Kennedy became the attorney general, he and his brother pushed through Congress a lot of gambling statutes. Organized crime's biggest income is gambling. It's far ahead of whatever is second for them. We have addressed ourselves to those areas because Congress gave us the tools."

The era of "white collar" crime and terrorism also have refocused the bureau's perspective, Beane says. With nearly $200 million embezzled from banks in the last fiscal year — five times the amount taken in robberies — and growing concern with terrorist threats, the FBI's priorities have had to change, he says.

WHAT HAS not changed, however, is the commitment those in the bureau feel for their work, Beane will say.

"I think as a matter of fact the FBI is a very prestigious organization, and I was a very proud guy and I wanted to be part of an organization like that."

Beane's "calling" until 1951 had not been to law enforcement, though. He had left high school to join the Marines in World War II. When the war ended, Beane completed high school and decided to study for the priesthood.

For three years he studied at St. Mary's University in Baltimore, earning a degree before deciding to abandon the religious career.

BEANE THEN was operating elevators in the U.S. Senate. It was there that acquaintances suggested he join the bureau.

"They were hiring a lot of men then," he says. Though the realms of the cloth and law enforcement seem dissimilar, Beane will say there are parallels between the two.

"I think they're both interested in social problems, and both are interested in justice."

Beane's choice 25 years ago of a criminal justice career has shuttled him, his wife and six children to New York, Miami, Washington, D.C.; Houston, Newark, N.J.; San Juan, Puerto Rico; back to New York and then Chicago.

Beane's career during those years spanned the scope of criminal work, from cases like the December, 1968 kidnapping of millionairess Barbara Jane Mackle to heading the bureau's kidnapping and extortion department in Washington and then New York's entire criminal division.

THE WORK has convinced Beane that the bureau is as necessary today as at any time before.

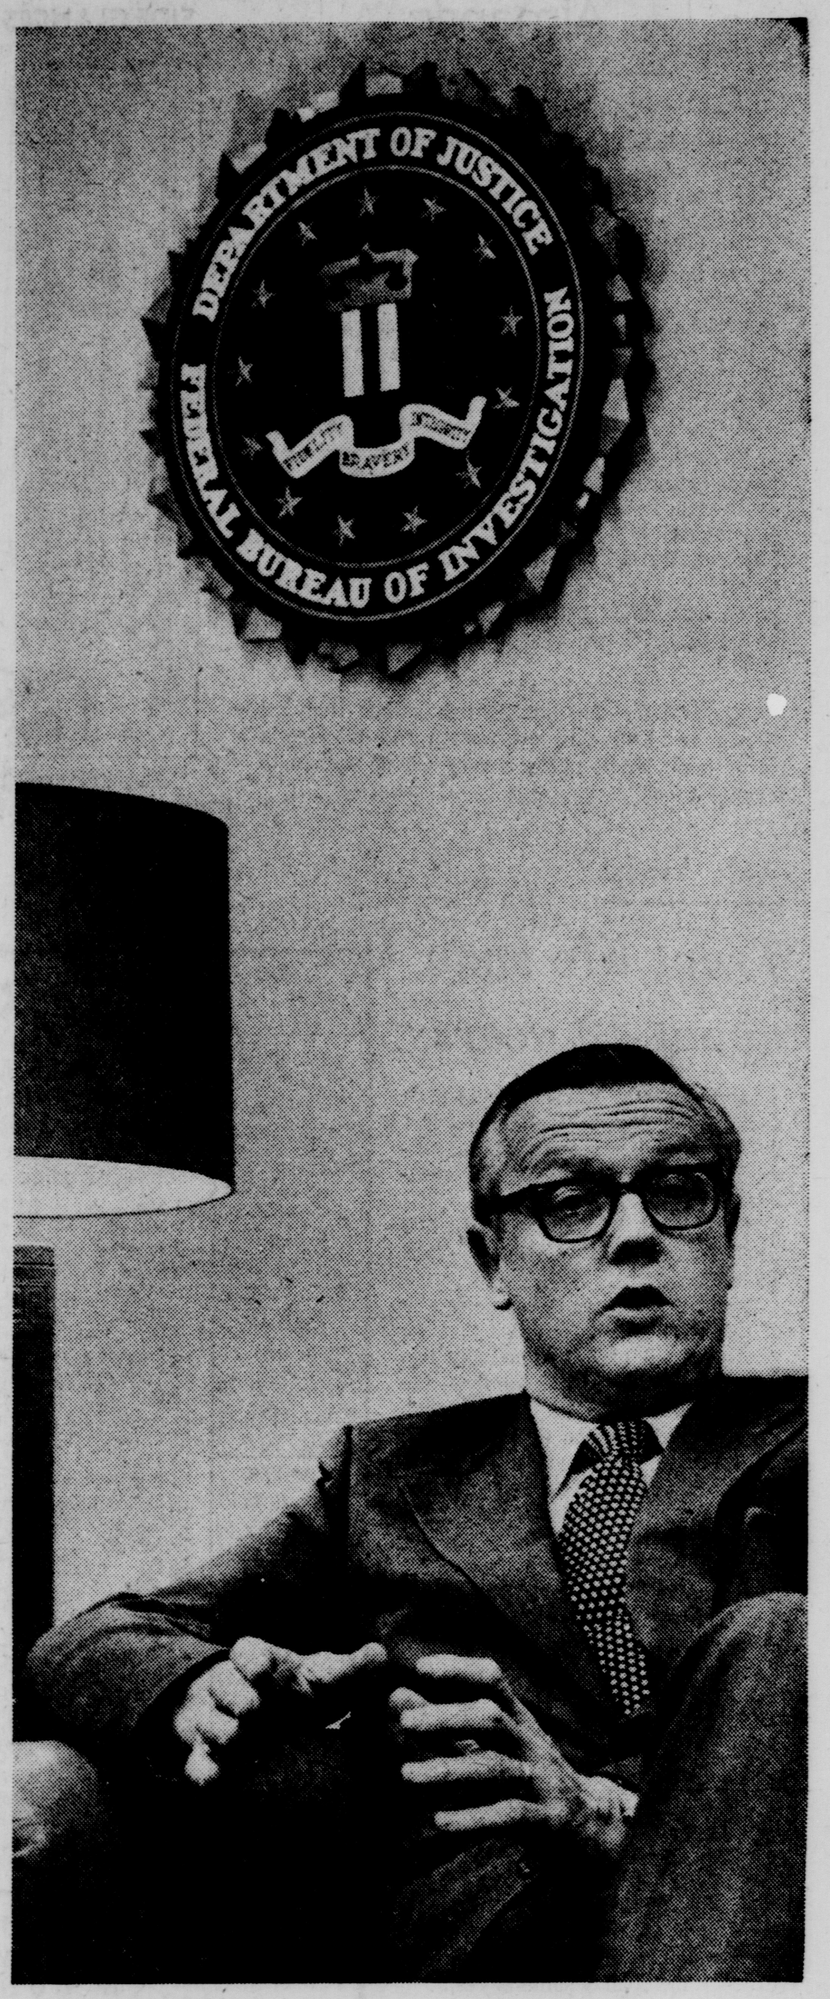
"I think the bureau serves a very legitimate purpose in the United States. We, for many years, have filled the void that state and local agencies can't fill. We're just as legitimate today as ever.

"Has our image suffered? Sure it has. There's no question about that. We made some mistakes. Mr. Hoover made some mistakes.

"I think Mr. Hoover was a tremendous American and human being but he made some mistakes, and I think that perhaps is the crux of the entire thing. The bureau was deified in the media and no one can live up to that image. Maybe it was partly our own fault.

"There are chinks in the armor. We are human and we deal with making choices. But our people here still answer the bell. It comes under the heading of dedication.

"When I see that type of dedication and spirit and that willingness to answer the bell, that's very refreshing to me and I don't think we've lost any of that."



WILLIAM BEANE, the new special agent in charge of the Northern District of Illinois, has headed the FBI's criminal division in New York and the kidnaping and extortion division in Washington, D.C.

FBI agents shot by other agents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A preliminary investigation has shown that two of three FBI agents wounded in foiling a New Jersey bank robbery a week ago were struck by shotgun pellets fired by other agents, the FBI disclosed Friday.

The shotgun pellets that struck at least one of the two may have ricocheted off the pavement, the FBI said in a statement. It has not been determined whether the third agent was wounded by pellets or flying glass, the report said.

One robber waiting in a getaway car was killed, another was wounded and a third was apprehended at the heavily guarded bank where an informer had tipped the FBI that a holdup was planned, the statement said.

THE FBI SAID all agents were correctly positioned out of the line of possible crossfire when two armed men entered an outer door of the Wood-Ridge National Bank in Wood-Ridge, N.J., but found an inner door locked.

The driver of the intended getaway car, Franklin Vuono, 59, of Lakewood, N.J., fired first when agents staked out across from the bank ordered him to surrender, the FBI said, and agents returned the fire.

One agent positioned behind the teller's counter went to the front door to help the agents outside, "thinking that the bank robbers would escape," and was hit by other agents' shotgun pellets, the statement said.

"Preliminary investigation reveals that shotgun pellets may have ricocheted off the pavement of the street under the bank robbers' car and through the door of the bank," the statement said.

"AFTER THIS agent was wounded, three others left their cover to go to the wounded agent's aid and at least one of them was struck by shotgun pellets. It has not been fully determined if another agent's wounds were caused by shotgun pellets or broken glass from the window."

The wounded agents were identified as Donald Alman, most seriously hurt, Glen Woodeshick and Ralph Frank. An FBI spokesman said, "All are in good stable condition."

The other suspects, both of Jersey City, were identified as Vincent Amato, 52, who was critically injured, and John J. Colarco, 30, who was apprehended.

The New York Times said it learned from sources familiar with the inquiry that the FBI provided the getaway car to the robbers through its informer. An FBI spokesman, questioned before the prepared statement was issued, said he could not confirm that account.

Ask Andy

Trout life span about 12 years

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Jerry Dyck, 12, of Lethbridge, Alta., Canada, for his question:

COULD YOU PLEASE TELL ME ABOUT A FISH CALLED THE TROUT?

The trout belong to the same family of fish Salmonidae. The fish that we generally call trout are actually two separate divisions of this family — the genus Salmo and the genus Salvelinus. Included in the first group are the Rainbow, Cutthroat, Brown, Golden and Steelhead. The other group includes the Dolly Varden, Brook, Lake and Arctic Char.

The Brown trout, originally a native of European waters, is the only trout with black and red spots on both sides. Most Browns weigh somewhat less than seven pounds, but a few may tip the scales at 40 pounds. The average age of a Brown is 12 years.

The Brook, or Speckled, trout is a native of the Northeastern section of the United States, but it has been introduced into the waters of the Western states with a fair degree of success. The Brook trout is one of America's favorite game fish. If it avoids the lures of hopeful fishermen, it can expect a life span of some 12 years.

Almanac

by United Press International

Today is Saturday, Nov. 27, the 332nd day of 1976 with 34 to follow.

The moon is almost at its first quarter.

The morning stars are Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius.

American historian Charles Beard was born Nov. 27, 1874.

On this day in history:

• In 1901, the War Dept. authorized creation of the Army War College to instruct commissioned officers.

• In 1945, President Harry Truman named Gen. George Marshall special representative to China.

• In 1956, President Dwight D. Eisenhower denied that differences over the Suez Canal had weakened American-British-French accord in the Western Alliance.

• In 1962, all 97 persons aboard a jetliner bound for the United States were killed when it crashed in Peru.

A thought for the day: British author Rudyard Kipling said, "The silliest women can manage a clever man, but it needs a very clever woman to manage a fool."

SIDE GLANCES by Gill Fox

FUNNY BUSINESS by Roger Bollen

BROTHER JUNIPER

"That looks like the same slug you donated LAST week."

Ask Andy

Trout life span about 12 years

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Jerry Dyck, 12, of Lethbridge, Alta., Canada, for his question:

COULD YOU PLEASE TELL ME ABOUT A FISH CALLED THE TROUT?

The trout belong to the same family of fish Salmonidae. The fish that we generally call trout are actually two separate divisions of this family — the genus Salmo and the genus Salvelinus. Included in the first group are the Rainbow, Cutthroat, Brown, Golden and Steelhead. The other group includes the Dolly Varden, Brook, Lake and Arctic Char.

The Brown trout, originally a native of European waters, is the only trout with black and red spots on both sides. Most Browns weigh somewhat less than seven pounds, but a few may tip the scales at 40 pounds. The average age of a Brown is 12 years.

The Brook, or Speckled, trout is a native of the Northeastern section of the United States, but it has been introduced into the waters of the Western states with a fair degree of success. The Brook trout is one of America's favorite game fish. If it avoids the lures of hopeful fishermen, it can expect a life span of some 12 years.

Society completes task of translating Good News

World of religion
by David E. Anderson

When the American Bible Society published its common-language version of the New Testament a decade ago, "Good News for Modern Man," it shot to the top of the best seller lists.

Since that time, the idea of a Bible in an English everyone could understand has proven durable; there now are some 50 million copies of Good News for Modern Man in circulation.

On Dec. 1, the ABS will complete the job it started with the New Testament by publishing the complete Bible — "The Good News Bible" — which will contain both the popular New Testament and a new translation of the Old Testmanet.

THE NOTION for the Good News Bible goes back to the end of World War II and the rising influence of the United States — and the English language — throughout the world.

In the late 1950s, the Bible Society began to consider making a translation that would communicate to a wider audience than current translations, such as the 17th Century King James version. For many readers, especially those who were learning English as a second language, the King James version "too elevated or old fashioned" to be understood easily.

"A Bible translation was needed in the kind of English they spoke daily in their homes, schools and businesses," the society said.

In November 1961, the society assigned Dr. Robert G. Bratcher, once a missionary in Brazil and then a research associate on the society's translation staff, the task of producing a translation of the New Testament "which would be clear and simple for the modern reader, but also would remain accurate to the original Greek."

IT TOOK Bratcher three years and the result was Good News for Modern Man.

The society, with Bratcher as the head of a team of seven translators, began working on the Old Testament in 1967.

The translators used what they called "dynamic-equivalent" translation principles, aimed at being faithful to the original Hebrew, Aramaic and Greek texts while attempting to speak in clear, natural English, avoiding the extremes of substandard diction and literary-technical diction.

"The accuracy for which the translators aimed," the society said, "is to be measured by the degree to which today's reader of the translation understands the meaning of the text in essentially the same way as the reader of the original text did."

THE GOOD News Bible conforms to the historic Bible Society policy of not including any doctrinal notes or comments on the text.

Available in both hardcover and softcover, the Good News Bible is certain to be as popular as its predecessor New Testament version.

Society completes task of translating Good News

World of religion
by David E. Anderson

When the American Bible Society published its common-language version of the New Testament a decade ago, "Good News for Modern Man," it shot to the top of the best seller lists.

Since that time, the idea of a Bible in an English everyone could understand has proven durable; there now are some 50 million copies of Good News for Modern Man in circulation.

On Dec. 1, the ABS will complete the job it started with the New Testament by publishing the complete Bible — "The Good News Bible" — which will contain both the popular New Testament and a new translation of the Old Testmanet.

THE NOTION for the Good News Bible goes back to the end of World War II and the rising influence of the United States — and the English language — throughout the world.

In the late 1950s, the Bible Society began to consider making a translation that would communicate to a wider audience than current translations, such as the 17th Century King James version. For many readers, especially those who were learning English as a second language, the King James version "too elevated or old fashioned" to be understood easily.

"A Bible translation was needed in the kind of English they spoke daily in their homes, schools and businesses," the society said.

In November 1961, the society assigned Dr. Robert G. Bratcher, once a missionary in Brazil and then a research associate on the society's translation staff, the task of producing a translation of the New Testament "which would be clear and simple for the modern reader, but also would remain accurate to the original Greek."

IT TOOK Bratcher three years and the result was Good News for Modern Man.

The society, with Bratcher as the head of a team of seven translators, began working on the Old Testament in 1967.

The translators used what they called "dynamic-equivalent" translation principles, aimed at being faithful to the original Hebrew, Aramaic and Greek texts while attempting to speak in clear, natural English, avoiding the extremes of substandard diction and literary-technical diction.

"The accuracy for which the translators aimed," the society said, "is to be measured by the degree to which today's reader of the translation understands the meaning of the text in essentially the same way as the reader of the original text did."

THE GOOD News Bible conforms to the historic Bible Society policy of not including any doctrinal notes or comments on the text.

Available in both hardcover and softcover, the Good News Bible is certain to be as popular as its predecessor New Testament version.

Seating system's built-in look an illusion

At last there's an idea for a seating system that doesn't rely on coffee tables and end tables! If you have a drink in hand, or some stitchery, you need only reach behind you for a resting place. And a radio or mini TV set can be a close comfort, along with good reading lights, books you're halfway through and an apple or two!

This good idea comes from Charleton, the manufacturer of the group shown today. A carpenter built it for Charleton's showroom — and it shows the versatility of the modular seating concept.

The Charleton "Dimensions" group, with its deep-seated units, mobile ottomans and richly textured Herculon knitted upholstery, has the look of built-in units. And the addition of the 18-inch shelving and storage lends a permanency to the whole area.

BUT THAT permanent quality is only an illusion. If and when the movers ring the bell, all components separate for easy transition to a new environment.

Another idea worth noting in this setting is the wall treatment. Picking up on the earthbound character of the Herculon upholstery, the designers created a treescape for the two walls. Plain old mailing tape, the kind used to seal big packages, has been lightly mounted to the walls in tree-trunk and tree-branch shapes.

On moving day the trees whisk off, along with the furnishings. And a new idea can be executed to suit the next wall space.

As with any surfaces that are not your very own . . . do the neighborly thing and check the landlord before tacking up his or her freshly painted walls! Sometimes the goodwill generated by asking will get you a quick okay.

EVEN WITH the built-in look of this Charleton seating group, its story is one of quick exit. The handsome modular components are upholstered in a richly textured knitted fabric of Herculon olefin. The units are separate but equal to the 18-inch shelving that surrounds them. You can take it all with you, including the stick-em tape treescape.

'Sight plan' key element in high-density building

High-density building today starts with a site plan and ends with a "sight plan." Call it "the jewelry of planned unit development," as William Maybrook does, or just plain "landscaping."

By whatever name, it is the planting of living things, the contour of the land and the appearance and arrangement of buildings — that visual first impression — that more and more often tempts a home shopper to say: "This is it!"

Maybrook is vice president of Lexington Development Corp., which has built and sold over 400 condominiums in the last two years at the Lexington Green coach home community in Schaumburg. More land is being added to the complex so that another 220 homes may be offered. A total of more than 700 homes will make Lexington Green one of the largest condominium complexes in the Midwest.

"IT WAS quite an experience," said Larry Pugsley of Pugsley and LaHaie, Palatine, landscaper architects for Lexington Green. He was recalling the fundamental concern for the "sight plan" when the community was still only a site plan.

"The developers and I were out wading around in the mud, making decisions on where to locate buildings. Right then, units were moved and streets changed to save trees."

"There were some tough decisions," said Maybrook. "We had to increase our landscaping budget as we moved along, especially in parts of the development that had less heavy growth. But the finished product has been worth it."

Two-and three-bedroom homes at Lexington Green are priced from $34,490 to $40,490, and there are just 19 left. A total of 430 have been sold.

What makes Lexington Green so attractive is apparent before a visitor enters the beautifully furnished models. There is an earth-solid feeling of quiet strength and permanence rising from the broad, curving commons through the natural-fronted buildings to the waving tree tops. It was designed that way and Peter Bianchini, Lexington's vice president of operations, explained how.

"WE INTENDED each homeowner to have a sense of privacy and his own yard as though he were living in a single-family home," said Bianchini. "Therefore, we spent as much thought and effort on the backs of these buildings the real living areas — as the fronts, using a setback arrangement for patios and balconies to open on these rich common areas.

"We designed each building to look as much like a single-family home as possible," said Bianchini, "not an easy task with a 146-foot long two-story building that includes eight garages."

"The purpose of angling the buildings away from each other is to lead the eye to a distant point for a feeling of visual space. This is where the green belts, the common areas, are so important," Bianchini said.

He noted that about $5,000 per building was spent on the actual landscaping, including sod, foundation plantings, and large shade and ornamental trees in the common areas.

Pugsley planted many trees that are higher than the 25-foot roof lines of the buildings.

The coach houses are set on streets with sweeping and graceful curves and around landscaped cul de sacs.

"One street was moved just to build an island and save three trees," said Pugsley.

The new addition to Lexington Green will be located on more rolling and wooded land, just across the street on Meacham Road, next door to the new Schaumburg Nature Preserve.

Lexington Green also offers the Lexington Lodge and Swim Club with its resident lounge, stone wood-burning fireplace, kitchen for private parties and shower rooms for the adjacent swimming and wading pools.

WHILE BEARS' middle linebacker Don Rives can usually be found grinding up an opposing halfback, he takes time here to grind out some cheese for a Mexican dinner with his wife, Sammye, in their Arlington Heights apartment. "We both cook Mexican food because we both think we're pretty good at it," said Sammye.

A football life

by BOB GALLAS

You can't blame Sammye Rives if she relates her life to football.

Ask her when she married Don, linebacker of the Chicago Bears, and she'll tell you a week before the Sun Bowl. Ask where they spent their honeymoon and she'll answer Hawaii — "while Donald played in the Hula Bowl."

After all, she and football courted long before Don ever came along. Her pastor often dismissed Sunday services early so his congregation wouldn't be late for the kickoff of the Dallas Cowboys' games.

"I DON'T like to say that football life is a problem," said Sammye, a strikingly pretty blonde who speaks with a drawl worthy of any Texan. "There are always so many things going on and so many things to see and do that you never get in a rut. It's always interesting."

A genuine football fan and a student of the game, Sammye is usually at Don's side at home in the evening as he studies game films of the upcoming opponent.

She admits she often falls asleep during the film, unless of course, it's of the Cowboys. And on the Rives' only day off during the week, it's a safe bet that they'll be watching Monday night football, either at home or at the home of a teammate.

Born, raised and schooled in Texas, the two still maintain a home in Dumas, Tex., but spend six months of the year in the Northwest suburbs during the football season. "We have two worlds and two sets of friends," said Sammye, who married Don midway through their senior year at Texas Tech, where Don was a two-time all-Southwest Conference pick for the Red Raiders.

With Don at practice five days a week and away every Saturday night and most of Sunday (the Bears check into a hotel as a team every Saturday night even when they play a home game the next day), time together is at a premium, but nothing compares to the loneliness every summer when Rives is sequestered for eight weeks at the Bears' training camp.

"THIS YEAR Donald left for camp on July 6 and I didn't see him again for five weeks," said Sammye. "Then for the next three weeks we got to eat dinner together after practice on Wednesdays and he could spend Sunday evenings at home. I was in hog heaven.

"It's really hard when your best friend is gone for eight weeks, but it's part of the job," said Sammye, who spends the first five weeks of camp in Texas before coming north and then moves in with Linda Hrivnak, whose husband Gary plays tight end for the Bears. The Hrivnaks live year round in Wheeling.

She watches home games like any other Bear fan, from a seat in the stands and road games on television in their Arlington Heights apartment. When Don returns Sammye is always ready to act as a sounding board.

"The first thing I ask him is how he thinks he did. I can usually tell when he's played well, but it's hard for me to tell when he's played badly."

LAST YEAR, Don dislocated a bone in his foot during the second game of the season and spent the rest of the year watching from the sidelines. That made Sammye's job just a little harder.

"I could see the depression setting in on Saturday nights when the rest of the team would be reporting to the hotel or leaving for a road game, and I'd really have to work at keeping him busy. Sundays, well I wouldn't even try.

"He's more in control of his emotions now than when we were in college, but sometimes, I'm sure he'd just like to let out a yell."

Having two homes has made for a lot of cooperation between Sammye and other Bears wives. "We all bring different things up here, like one will bring the ironing board, another the vacuum and another the crockpot. Then we just share the things around."

SAMMYE HAS also learned self control, which she has to practice occasionally at football games.

"Sometimes, someone nearby will start yelling, getting on Don for something and things get a little tense.

"I'd just like to turn around and yell back."

Allsmiller breaks area scoring mark

by KEITH REINHARD

It happened at the free throw line with 2:08 remaining in the third period.

At the time just about everyone in the Niles West gym was more preoccupied with the score. Canning a pair of charity pitches would pull Buffalo Grove to within a point of New Trier West.

Swish . . . went the first one. It was point number 1,562 and a 13-year-old record had finally been tied.

SWISH . . . went the second one. Point number 10 for the night for Brian Allsmiller. Point number 57 for the young season.

And it was point number 1,563 since Allsmiller had first donned a Bison uniform at the outset of his freshman season, thus ending a quest for probably the most publicized mark in Herald area sports history.

"It wasn't a very impressive performance," offered Allsmiller of his 12-point showing for the night. He was still grinning though, because Buffalo Grove had rallied in the fourth quarter behind another four-year varsity vet — Mike Ledna — to squeeze out a 51-48 triumph over the Cowboys.

"I'm glad it's over with," the 6-8 redhead added. "It's a nice record to break but one less thing to be concerned about now. The team has a lot of other goals to shoot for this year."

JUST ABOUT that time Bison head coach Paul Grady came over and ordered his super center to go back into the locker room to ice down his legs. "It would be nice to say that Brian hasn't been playing up to snuff because of the record, but the truth of the matter is that he's been playing with an awful lot of pain. He seemed better than usual when we came over here tonight, but he was hurting as the game wore on."

Hurting or not, Allsmiller bagged a dozen points and the record for career scoring set by Ron Kozlicki at Palatine High School back in 1963 was finally shattered. While Ron himself now resides in California and wasn't immediately aware of the record eclipse, his parents were both in the Indian gym cheering on Allsmiller as much as the Bison fans.

"I'D LIKE TO see it happen," Kozlicki had remarked during a phone interview several years back when Hersey's Dave Corzine was zeroing in on the mark. "Records are made to be broken."

It wasn't broken back then. Nor by Wheeling's Roger Wood several years further back in time. The magic mark had endured through the assaults of others too — Huskie Andy Pancratz and Prospect's Tom Lundstedt . . . Ken Pollitz of Elk Grove and Jon McIlraith of Schaumburg.

All of them had passed the 1,000 mark but none except Kozlicki prior to Allsmiller could muster up those next 500 points.

BRIAN DIDN'T find the final few tallies especially easy himself. Grove's own tenacious defense was matched by New Trier's and after hitting a layup and a 10-footer from the baseline in the first quarter, Allsmiller was limited to a pair of free throws in the second period.

The Cowboys, meanwhile, hit at the halftime buzzer to take a 22-21 lead into the dressing room.

With 6:25 to go in the third stanza Allsmiller hit from the key on an out-of-bounds play, moving his team on top 25-24 and moving within a point of Kozlicki's mark. He had a try at the record at 4:43 from behind the bucket but was way wide. At 3:41 his 10-footer bounced off the rim.

Then with 2:08 left in period three Brian was jammed by 6-3 NTW pivotman Dan Franz underneath. One official called for a jump ball, but the other overruled and awarded Allsmiller two chances from the line.

THE VERDICT was still in doubt though even after the record had been broken. Fred Kruse came off the bench to hit a pair of mid-range jumpers moments later and the Grove moved ahead 33-32 after three periods.

In the fourth quarter Ledna went wild, striking for 14 points. He hit 10 of them in a row, pulling the Bison from a 36-35 deficit into a five-point lead they maintained on-and-off the rest of the way for their third straight triumph of the year and second of the tourney.

Buffalo Grove was scheduled to play at 12:30 Saturday against the winner of an Evanston-Libertyville hookup. The title contest is to be televised.

GRADY NOTED after the narrow triumph Friday that his charges still have a long way to go. "Ledna had a super fourth quarter, but we need that kind of play on a more consistent level. Kruse came off the bench for the third game in a row and gave us a great lift and (Fred) Heesch played well again tonight, but we're still not getting the good over-all performance. I saw many more things wrong than I did right out there."

"And," he added, "we're always going to be affected by the health of Allsmiller. We can go as far as his sore shins carry us."

SCORER'S REWARD. Mothers of two area record setters buff the Herald's new all-time area scoring leader, Brian Allsmiller of Buffalo Grove. At left is Brian's mother. On the right is the mother of Ron Kozlicki, who owned the mark from 1963 until Brian surpassed it during a 51-48 Bison win over New Trier West at Niles West Friday.

ATLANTA'S Hilliard Graves makes an unconventional shot on goal as he slides on the ice after being tripped up by Gilles Marotte of St. Louis Friday night. Blues goalie Eddie Johnston deflects the puck.

Alex Agase fired as Purdue's coach

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Purdue football coach Alex Agase's contract will not be renewed, University president Arthur Hansen announced Friday.

The announcement came only six days after the Boilermakers ended their fourth consecutive losing season under Agase by dropping their traditional season-ending finale to state rival Indiana, 20-14.

Hansen indicated Agase's entire staff will be replaced unless the new coach, to be chosen in a nationwide search, decides to retain any of the assistants.

AGASE THUS became the second Big Ten coach this week to get the ax. Illinois' Bob Blackman's contract was terminated Monday.

Citing the need for a "strong competitive team," Hansen said it seemed "prudent to make a change . . . at this time."

The dismissal of Agase came just three weeks after he was honored as UPI's "Coach of the Week" for leading Purdue to a 16-14 victory over Rose Bowl-bound Michigan — the biggest upset of the college football season.

It was thought the triumph would save Agase's job. But when the Boilermakers lost to arch-rival Indiana Saturday for the first time in five years, speculation mounted that he would be fired.

Soderholm signs with White Sox

Eric Soderholm, former Minnesota Twins' infielder, agreed Friday to terms with the Chicago White Sox, the second free agent from the re-entry draft signed by the Sox in the past 48 hours.

White Sox' President Bill Veeck signed former Chicago Cubs' pitcher Steve Stone Wednesday.

Soderholm, 28, underwent knee surgery after the 1975 season and did not play in 1976. White Sox' club physician, Dr. Sid Shafer, examined him earlier this week and said he now has a well-functioning knee.

Starting with the Twins in 1971, Soderholm played second, third, and shortstop. His career batting with the Twins was .257 in 407 games, and in 1975 he battd .286, had 11 home runs and 58 RBI in 117 games before going on the disabled list Aug. 21.

Illinois wins, Northwestern fails

Paced by guard Audie Matthews' 18 points, Illinois led throughout the game and withstood a final minute flurry Friday night to down St. Louis University 68-65 in both schools' basketball opener.

With 1:20 left in the game in St. Louis the Billikens outscored the Illini 8-1 and freshman center Johnny Parker's dunk shot pulled St. Louis to within one point at 66-65 with 16 seconds to go. However, St. Louis guard Bill Moulder was called for a foul on the throw-in and Rob Judson sank two free throws to complete the scoring.

Center Mark Young scored 16 points and grabbed 11 rebounds and Daryl Strickland added 14 points and 14 rebounds to lead Fairfield to a 92-74 victory over Northwestern in the first round of the Joe Lapchick Memorial Tournament.

Fairfield enjoyed a good shooting night, hitting 48 per cent from the field and sinking 40 of 49 free throws. Northwestern, led by Bill McKinney's 24 points, shot only 35.8 per cent from the field.

Atlanta, Pittsburgh win in NHL

Smoothpassing Guy Chouinard set up Atlanta's first goal and scored the second Friday night to lead the Flames to a 5-2 victory over the St. Louis Blues in National Hockey League game in Atlanta.

It was the sixth consecutive home game without a loss for the Flames.

St. Louis scored in the first 47 seconds on Ted Irvine's slapshot from 10 feet, and the Blues dominated the first 10 minutes of play.

Rookie Greg Malone scored on goal and assisted on another in helping lead the Pittsburgh Penquins to a 3-1 victory over the Cleveland Barons in Richfield, Ohio.

Oregon sends head coach packing

EUGENE, Ore. — The University of Oregon today fired Don Read as head football coach.

Read's dismissal follows his third losing season, and with a year still to go on his $30,000 contract.

Athletic Director John Caine issued a statement which read, "Don Read, head coach of the University of Oregon football team, today was relieved of his duties. The search for a successor begins immediately."

Read's teams in three years won but three Pac-8 football games, and two of those victories were over Oregon State, which shared the Pac-8 cellar with the Ducks in the 1976 season.

Dorsett, Pitt show class; Oklahoma shades Nebraska

Unstoppable Tony Dorsett, playing in his last regular season college game, rushed for 224 yards and two touchdowns Friday night, becoming the first collegian to crash the 6,000 yard rushing mark, to lead top-ranked and Sugar Bowl-bound Pittsburgh to 24-7 victory over cross-state rival Penn State and the Panthers' first undefeated season since 1929.

Dorsett, who pushed his career total to 6,082 yards on 38 carries, scored on runs of 6 and 40 yards, and during the game he broke two more NCAA records and tied three more. It enabled the leading Heisman Trophy candidate to end his regular season, four-year career holding or sharing 14 NCAA marks.

The records Dorsett tied during the game were most 100 yard rushing games in a season, 11; a career record of 33 also held by Archie Griffin, and most touchdowns scored in a career, 59.

IN LINCOLN, Neb., Elvis Peacock ran for three touchdowns, the last one from two yards out with 38 seconds to play, to lift Oklahoma to a 20-17 upset of eighth-ranked Nebraska and a tie for its fifth consecutive Big Eight championship.

By virtue of Oklahoma's win, Colorado, co-champion along with Oklahoma and Oklahoma State, will represent the Big Eight in the Orange Bowl, while Nebraska goes to the Bluebonnet Bowl.

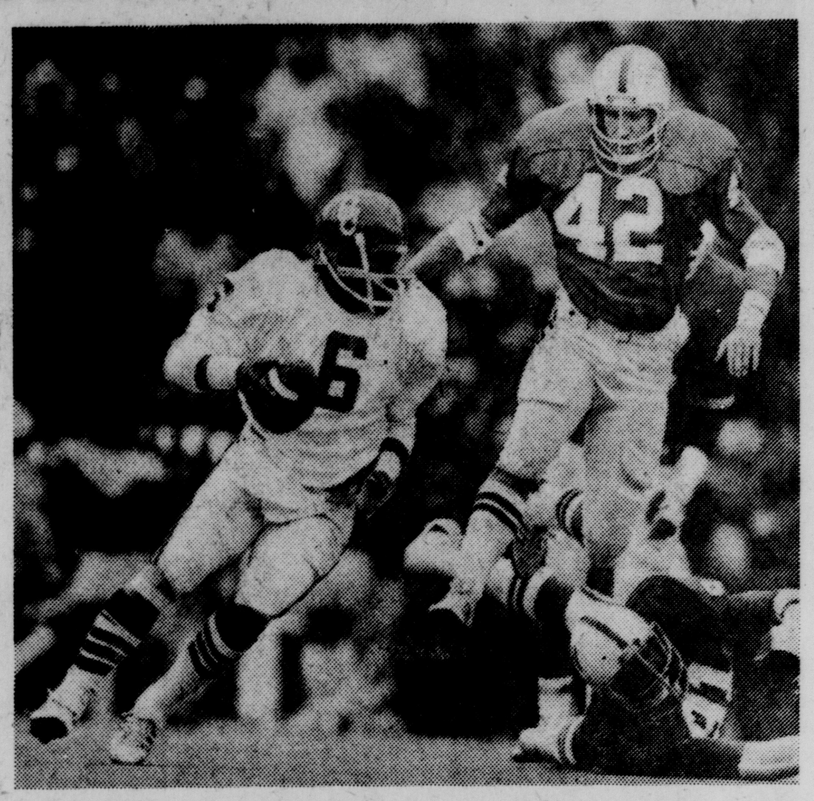
Oklahoma earlier accepted a Fiesta Bowl bid and Oklahoma State has agreed to appear in the Tangerine Bowl.

PEACOCK'S final touchdown capped an 85-yard, eight-play drive which saw the Sooners, who turned to a razzle dazzle passing game in the closing moments, complete their only two passes of the day for 54 yards.

After taking over on their own 15, reserve halfback Woody Shepard threw a 22-yard pass to Steve Rhodes on the Sooners' first throwing attefpt of the afternoon.

Faced with a third and 19 from the Nebraska 34 with 58 seconds to play, Oklahoma quarterback Thomas Lott, who had cofpleted only two of 13 passes coming into the game, hit Rhodes with a short pass and he threw a lateral pass to Peacock who raced to the two-yard line before running out of bounds.

Peacock, who had a one-yard scoring run in the first quarter and a 50-yard touchdown jaunt early in the fourth quarter, scored the game-winning touchdown on the next play.



TERRY LOTT, University of Oklahoma quarterback, races down the field with the football as Nebraska's Kerry Weinmaster leaps a fallen teammate in hot pursuit Friday afternoon. Oklahoma won in the closing seconds, 20-17.

Preps to settle 4A, 5A crowns

NORMAL, Ill. — The larger schools swing into action here today in the Illinois prep football championships.

Three champions were crowned Friday with Hampshire (1A), Fulton (2A) and Geneseo (3A) taking the top prizes in the rain and cold at Hancock Stadium.

Defending 4A champion Joliet Catholic, with an 11-1 mark, plays unbeaten Danville, 12-0, in today's first game at 2:30 p.m.

St. Laurence, ranked No. 1 in Illinois, will put its 12-0 record on the line against Glenbard West, 11-1, for the 5A championship at 7:30 p.m.

WAYNE STRADER dove two yards for the winning touchdown with 65 seconds to play to give Geneseo Darnell a 20-12 win over Metamora and capture the Class 3-A state championship.

The Geneseo victory ended Metamora's winning streak, the longest in the state, at 30 games, and denied the Redbirds a second straight 3-A championship. It was Geneseo's 13th straight win and ended Metamora's season with a 12-1 record.

A rainstorm continued throughout the first half and the artificial turf was slippery for the entire contest, hampering the ball handling of both teams. Geneseo lost the ball five times on fumbles and Metamora six times, and the bobbles were key breaks in the contest.

STRADER WAS the major offensive threat for the winners and scored all three of their touchdowns, carrying the ball 34 times for 188 yards. His first touchdown came on a one-yard run and the second on a 36-yard run.

IT TAKES three Gillespie High School tacklers to bring down Fulton halfback Jim Snyder in Class 2-A football championship Friday afternoon in Normal. Fulton won an overtime thriller, 8-0.

Two of the Metamora fumbles were most costly. The Redbirds were driving for a go-ahead touchdown in the last period when Jeff Selburg fumbled and lost the ball on the Geneseo one-yard line.

Geneseo then drove to the Metamora 10, where Strader fumbled and lost the ball. But that bobble evened up when Vic Friederich, back to punt, fumbled and Geneseo took over on the Metamora 8. Strader then scored the winning touchdown on his third straight carry into the line.

Stan Walker scored four touchdowns, two of them on record punt returns of 78 and 79 yards, and passed for one touchdown to lead Hampshire to the Class 1A football championship with a record setting 47-6 victory over defending champion Concord Triopia.

Hampshire's win came on the largest number of points ever rolled up in the championship games of the state tournament now in its third year and the victory broke a 24-game winning streak for Triopia, 13-0 last year and 11-0 this year heading into Friday's game.

Walker ran one yard and Kent Nussbaum converted to give Hampshire a 7-6 lead at 2:49 of the second period.

Less than four minutes later, John Gehringer ran 16 yards for a touchdown and, when Concord had to punt, Walker returned the kick 79 yards.

AFTER THE 19-point second period for the Whippurs, Walker passed to Gehringer for 37 yards and a touchdown, and Johnny Newman ran 38 yards to score.

The Whippurs also counted 14 points in the last period when Walker made his 78 yard punt return for a touchdown and then ran 22 yards for the last touchdown of the game with :50 remaining.

JIM NAGEL completed an 11-yard touchdown pass to Matt Miller on a fake field goal on the fourth play of overtime Friday to give the Fulton Steamers an 8-0 win over Gillespie and the Class 2A championship.

The two teams played to a 0-0 tie in the regulation four 12-minute periods on a slippery and wet artificial field on which Fulton fumbled 10 times and lost the ball seven times. Then they went into the second overtime game in the three year state playoff history and prospects looked dim for Fulton, sixth ranked in the state in the 1A-2A-3A category, when a motion penalty set the Steamers back five yards before they had run their first play.

Their chances appeared no brighter as two running plays made only four yards and a Nagel pass was incomplete in the end zone.

BUT THEN FULTON lined up for a field goal try with Nagel holding the ball. Instead of putting it down to be kicked, he ran to his right and when hemmed in he passed to Miller who was sliding on his knees in the end zone when he caught the ball for the only score of the game.

Jim Snyder ran for a two-point conversion to put the pressure on Gillespie which would have been forced to try for a two point conversion had it scored.

Gillespie got its chance from the 10-yard line and Jim Byots lost one yard on his carry, then made nine yards on the next two carries to give Gillespie fourth and goal on the 2 with one play remaining.

Mitch Stierwalt tried to sweep the outside left end and was swarmed short of the goal line by the Gillespie defenders to wipe out the Miners' last chance.

Bulls' losing streak 10

Wilbur Holland scored a career high 30 points Friday night, but it still wasn't enough as Seattle whipped the Bulls, 101-97 for the longest Chicago Bull losing streak in history.

The Supersonics protected an 8-10 point lead with 10 minutes left, but Holland kept applying offensive pressure, hitting four key buckets to pull the Bulls within 93-89 with 4:01 remaining.

Fred Brown cashed two key field goals inside two minutes left to boost Seattle back into an eight-point bulge and the clock became the Supersonics' biggest weapon.

IN OTHER ACTION around the National Basketball Assn., Friday night, the Kansas City Kings got 28 points each from Ron Boone and Scott Wedman and weathered a second-half rally to beat the Denver Nuggets, 120-110.

Julius Erving scored 24 points, including six in a fourth-quarter Philadelphia spurt that broke open a tight game, to pace the 76ers to a 114-103 NBA victory over the New York Knicks.

Bob McAdoo (25) and Randy Smith (24) broke out of scoring slumps and all five Buffalo starters hit double figures as the Braves halted a six-game losing streak with a 124-119 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

Darnell Hillman scored 25 points to lead Indiana to its fourth straight victory, 109-98 over Milwaukee. The loss for the Bucks was their eighth in a row.

BOBBY "BINGO" SMITH scored 22 points and provided key final-quarter baskets to spark the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 108-92 victory over the Boston Celtics. Austin Carr and Campy Russell both hit for 17 points while Sidney Wicks topped Boston with 17 and John Havlicek had 16.

John Drew scored 33 points, including seven in the last two minutes, and Joe Meriweather added 23 points and 17 rebounds to pace Atlanta to a 109-105 triumph over the New York Nets, the Hawks' first victory on the road after 28 straight losses over two seasons.

ATLANTA'S Hilliard Graves makes an unconventional shot on goal as he slides on the ice after being tripped up by Gilles Marotte of St. Louis Friday night. Blues goalie Eddie Johnston deflects the puck.

Alex Agase fired as Purdue's coach

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Purdue football coach Alex Agase's contract will not be renewed, University president Arthur Hansen announced Friday.

The announcement came only six days after the Boilermakers ended their fourth consecutive losing season under Agase by dropping their traditional season-ending finale to state rival Indiana, 20-14.

Hansen indicated Agase's entire staff will be replaced unless the new coach, to be chosen in a nationwide search, decides to retain any of the assistants.

AGASE THUS became the second Big Ten coach this week to get the ax. Illinois' Bob Blackman's contract was terminated Monday.

Citing the need for a "strong competitive team," Hansen said it seemed "prudent to make a change . . . at this time."

The dismissal of Agase came just three weeks after he was honored as UPI's "Coach of the Week" for leading Purdue to a 16-14 victory over Rose Bowl-bound Michigan — the biggest upset of the college football season.

It was thought the triumph would save Agase's job. But when the Boilermakers lost to arch-rival Indiana Saturday for the first time in five years, speculation mounted that he would be fired.

Soderholm signs with White Sox

Eric Soderholm, former Minnesota Twins' infielder, agreed Friday to terms with the Chicago White Sox, the second free agent from the re-entry draft signed by the Sox in the past 48 hours.

White Sox' President Bill Veeck signed former Chicago Cubs' pitcher Steve Stone Wednesday.

Soderholm, 28, underwent knee surgery after the 1975 season and did not play in 1976. White Sox' club physician, Dr. Sid Shafer, examined him earlier this week and said he now has a well-functioning knee.

Starting with the Twins in 1971, Soderholm played second, third, and shortstop. His career batting with the Twins was .257 in 407 games, and in 1975 he battd .286, had 11 home runs and 58 RBI in 117 games before going on the disabled list Aug. 21.

Illinois wins, Northwestern fails

Paced by guard Audie Matthews' 18 points, Illinois led throughout the game and withstood a final minute flurry Friday night to down St. Louis University 68-65 in both schools' basketball opener.

With 1:20 left in the game in St. Louis the Billikens outscored the Illini 8-1 and freshman center Johnny Parker's dunk shot pulled St. Louis to within one point at 66-65 with 16 seconds to go. However, St. Louis guard Bill Moulder was called for a foul on the throw-in and Rob Judson sank two free throws to complete the scoring.

Center Mark Young scored 16 points and grabbed 11 rebounds and Daryl Strickland added 14 points and 14 rebounds to lead Fairfield to a 92-74 victory over Northwestern in the first round of the Joe Lapchick Memorial Tournament.

Fairfield enjoyed a good shooting night, hitting 48 per cent from the field and sinking 40 of 49 free throws. Northwestern, led by Bill McKinney's 24 points, shot only 35.8 per cent from the field.

Atlanta, Pittsburgh win in NHL

Smoothpassing Guy Chouinard set up Atlanta's first goal and scored the second Friday night to lead the Flames to a 5-2 victory over the St. Louis Blues in National Hockey League game in Atlanta.

It was the sixth consecutive home game without a loss for the Flames.

St. Louis scored in the first 47 seconds on Ted Irvine's slapshot from 10 feet, and the Blues dominated the first 10 minutes of play.

Rookie Greg Malone scored on goal and assisted on another in helping lead the Pittsburgh Penquins to a 3-1 victory over the Cleveland Barons in Richfield, Ohio.

Oregon sends head coach packing

EUGENE, Ore. — The University of Oregon today fired Don Read as head football coach.

Read's dismissal follows his third losing season, and with a year still to go on his $30,000 contract.

Athletic Director John Caine issued a statement which read, "Don Read, head coach of the University of Oregon football team, today was relieved of his duties. The search for a successor begins immediately."

Read's teams in three years won but three Pac-8 football games, and two of those victories were over Oregon State, which shared the Pac-8 cellar with the Ducks in the 1976 season.

Dorsett, Pitt show class; Oklahoma shades Nebraska

Unstoppable Tony Dorsett, playing in his last regular season college game, rushed for 224 yards and two touchdowns Friday night, becoming the first collegian to crash the 6,000 yard rushing mark, to lead top-ranked and Sugar Bowl-bound Pittsburgh to 24-7 victory over cross-state rival Penn State and the Panthers' first undefeated season since 1929.

Dorsett, who pushed his career total to 6,082 yards on 38 carries, scored on runs of 6 and 40 yards, and during the game he broke two more NCAA records and tied three more. It enabled the leading Heisman Trophy candidate to end his regular season, four-year career holding or sharing 14 NCAA marks.

The records Dorsett tied during the game were most 100 yard rushing games in a season, 11; a career record of 33 also held by Archie Griffin, and most touchdowns scored in a career, 59.

IN LINCOLN, Neb., Elvis Peacock ran for three touchdowns, the last one from two yards out with 38 seconds to play, to lift Oklahoma to a 20-17 upset of eighth-ranked Nebraska and a tie for its fifth consecutive Big Eight championship.

By virtue of Oklahoma's win, Colorado, co-champion along with Oklahoma and Oklahoma State, will represent the Big Eight in the Orange Bowl, while Nebraska goes to the Bluebonnet Bowl.

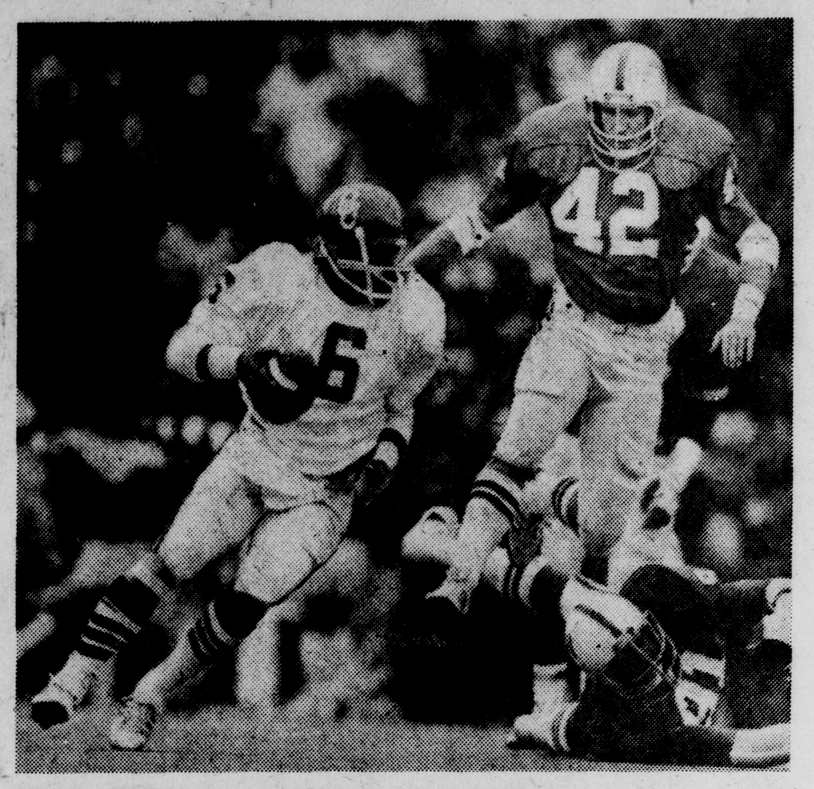
Oklahoma earlier accepted a Fiesta Bowl bid and Oklahoma State has agreed to appear in the Tangerine Bowl.

PEACOCK'S final touchdown capped an 85-yard, eight-play drive which saw the Sooners, who turned to a razzle dazzle passing game in the closing moments, complete their only two passes of the day for 54 yards.

After taking over on their own 15, reserve halfback Woody Shepard threw a 22-yard pass to Steve Rhodes on the Sooners' first throwing attefpt of the afternoon.

Faced with a third and 19 from the Nebraska 34 with 58 seconds to play, Oklahoma quarterback Thomas Lott, who had cofpleted only two of 13 passes coming into the game, hit Rhodes with a short pass and he threw a lateral pass to Peacock who raced to the two-yard line before running out of bounds.

Peacock, who had a one-yard scoring run in the first quarter and a 50-yard touchdown jaunt early in the fourth quarter, scored the game-winning touchdown on the next play.



TERRY LOTT, University of Oklahoma quarterback, races down the field with the football as Nebraska's Kerry Weinmaster leaps a fallen teammate in hot pursuit Friday afternoon. Oklahoma won in the closing seconds, 20-17.

Preps to settle 4A, 5A crowns

NORMAL, Ill. — The larger schools swing into action here today in the Illinois prep football championships.

Three champions were crowned Friday with Hampshire (1A), Fulton (2A) and Geneseo (3A) taking the top prizes in the rain and cold at Hancock Stadium.

Defending 4A champion Joliet Catholic, with an 11-1 mark, plays unbeaten Danville, 12-0, in today's first game at 2:30 p.m.

St. Laurence, ranked No. 1 in Illinois, will put its 12-0 record on the line against Glenbard West, 11-1, for the 5A championship at 7:30 p.m.

WAYNE STRADER dove two yards for the winning touchdown with 65 seconds to play to give Geneseo Darnell a 20-12 win over Metamora and capture the Class 3-A state championship.

The Geneseo victory ended Metamora's winning streak, the longest in the state, at 30 games, and denied the Redbirds a second straight 3-A championship. It was Geneseo's 13th straight win and ended Metamora's season with a 12-1 record.

A rainstorm continued throughout the first half and the artificial turf was slippery for the entire contest, hampering the ball handling of both teams. Geneseo lost the ball five times on fumbles and Metamora six times, and the bobbles were key breaks in the contest.

STRADER WAS the major offensive threat for the winners and scored all three of their touchdowns, carrying the ball 34 times for 188 yards. His first touchdown came on a one-yard run and the second on a 36-yard run.

IT TAKES three Gillespie High School tacklers to bring down Fulton halfback Jim Snyder in Class 2-A football championship Friday afternoon in Normal. Fulton won an overtime thriller, 8-0.

Two of the Metamora fumbles were most costly. The Redbirds were driving for a go-ahead touchdown in the last period when Jeff Selburg fumbled and lost the ball on the Geneseo one-yard line.

Geneseo then drove to the Metamora 10, where Strader fumbled and lost the ball. But that bobble evened up when Vic Friederich, back to punt, fumbled and Geneseo took over on the Metamora 8. Strader then scored the winning touchdown on his third straight carry into the line.

Stan Walker scored four touchdowns, two of them on record punt returns of 78 and 79 yards, and passed for one touchdown to lead Hampshire to the Class 1A football championship with a record setting 47-6 victory over defending champion Concord Triopia.

Hampshire's win came on the largest number of points ever rolled up in the championship games of the state tournament now in its third year and the victory broke a 24-game winning streak for Triopia, 13-0 last year and 11-0 this year heading into Friday's game.

Walker ran one yard and Kent Nussbaum converted to give Hampshire a 7-6 lead at 2:49 of the second period.

Less than four minutes later, John Gehringer ran 16 yards for a touchdown and, when Concord had to punt, Walker returned the kick 79 yards.

AFTER THE 19-point second period for the Whippurs, Walker passed to Gehringer for 37 yards and a touchdown, and Johnny Newman ran 38 yards to score.

The Whippurs also counted 14 points in the last period when Walker made his 78 yard punt return for a touchdown and then ran 22 yards for the last touchdown of the game with :50 remaining.

JIM NAGEL completed an 11-yard touchdown pass to Matt Miller on a fake field goal on the fourth play of overtime Friday to give the Fulton Steamers an 8-0 win over Gillespie and the Class 2A championship.

The two teams played to a 0-0 tie in the regulation four 12-minute periods on a slippery and wet artificial field on which Fulton fumbled 10 times and lost the ball seven times. Then they went into the second overtime game in the three year state playoff history and prospects looked dim for Fulton, sixth ranked in the state in the 1A-2A-3A category, when a motion penalty set the Steamers back five yards before they had run their first play.

Their chances appeared no brighter as two running plays made only four yards and a Nagel pass was incomplete in the end zone.

BUT THEN FULTON lined up for a field goal try with Nagel holding the ball. Instead of putting it down to be kicked, he ran to his right and when hemmed in he passed to Miller who was sliding on his knees in the end zone when he caught the ball for the only score of the game.

Jim Snyder ran for a two-point conversion to put the pressure on Gillespie which would have been forced to try for a two point conversion had it scored.

Gillespie got its chance from the 10-yard line and Jim Byots lost one yard on his carry, then made nine yards on the next two carries to give Gillespie fourth and goal on the 2 with one play remaining.

Mitch Stierwalt tried to sweep the outside left end and was swarmed short of the goal line by the Gillespie defenders to wipe out the Miners' last chance.

Holiday basketball tournaments

A Herald Staff Repot

Not bad. Not bad at all.

After a slow start this season the area has picked up some momentum in varsity basketball action.

Seven teams collected victories Friday night in holiday tournament activity.

LIONS STILL PERFECT

St. Viator kept its 1976 record spotless with a 61-45 triumph over Jacobs Friday night and will play for the Crown Thanksgiving Tournament tonight.

In winning their third straight decision of the young season, the Lions overcame a sluggish first period with a 23-9 blitz in the second quarter and were never seriously threatened thereafter.

With Steve Notaro pumping in 18 points and Paul Wiloff crashing the offensive boards for 15 points and 15 rebounds, Viator went on to out score Jacobs 14-10 in the third period and 15-14 in the final stanza.

JACOBS SEIZED a quick 12-9 edge after eight minutes, but the Lions of head coach Ron Cregier tightened their defense and got their controlled running offense in gear to quickly take command.

Joining Notaro and Wiloff in double figures was Jim Kennedy with 10 while Paul Rogozinski chipped in with nine. Mike Comerford hit for six and hauled in five rebounds as Viator outboarded Jacobs, 37-22.

CARDS TOP WILLOWBROOK

The Arlington Cards used pressure defense and hot shooting in the fourth quarter to hold off the Willowbrook Warriors, 53-44, Friday night, and advanced undefeated to the finals of the York Holiday Tournament tonight.

The Cards applied a full court press in the first half and walked off with a 30-23 halftime lead.

But the Warriors came back in the third quarter — in which Arlington tallied only six points — and tied the score late in the period. The Cards did managed to lead 36-34 at the end of three stops.

LED BY Greg Kloiber's six fourth-quarter points, the Cards exploded for 17 points in the fourth quarter and coasted in, hitting seven of 10 shots in the final period for 70 per cent efficiency.

Willowbrook, meanwhile, could hit only five times in 14 tries in the fourth quarter.

Hampered by foul trouble, Willowbrook's leading scorer, Glenn Carwell, went to the bench with only three minutes gone in the third period and didn't return until three minutes had elapsed in the fourth quarter. Carwell was held to just four points by the Cards' defense.

Kloiber led the Cards in scoring with 18. Frank DeSimone added 14 for the winners, who meet Elgin at 7 p.m. tonight.

PIRATES WIN SQUEAKER

Palatine won its first game under new head coach Ed Molitor Friday night in spine-tingling fashion with a 47-46 triumph over host Carmel in the Mundelein holiday tournament.

Trailing by one point with one minute to play, the Pirates ran 42 seconds off the clock and set up an out-of-bounds play that isolated shooting ace Kevin McKenna.

The pass was bobbled and finally fed underneath to Palatine's Craig Long who scored with six seconds left. Carmel managed three shots in the final four seconds, but none would drop.

"WE ACCOMPLISHED our three goals of breaking the press while keeping our poise, improving our defense and getting a good shot each time down the floor," Molitor said.

McKenna paced the Pirates' scoring parade with 24 points, but got important support from Chris Plazak who potted 11.

PROSPECT WINS FIRST

The Prospect Knights held on to defeat Maine West's Warriors in a round robin tourney, 57-55, at New Trier East.

The Knights of Coach Bill Slayton held a 57-53 lead with about a minute to go when Bob Anderson stole the ball and Tim Logisz scored from outside, cutting the margin to two. But Prospect didn't allow the Warriors to touch the ball again.

Prospect was led by the scoring of sophomore Jim Apuzzo, who pumped in 20, and the rebounding of Brad Millar, who pulled down 14. Millar also had 10 points. Steve Mather also had 10 points with Paul Izban chipping in with nine.

MAINE WEST was led by Bob Zuccarini's 19 and Anderson's 15.

The Warriors will be trying to improve upon their 1-2 record tonight against New Trier East at Maine South's gym, starting at 7:00. The Knights, also 1-2, will meet Maine South at 8:30.

FALCONS NOTCH FIRST

Forest View propelled four players into double scoring figures and cracked the win column for the first time this season by rolling past the hosts at the Woodstock Thanksgiving Basetball Tournament Friday, 59-48.

Wednesday the Falcons had dropped their tourney opener to Marian Catholic 45-38. Friday's triumph upped their record for the season to 1-2 and moved them into a consolation showdown with Grant Saturday at 5:30 p.m.

After clicking on only two of eight free throws Wednesday, Forest View came back with a 17-for-22 effort and never were headed against Woodstock. The hosts only trailed by two at halftime but Chris Hanson keyed a 19-point third quarter Falcon explosion that put the verdict out of reach.

JEFF MARTINSKI and Bob Cameron led the way for the winners with 14 points apiece. Jin Kennedy chipped in with 12 and Craig Chuipek added 10. High scorer for Woodstock was Mark Shipley with 18.

Wednesday Forest View also led through mid-game after opening a 16-8 first quarter lead. Tom LaFontaine hit three times from the floor and Emmett Long struck for seven points as Marian outscored the Falcons 16-8 in the final stanza.

Top View scorer Wednesday was Martinski with 10.

KILEY TIES MARK

Rolling Meadows' 6-foot-8 center Kevin Kiley tied a single-game school record Friday night with 28 points to lead the Mustangs over Maine North, 59-49 in the Fenton Holiday Tournament.

Kiley's production was derived from 14 buckets accumulated from inside, 10-foot turn-around jumpers and from the high post. The mark ties the effort by Bill Wissen last season against Prospect.

The Mustangs matched Maine's production through the opening two periods and held just a 47-45 edge upon entering the final eight minutes of play.

BUT MEADOWS went into a deliberate 1-3-1 zone that forced more passing and better shot selection. The Mustangs throttled the Norsemen, 12-4, in the fourth quarter with a barrage of layups.

Kiley's 28 was supported by 12 from Bob Furlan off the bench, nine by Bob Rose and eight from Sam DeMarie in a substitute's role.

Maine North owned a slight 32-30 rebounding edge despite Kiley's 11 and six each by Rose and Dave Crouch. The Mustangs will conclude action in the Fenton tourney tonight at 7 against Niles North.

VIKES DROP THRILLER

Fremd turned the ball over 33 times in the teeth of a Glenbard South press Friday afternoon and lost their second heartbreaker of the season, 76-75, to Glenbard South in the Glenbard West Holiday Tournament. The Vikings complete weekend play at 2:30 today.

Fremd dominated most categories, outshooting Glenbard, 70-58, outrebounding the Rams 43-19 and scored the last four points of the game, but it still wasn't enough.

Glenbard built up an 11 point lead very early into the third quarter, but head coach Mo Tharp's Vikings battled back for their only lead in the game, 59-58.

TWO SUCCESSIVE Ram buckets were inspired by a trio of bad Fremd outlet passes. Trailing by five with 37 seconds to go, Greg Schroeder and Scott Rawlins each tallied, but time ran out.

Craig Rawlins paced the Vikings with 19, Schroeder added 14 and Gary Hallberg 13. Glenbard pivotman Nick Nicosia topped all scorers with 27 points.

LANCERS WIN

Hoffman Estates was demolished Friday night by a two man wrecking crew, a pair of Lake Park Lancers who almost singlehandedly carted away the title trophy in the Hoffman Estates basketball tourney, 60-50.

Mike Loescher, a 6-5 forward, and 5-9 guard Joe Mikes combined for 42 of the Lancers' points, including 14 each in the first half when Lake Park pulled away to a 36-31 intermission lead.

Mikes, who finished with 16 points, canned seven of eight shots in the first two quarters, all from 18 to 25 feet.

HE HIT five baskets in a row as the Lancers built a 23-16 margin before Hoffman came storming back.

Baskets by Doug Oslance, Joe Tully and John Staback cut the lead to one, and a moment later Tully hit a baseline jumper to put the Hawks ahead, 27-25.

But Loescher put Lake Park in front to stay with two free throws and a rebound basket inside the two minute mark of the first half. Lester Mohrzycki, who added eight points to the Lancer cause, popped in a last second shot to give Lake Park their five point edge at halftime.

HOFFMAN (2-2) got 14 points from Tully and 13 from Staback but never threatened in the second half.

The Hawks went more than five minutes without a score in the third quarter when Lake Park built the lead to 10 points. They also failed to take advantage from the free throw line, converting just 10 of 27 attempts.

HERSEY FALLS TO GLENBARD

The Glenbard East Rams hit 12 of 15 free throws in the final 3:38 of the fourth quarter and eliminated the Hersey Huskies from the Glenbard West Thanksgiving Tournament, 77-69.

With 6-4 forward Tim Vandemerkt hitting four free throws and leading the Rams with 23 points, Glenbard calmly held off the Huskies' final efforts to pull into the championship final tonight against Proviso East.

Hersey will play Riverside-Brookfield at 4:15 p.m. today.

Hersey played its best basketball of the game to take a 22-20 lead after one quarter. Senor guard Joe Pusatera pupped in six of his ten points in that first period, many coming off steals.

Gary Meyer, a 6-7 senior reserve center, took control with 0:46 remaining and hit, in succession, a short jumper, a 12-footer from the corner and a tip-in at the gun.

Meyer finished with 14 points while starting center Todd Walker led the Huskies with 15 and T. R. Frye totaled 13.

ADDISON TOPS ELK GROVE

Addison Trail built an 11-point lead by halftime and coasted a 67-57 victory over Elk Grove on the final night of action at the Hoffman basketball tourney.

Elk Grove got good outside shooting from Tim Mimnaugh and Dave Champa, but the Grenadiers couldn't move the ball inside to their big man, Mark Smith. The 6-5 senior still managed to lead his team with 16 points, although most of them came on tipins and free throws. He was four for seven from the line.

Addision had some hot outside shooting of its own from Dave Steele and Mark Anderson. Steele popped in eight of his 12 points and dished out a number of assists as the Blazers jumped out to a 25-15 lead midway through the second quarter. The top scorer for the winners was lanky Bob Kowsky with 19 points, including eight of them in the fourth period after the Grove had cut the lead to six on long jumpers by Mimnaugh and Champa.

CHAMPA FINISHED with 14 points and Mimnaugh had 13 for the Grens, who lost their third game of the tourney.

Batavia beat Wheeling, 77-71. Further details were unavailable at press time.

Celebrating a regional title.

Legion team has banquet

The Arlington Heights (Des Plaines Post 36) American Legion baseball team that finished second in the nation will be officially honored tonight at a recognition banquet at Itasca Country Club.

DuPage handles Harper, 80-67

The Harper Hawks, beginning their most promising cage season in years, could not overcome several annoying injuries and fell to the DuPage Chaparrals, 80-67, in the opening round of the DuPage Holiday Tournament.

The Hawks will meet Lake County in a consolation contest tonight at 7 p.m.

Harper was without starting guard Mark Russo, who is suffering from a groin injury, and Scott Green, Dan Breen and Ron Sulaski were all hobbled with ankle sprains.

"WE KNEW WE were in a lot of trouble," said Harper coach Roger Bechtold. "With all those kids hurt we had to make a lot of adjustments and show come character."

The Hawks stuck with the Chaps through the first half, trailing 35-33 at the intermission.

DuPage put the game away in the second 20 minutes, using their depth and size to wear down the Hawks.

DuPage's 6-10 Mike Robinson funneled in 20 points and teammate Steve Long cashed 22.

Game scoring honors, though, fell to Harper sophomore Jim Arden, who had 23.

FRESHMAN Dan Breen (12 points) and Mike Nichol (15) hit in double figures for Harper.

DuPage's Chris French and Mark Bowman combined for 27 points.

Harper trailed by nine points in the first half before recovering to within a basket but three straight fast break hoops in the second quarter turned the game over to the Chaps.

Bears, Payton seeking records

Looking for their first winning season against NFL Central Division opponents in nine years, the Chicago Bears take their road show to Green Bay Sunday for a 1 p.m. game with the Packers.

Owning splits with the Vikings and Lions, the Bears entertain hopes of a season sweep over Green Bay that would give them a 4-2 divisional record.

The last time the Chicagoans were able to do that was 1967 when they were 3-2-1.

BRUISED BUT not battered, the Bears saw their last chances to stay alive for a playoff spot wasted at Detroit Sunday, 14-10. The defeat dropped Chicago to 5-6 on the season.

"We were worried about the Packers," said Bear coach Jack Pardee Sunday night. "Two weeks ago, we got the breaks to win 24-13 but that game went right down to the wire.

"We're out of the playoff picture now but these next three games are important for us if we're going to be a contender," projected Pardee. "Sunday we made too many mistakes to get by. For us to be a challenger, we have to win on days like these . . . too many dropped balls, mistakes and penalties."

After gaining 221 yards against the NFL's top defensive team, the Chicago offense is hoping to rebound at Green Bay.

THE LIONS held Walter Payton to 40 yards rushing and kept him off the scoreboard for the first time in seven weeks.

Despite his lowest rushing total of the year, Payton remains 91 yards ahead of Gale Sayers' 1966 Club record (1,231) setting pace. But Sayers finished that season with 197 yards on just 17 carries against the Vikings.

While the Bears second-year man from Jackson State has surpassed Sayers' records for durability by establishing new marks for attempts in both games and season, he and his teammates could give Bear fans something Sayers and Company could never do: Give them a 1,000-yard rusher on a winning team.

Payton has held the 1,000-yard mark since the last Packer game, but now the Bears must win their last three games for an 8-6 record. Sayers' two 1,000-yard years came when the Bears were 5-7-2 (1966) and 1-13 (1969).

CHICAGO'S PASSING game suffered from dropitis in the Silverdome catches on their last minute drive for the winning touchdown. Earlier a 65-yard Avellini to James Scott bomb was whistled back.

Despite injuries to tackles Wally Chambers and Ron Rydalch, and nagging hurts bothering ends Roger Stillwell and Royce Berry, the Bears defense emerged from the Silverdome with a Club record for sacks — 45 with six against the Lions. The previous standard was 42 set in 1970.

The Bears hope they'll be as successful at disrupting the Green Bay offense as they were Sunday. To go with the six sacks, linebacker Ross Brupbacher recovered a pair of Lion fumbles and got one of the two Bear pass thefts.

Holiday basketball tournaments

A Herald Staff Repot

Not bad. Not bad at all.

After a slow start this season the area has picked up some momentum in varsity basketball action.

Seven teams collected victories Friday night in holiday tournament activity.

Here's the way the action unfolded:

LIONS STILL PERFECT

St. Viator kept its 1976 record spotless with a 61-45 triumph over Jacobs Friday night and will play for the Crown Thanksgiving Tournament tonight.

In winning their third straight decision of the young season, the Lions overcame a sluggish first period with a 23-9 blitz in the second quarter and were never seriously threatened thereafter.

With Steve Notaro pumping in 18 points and Paul Wiloff crashing the offensive boards for 15 points and 15 rebounds, Viator went on to out score Jacobs 14-10 in the third period and 15-14 in the final stanza.

JACOBS SEIZED a quick 12-9 edge after eight minutes, but the Lions of head coach Ron Cregier tightened their defense and got their controlled running offense in gear to quickly take command.

Joining Notaro and Wiloff in double figures was Jim Kennedy with 10 while Paul Rogozinski chipped in with nine. Mike Comerford hit for six and hauled in five rebounds as Viator outboarded Jacobs, 37-22.

CARDS TOP WILLOWBROOK

The Arlington Cards used pressure defense and hot shooting in the fourth quarter to hold off the Willowbrook Warriors, 53-44, Friday night, and advanced undefeated to the finals of the York Holiday Tournament tonight.

The Cards applied a full court press in the first half and walked off with a 30-23 halftime lead.

But the Warriors came back in the third quarter — in which Arlington tallied only six points — and tied the score late in the period. The Cards did managed to lead 36-34 at the end of three stops.

LED BY Greg Kloiber's six fourth-quarter points, the Cards exploded for 17 points in the fourth quarter and coasted in, hitting seven of 10 shots in the final period for 70 per cent efficiency.

Willowbrook, meanwhile, could hit only five times in 14 tries in the fourth quarter.

Hampered by foul trouble, Willowbrook's leading scorer, Glenn Carwell, went to the bench with only three minutes gone in the third period and didn't return until three minutes had elapsed in the fourth quarter. Carwell was held to just four points by the Cards' defense.

Kloiber led the Cards in scoring with 18. Frank DeSimone added 14 for the winners, who meet Elgin at 7 p.m. tonight.

PIRATES WIN SQUEAKER

Palatine won its first game under new head coach Ed Molitor Friday night in spine-tingling fashion with a 47-46 triumph over host Carmel in the Mundelein holiday tournament.

Trailing by one point with one minute to play, the Pirates ran 42 seconds off the clock and set up an out-of-bounds play that isolated shooting ace Kevin McKenna.

The pass was bobbled and finally fed underneath to Palatine's Craig Long who scored with six seconds left. Carmel managed three shots in the final four seconds, but none would drop.

"WE ACCOMPLISHED our three goals of breaking the press while keeping our poise, improving our defense and getting a good shot each time down the floor," Molitor said.

McKenna paced the Pirates' scoring parade with 24 points, but got important support from Chris Plazak who potted 11.

Palatine will finish competition in Mundelein against Warren Township tonight at 7 p.m.

PROSPECT WINS FIRST

The Prospect Knights held on to defeat Maine West's Warriors in a round robin tourney, 57-55, at New Trier East.

The Knights of Coach Bill Slayton held a 57-53 lead with about a minute to go when Bob Anderson stole the ball and Tim Logisz scored from outside, cutting the margin to two. But Prospect didn't allow the Warriors to touch the ball again.

Prospect was led by the scoring of sophomore Jim Apuzzo, who pumped in 20, and the rebounding of Brad Millar, who pulled down 14. Millar also had 10 points. Steve Mather also had 10 points with Paul Izban chipping in with nine.

MAINE WEST was led by Bob Zuccarini's 19 and Anderson's 15.

The Warriors will be trying to improve upon their 1-2 record tonight against New Trier East at Maine South's gym, starting at 7:00. The Knights, also 1-2, will meet Maine South at 8:30.

FALCONS NOTCH FIRST

Forest View propelled four players into double scoring figures and cracked the win column for the first time this season by rolling past the hosts at the Woodstock Thanksgiving Baseball Tournament Friday, 59-48.

Wednesday the Falcons had dropped their tourney opener to Marian Catholic 45-38. Friday's triumph upped their record for the season to 1-2 and moved them into a consolation showdown with Grant Saturday at 5:30 p.m.

After clicking on only two of eight free throws Wednesday, Forest View came back with a 17-for-22 effort and never were headed against Woodstock. The hosts only trailed by two at halftime but Chris Hanson keyed a 19-point third quarter Falcon explosion that put the verdict out of reach.

JEFF MARTINSKI and Bob Cameron led the way for the winners with 14 points apiece. Jin Kennedy chipped in with 12 and Craig Chuipek added 10. High scorer for Woodstock was Mark Shipley with 18.

Wednesday Forest View also led through mid-game after opening a 16-8 first quarter lead. Tom LaFontaine hit three times from the floor and Emmett Long struck for seven points as Marian outscored the Falcons 16-8 in the final stanza.

Top View scorer Wednesday was Martinski with 10.

KILEY TIES MARK

Rolling Meadows' 6-foot-8 center Kevin Kiley tied a single-game school record Friday night with 28 points to lead the Mustangs over Maine North, 59-49 in the Fenton Holiday Tournament.

Kiley's production was derived from 14 buckets accumulated from inside, 10-foot turn-around jumpers and from the high post. The mark ties the effort by Bill Wissen last season against Prospect.

The Mustangs matched Maine's production through the opening two periods and held just a 47-45 edge upon entering the final eight minutes of play.

BUT MEADOWS went into a deliberate 1-3-1 zone that forced more passing and better shot selection. The Mustangs throttled the Norsemen, 12-4, in the fourth quarter with a barrage of layups.

Kiley's 28 was supported by 12 from Bob Furlan off the bench, nine by Bob Rose and eight from Sam DeMarie in a substitute's role.

Maine North owned a slight 32-30 rebounding edge despite Kiley's 11 and six each by Rose and Dave Crouch. The Mustangs will conclude action in the Fenton tourney tonight at 7 against Niles North.

VIKES DROP THRILLER

Fremd turned the ball over 33 times in the teeth of a Glenbard South press Friday afternoon and lost their second heartbreaker of the season, 76-75, to Glenbard South in the Glenbard West Holiday Tournament. The Vikings complete weekend play at 2:30 today.

Fremd dominated most categories, outshooting Glenbard, 70-58, outrebounding the Rams 43-19 and scored the last four points of the game, but it still wasn't enough.

Glenbard built up an 11 point lead very early into the third quarter, but head coach Mo Tharp's Vikings battled back for their only lead in the game, 59-58.

TWO SUCCESSIVE Ram buckets were inspired by a trio of bad Fremd outlet passes. Trailing by five with 37 seconds to go, Greg Schroeder and Scott Rawlins each tallied, but time ran out.

Craig Rawlins paced the Vikings with 19, Schroeder added 14 and Gary Hallberg 13. Glenbard pivotman Nick Nicosia topped all scorers with 27 points.

LANCERS WIN

Hoffman Estates was demolished Friday night by a two man wrecking crew, a pair of Lake Park Lancers who almost singlehandedly carted away the title trophy in the Hoffman Estates basketball tourney, 60-50.

Mike Loescher, a 6-5 forward, and 5-9 guard Joe Mikes combined for 42 of the Lancers' points, including 14 each in the first half when Lake Park pulled away to a 36-31 intermission lead.

Mikes, who finished with 16 points, canned seven of eight shots in the first two quarters, all from 18 to 25 feet.

HE HIT five baskets in a row as the Lancers built a 23-16 margin before Hoffman came storming back.

Baskets by Doug Oslance, Joe Tully and John Staback cut the lead to one, and a moment later Tully hit a baseline jumper to put the Hawks ahead, 27-25.

But Loescher put Lake Park in front to stay with two free throws and a rebound basket inside the two minute mark of the first half. Lester Mohrzycki, who added eight points to the Lancer cause, popped in a last second shot to give Lake Park their five point edge at halftime.

HOFFMAN (2-2) got 14 points from Tully and 13 from Staback but never threatened in the second half.

The Hawks went more than five minutes without a score in the third quarter when Lake Park built the lead to 10 points. They also failed to take advantage from the free throw line, converting just 10 of 27 attempts.

HERSEY FALLS TO GLENBARD

The Glenbard East Rams hit 12 of 15 free throws in the final 3:38 of the fourth quarter and eliminated the Hersey Huskies from the Glenbard West Thanksgiving Tournament, 77-69.

With 6-4 forward Tim Vandemerkt hitting four free throws and leading the Rams with 23 points, Glenbard calmly held off the Huskies' final efforts to pull into the championship final tonight against Proviso East.

Hersey will play Riverside-Brookfield at 4:15 p.m. today.

Hersey played its best basketball of the game to take a 22-20 lead after one quarter. Senor guard Joe Pusatera pupped in six of his ten points in that first period, many coming off steals.

Gary Meyer, a 6-7 senior reserve center, took control with 0:46 remaining and hit, in succession, a short jumper, a 12-footer from the corner and a tip-in at the gun.

Meyer finished with 14 points while starting center Todd Walker led the Huskies with 15 and T. R. Frye totaled 13.

ADDISON TOPS ELK GROVE

Addison Trail built an 11-point lead by halftime and coasted a 67-57 victory over Elk Grove on the final night of action at the Hoffman basketball tourney.

Elk Grove got good outside shooting from Tim Mimnaugh and Dave Champa, but the Grenadiers couldn't move the ball inside to their big man, Mark Smith. The 6-5 senior still managed to lead his team with 16 points, although most of them came on tipins and free throws. He was four for seven from the line.

Addision had some hot outside shooting of its own from Dave Steele and Mark Anderson. Steele popped in eight of his 12 points and dished out a number of assists as the Blazers jumped out to a 25-15 lead midway through the second quarter. The top scorer for the winners was lanky Bob Kowsky with 19 points, including eight of them in the fourth period after the Grove had cut the lead to six on long jumpers by Mimnaugh and Champa.

CHAMPA FINISHED with 14 points and Mimnaugh had 13 for the Grens, who lost their third game of the tourney.

Batavia beat Wheeling, 77-71. Further details were unavailable at press time.

DuPage handles Harper, 80-67

The Harper Hawks, beginning their most promising cage season in years, could not overcome several annoying injuries and fell to the DuPage Chaparrals, 80-67, in the opening round of the DuPage Holiday Tournament.

The Hawks will meet Lake County in a consolation contest tonight at 7 p.m.

Harper was without starting guard Mark Russo, who is suffering from a groin injury, and Scott Green, Dan Breen and Ron Sulaski were all hobbled with ankle sprains.

"WE KNEW WE were in a lot of trouble," said Harper coach Roger Bechtold. "With all those kids hurt we had to make a lot of adjustments and show come character."

Bears, Payton seeking records

Looking for their first winning season against NFL Central Division opponents in nine years, the Chicago Bears take their road show to Green Bay Sunday for a 1 p.m. game with the Packers.

Owning splits with the Vikings and Lions, the Bears entertain hopes of a season sweep over Green Bay that would give them a 4-2 divisional record.

The last time the Chicagoans were able to do that was 1967 when they were 3-2-1.

BRUISED BUT not battered, the Bears saw their last chances to stay alive for a playoff spot wasted at Detroit Sunday, 14-10. The defeat dropped Chicago to 5-6 on the season.

"We were worried about the Packers," said Bear coach Jack Pardee Sunday night. "Two weeks ago, we got the breaks to win 24-13 but that game went right down to the wire.

For us to be a challenger, we have to win on days like these . . . too many dropped balls, mistakes and penalties."

After gaining 221 yards against the NFL's top defensive team, the Chicago offense is hoping to rebound at Green Bay.

THE LIONS held Walter Payton to 40 yards rushing and kept him off the scoreboard for the first time in seven weeks.

Despite his lowest rushing total of the year, Payton remains 91 yards ahead of Gale Sayers' 1966 Club record (1,231) setting pace. But Sayers finished that season with 197 yards on just 17 carries against the Vikings.

Payton has held the 1,000-yard mark since the last Packer game, but now the Bears must win their last three games for an 8-6 record. Sayers' two 1,000-yard years came when the Bears were 5-7-2 (1966) and 1-13 (1969).

CHICAGO'S PASSING game suffered from dropitis in the Silverdome catches on their last minute drive for the winning touchdown. Earlier a 65-yard Avellini to James Scott bomb was whistled back.

Any pro can tell you there are 'six days 'til Sunday'

by BOB GALLAS

Their images flash across the television screen for a few hours every Sunday, modern day gladiators locked in combat while millions look on. Their skills have been set to music, showcased in "Super Bowls" and touted on the nightly news.

It's Hollywood with a facemask, muggings sans dark alleys, strategy between the white lines.

It's professional football.

But by Tuesday morning, the gladiators have turned into mere men again, arriving at their "office" in business suits or bluejeans, ready to begin a work week that is rarely seen, mostly secret and usually just downright dull.

Any pro will tell you there are six days 'til Sunday.

CHICAGO BEARS middle linebacker Don Rives looks much like any other businessman as he leaves his Arlington Heights apartment every Tuesday morning and heads for the "office" — the Bears' practice facilities in Lake Forest.

Set on the campus of a girls' boarding school, there are few visitors to the camp. The practice field is a five-minute bus ride away, at a park set in the middle of a residential area. Now, late in the season, there are few visitors even at practice, although a few school children wait for autographs or toss around their own footballs in the shadows of the pros.

After a Monday off, to let the bumps and bruises of Sunday heal, Rives starts his work week off with a good soaking in the whirlpool to "get the hurts out." A week of meetings, practice and more meetings follows as he and his teammates prepare for another Sunday.

"Most people don't realize that I go to work every morning and usually don't get home until after seven," said Rives, who calls the defensive signals and formations for the Bears, an assignment which means extra responsibility and time that must be spent in preparation.

MORNINGS Tuesday through Friday are taken up with meetings, some with the entire team, others in specialty groups. On Wednesday through Friday, two busloads of players take the short trip to the practice field and spend 1:30 to 4 p.m. in practice.

"There's not much hitting once the season starts," said Rives. "You go over things to get your timing just right."

About 10 hours a week are spent in practice, while 11 more are spent in team meetings at the Bear camp.

Since Rives will be calling the defensive signals on Sunday, he'll have a private meeting with head coach Jack Pardee on Thursday after practice, to review films of their upcoming opponent and discuss what the Bears will do on defense. Otherwise, Rives will spend hours after practice, lifting weights in sessions which have added 30 pounds to his frame, now a solid 6-2, 130 pounds.

THOUGH RIVES fills the shoes of a Bear legend, Dick Butkus, he said he's never felt the pressure of such a big responsibility.

"That's because no one ever took me seriously when I first got here."

When Rives first reported to the Bear camp fresh out of Texas Tech four years ago, in Butkus' last playing season, few thought he'd make it. He weighed only 200 pounds then, small by National Football League standards.

But confidence, determination and weightlifting and the additional 30 pounds have changed all that. Overcoming a foot injury that sidelined him much of last season, Rives has turned into an important cog in the Bears' defense.

Most of Saturday is taken up, though the players do get the afternoon off before a home game. After a 9 a.m. to noon workout, the players are free until 7:30 p.m., when they must report to a hotel for a team meeting and overnight sleeping accommodations, a practice followed by many of the other NFL squads.

SATURDAY IS even busier when the team plays on the road. Following the short morning workout, the players report to O'Hare for the charter flight, which last week went to Detroit.

Saturday night there's another team meeting and an 11 o'clock room check, when all players are required to be in.

After the 7:30 team meeting, some retire to their rooms for backgammon or cards, while others head out for a late dinner or movie, making their way through the lobby that usually has autograph seekers waiting.

For Rives in Detroit, there was dinner with some cousins he usually sees only once a year, then back to the room for some backgammon with his roommate, center Dan Neal.

After a phone call home to his wife, Sammye, he will take in a late movie to fall asleep.

AFTER CHAPEL services and a 9 a.m. training table breakfast that offers bacon, eggs and steaks, the players assemble in the hotel lobby for a 20-minute bus ride to the stadium.

The light atmosphere of the trip begins to change. The faces reflect thought. There are less words.

Rives is one of the first on the field because his nervous stomach is better quieted by calisthenics than the silence of the lockerroom.

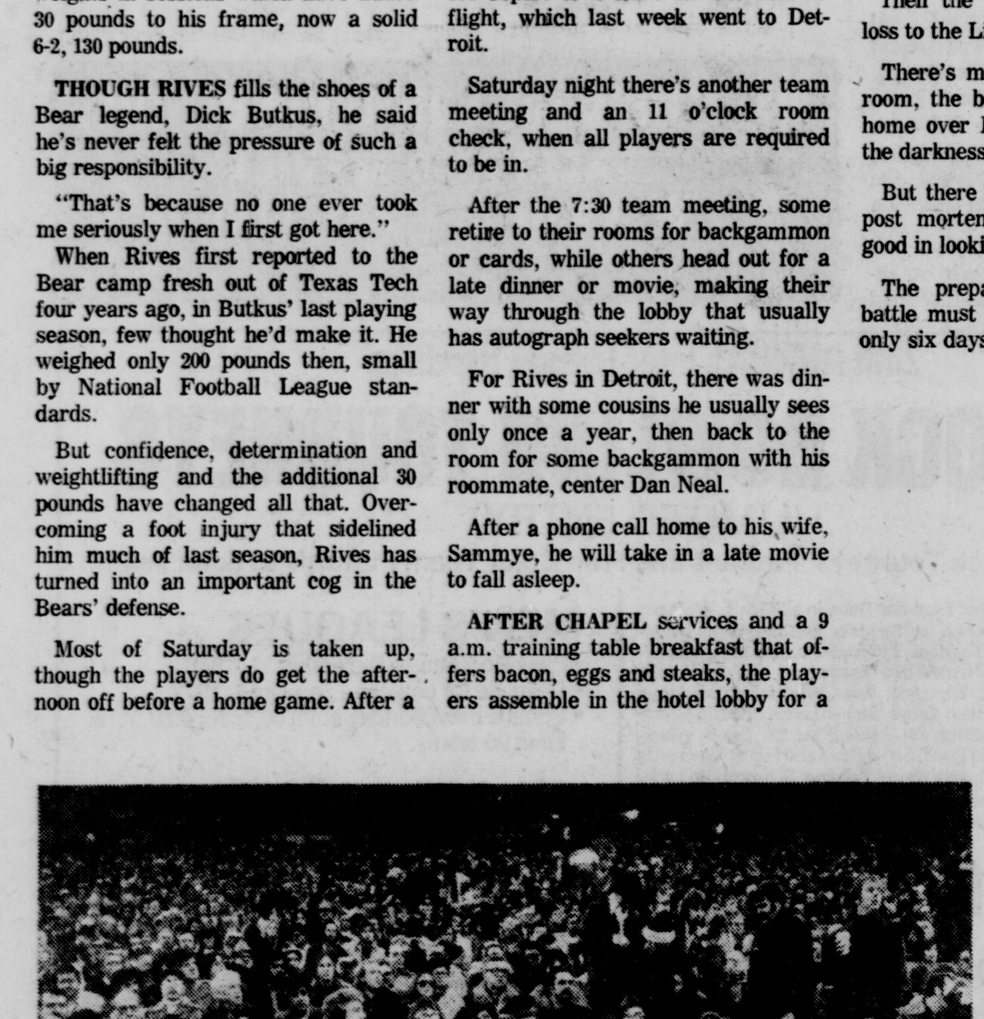
Then the game, this time a 14-10 loss to the Lions.

There's more silence in the lockerroom, the bus, the plane as it heads home over Lake Michigan, hidden in the darkness below.

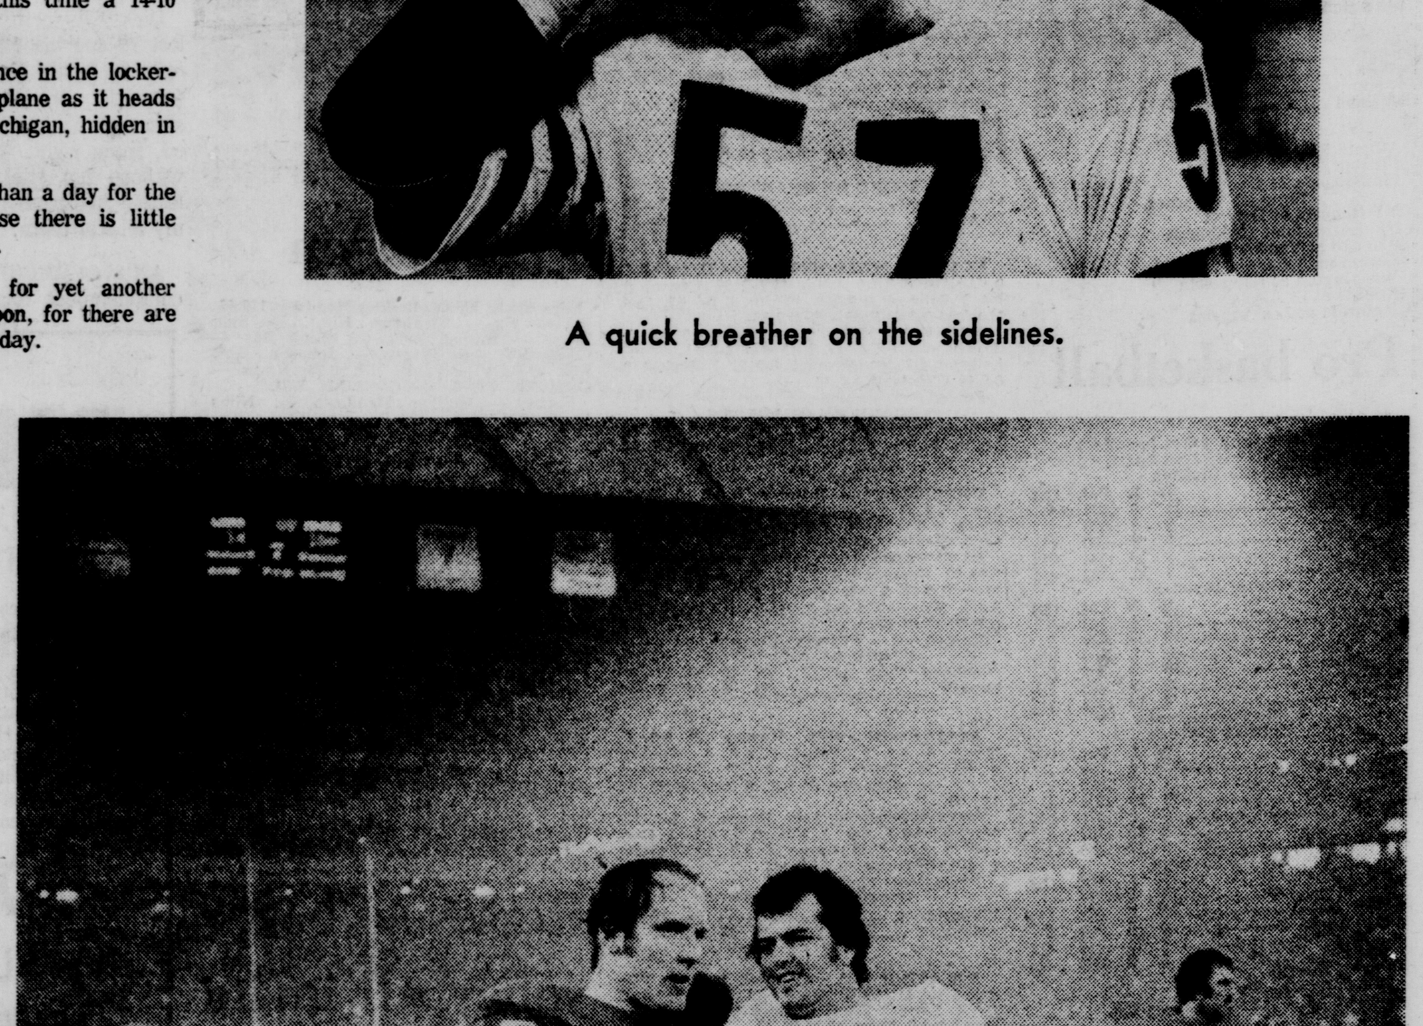
But there is less than a day for the post mortem because there is little good in looking back.

The preparations for yet another battle must begin soon, for there are only six days 'til Sunday.

A quick breather on the sidelines.



The defense relaxes in the midst of battle.



Their battle over, Rives and Morris part with a handshake.

Since Rives will be calling the defensive signals on Sunday, he'll have a private meeting with head coach Jack Pardee on Thursday after practice, to review films of their upcoming opponent and discuss what the Bears will do on defense. Otherwise, Rives will spend hours after practice, lifting weights in sessions which have added 30 pounds to his frame, now a solid 6-2, 130 pounds.

THOUGH RIVES fills the shoes of a Bear legend, Dick Butkus, he said he's never felt the pressure of such a big responsibility.

"That's because no one ever took me seriously when I first got here."

When Rives first reported to the Bear camp fresh out of Texas Tech four years ago, in Butkus' last playing season, few thought he'd make it. He weighed only 200 pounds then, small by National Football League standards.

But confidence, determination and weightlifting and the additional 30 pounds have changed all that. Overcoming a foot injury that sidelined him much of last season, Rives has turned into an important cog in the Bears' defense.

Most of Saturday is taken up, though the players do get the afternoon off before a home game. After a 9 a.m. to noon workout, the players are free until 7:30 p.m., when they must report to a hotel for a team meeting and overnight sleeping accommodations, a practice followed by many of the other NFL squads.

SATURDAY IS even busier when the team plays on the road. Following the short morning workout, the players report to O'Hare for the charter flight, which last week went to Detroit.

Saturday night there's another team meeting and an 11 o'clock room check, when all players are required to be in.

After the 7:30 team meeting, some retire to their rooms for backgammon or cards, while others head out for a late dinner or movie, making their way through the lobby that usually has autograph seekers waiting.

For Rives in Detroit, there was dinner with some cousins he usually sees only once a year, then back to the room for some backgammon with his roommate, center Dan Neal.

After a phone call home to his wife, Sammye, he will take in a late movie to fall asleep.

Kennedy arrival reminds fan of exciting season

Art Mugalian
Staff Sportswriter

Local sportswriters are already writing themselves blue over the relative demerits of Bob Kennedy and Herman Franks, the latest in a long line of Chicago Cub heart specialists who bravely try to pump life into a franchise that cannot seem to win at baseball.

Kennedy is too much a corporation man, they say. He won't be aggressive enough, bold enough, to turn the Cubs into a winner. He won't trade for a pennant. Andy Franks? He's too old, too crotchety, too set in his ways. And besides, Franks is a millionaire, they point out. He won't be hungry enough to manage the ubs to a title.

BUT CUB FANS should welcome the arrival of the newcomers, especially in the case of Kennedy, the new general manager. and those fans should be put on notice that old P. K. Wrigley still knows what he's doing.

Kennedy is the man who, in 1963, guided the Cubs to their first winning season in 17 years. Sure, it was only 82-80, but a whole generation of Cub fans didn't know what a .500 season meant until Kennedy came along.

He did it with a 22-game winner who had no fastball, a switch-hitting slugger who thought he was still in the Texas League, and the best cricket-playing shortstop in the majors.

Kennedy labored under another big handicap that year. He wasn't the manager; he was head coach.

AS CONVENTIONAL as P. K. Wrigley may seem to some folks, the venerable gum magnate is actually quite an innovator. Back in 1962, Wrigley decided that if the local university needed an athletic director, why then his Cubs should have one, too.

The A.D. would have responsibility over a panel of eight "rotating coaches" whose task was to roam the Cubs' minor league system searching for talent and trying to impart valuable bits of baseball knowledge to the young farm products. When they weren't doing that, the coaches had to spend their time at Wrigley Field, searching for talent on the parent team.

It was a unique situation Kennedy stepped into, then, in 1963. As head coach (somebody had to make the decision to walk Willie McCovey or let him hit a three-run HR), Kennedy took a team that was 59-103 the year before and made them an 82-80 winner overnight.

Dick Ellsworth won 22 games and lost 10 and his 2.10 ERA was second only to Sandy Koufax. Ellis Burton, formerly of the Houston Buffs, slammed 12 homers, some left-handed, some right. And Andre Rodgers, without his sticky wicket, led the league in errors but won a place on my all-star team.

AN 82-80 RECORD was quite an accomplishment for a team that had Dick Bertell catching, a prematurely gray Ernie Banks at first, and a clumpy kid named Lou Brock in the outfield.

But the Cubs also had Ron Santo, Billy Williams, Larry Jackson, Kenny Hubbs and Lindy McDaniel. Kennedy brought them all together. That Cubs' team played exciting baseball. They were in first place as late as June.

And Cub fans remember. I know that I do. Wrigley knows it too. He knows that Kennedy represents success in the minds of Cub fans who remember 1963.

Hiring Kennedy, the Cubs can reclaim some of that lost innocence of the pre-Durocher days. Minus the athletic director, of course.

BUT HOW DO you explain Herman Franks? He has a direct link to Durocher; he coached under Leo here. And worse yet, he belongs to the old breed of managers. He makes the late, lamented Jim Marshall look like Billy Martin.

So why Franks? Well, he's a friend of Kennedy's, for one thing, and that's a good enough reason, I guess.

One thing is bothering me about Kennedy, though. A memory, a glimpse into the man's personality, a suggestion that maybe Kennedy doesn't have the desire to be a pennant winner in the big time.

In 1963, at the end of the season's last game, Kennedy pulled out an old piece of paper that he had folded into the lining of his uniform back in April. He showed it to the reporters and photographers who obligingly recorded the moment for posterity.

SCRAWLED ON that yellowed slip of paper, in Kennedy's hand, was "82-80." It was a testimony to Kennedy's acumen, an indication of his baseball savvy. He had correctly forecast an 82-80 season during spring training.

Some of us think the 1963 Cubs could have done better than 82-80. And I've always wondered what Kennedy would have done with that piece of paper if the Cubs had won the pennant.

Kennedy arrival reminds fan of exciting season

Staff Sportswriter

Local sportswriters are already writing themselves blue over the relative demerits of Bob Kennedy and Herman Franks, the latest in a long line of Chicago Cub heart specialists who bravely try to pump life into a franchise that cannot seem to win at baseball.

Kennedy is too much a corporation man, they say. He won't be aggressive enough, bold enough, to turn the Cubs into a winner. He won't trade for a pennant. Andy Franks? He's too old, too crotchety, too set in his ways. And besides, Franks is a millionaire, they point out. He won't be hungry enough to manage the ubs to a title.

BUT CUB FANS should welcome the arrival of the newcomers, especially in the case of Kennedy, the new general manager. and those fans should be put on notice that old P. K. Wrigley still knows what he's doing.

Kennedy is the man who, in 1963, guided the Cubs to their first winning season in 17 years. Sure, it was only 82-80, but a whole generation of Cub fans didn't know what a .500 season meant until Kennedy came along.

He did it with a 22-game winner who had no fastball, a switch-hitting slugger who thought he was still in the Texas League, and the best cricket-playing shortstop in the majors.

Kennedy labored under another big handicap that year. He wasn't the manager; he was head coach.

AS CONVENTIONAL as P. K. Wrigley may seem to some folks, the venerable gum magnate is actually quite an innovator. Back in 1962, Wrigley decided that if the local university needed an athletic director, why then his Cubs should have one, too.

The A.D. would have responsibility over a panel of eight "rotating coaches" whose task was to roam the Cubs' minor league system searching for talent and trying to impart valuable bits of baseball knowledge to the young farm products. When they weren't doing that, the coaches had to spend their time at Wrigley Field, searching for talent on the parent team.

It was a unique situation Kennedy stepped into, then, in 1963. As head coach (somebody had to make the decision to walk Willie McCovey or let him hit a three-run HR), Kennedy took a team that was 59-103 the year before and made them an 82-80 winner overnight.

Dick Ellsworth won 22 games and lost 10 and his 2.10 ERA was second only to Sandy Koufax. Ellis Burton, formerly of the Houston Buffs, slammed 12 homers, some left-handed, some right. And Andre Rodgers, without his sticky wicket, led the league in errors but won a place on my all-star team.

AN 82-80 RECORD was quite an accomplishment for a team that had Dick Bertell catching, a prematurely gray Ernie Banks at first, and a clumpy kid named Lou Brock in the outfield.

But the Cubs also had Ron Santo, Billy Williams, Larry Jackson, Kenny Hubbs and Lindy McDaniel. Kennedy brought them all together. That Cubs' team played exciting baseball. They were in first place as late as June.

And Cub fans remember. I know that I do. Wrigley knows it too. He knows that Kennedy represents success in the minds of Cub fans who remember 1963.

Hiring Kennedy, the Cubs can reclaim some of that lost innocence of the pre-Durocher days. Minus the athletic director, of course.

BUT HOW DO you explain Herman Franks? He has a direct link to Durocher; he coached under Leo here. And worse yet, he belongs to the old breed of managers. He makes the late, lamented Jim Marshall look like Billy Martin.

So why Franks? Well, he's a friend of Kennedy's, for one thing, and that's a good enough reason, I guess.

One thing is bothering me about Kennedy, though. A memory, a glimpse into the man's personality, a suggestion that maybe Kennedy doesn't have the desire to be a pennant winner in the big time.

In 1963, at the end of the season's last game, Kennedy pulled out an old piece of paper that he had folded into the lining of his uniform back in April. He showed it to the reporters and photographers who obligingly recorded the moment for posterity.

SCRAWLED ON that yellowed slip of paper, in Kennedy's hand, was "82-80." It was a testimony to Kennedy's acumen, an indication of his baseball savvy. He had correctly forecast an 82-80 season during spring training.

Some of us think the 1963 Cubs could have done better than 82-80. And I've always wondered what Kennedy would have done with that piece of paper if the Cubs had won the pennant.

Crying fowl

Outdoors
Jim Cook
Outdoor Editor
394-2300

It's an adventure in the goose blind outside the pint-sized town of Cairo, Ill., in an area appropriately called "Little Egypt" country.

The bench in the blind is unyielding despite shifts in weight distribution and the additional padding of an extra jacket.

The sky is still dark and overcast. The wind is blustery out of the northeast. All the so-called "tangibles" of goose hunting are favorable.

FINALLY, THE clock strikes sunrise and the war begins. The "enemy" is some 200,000 honkers that have rented winter homes in the plush downstate area.

The geese are bound for the fields — a virtual resort atmosphere in the refuges of Crab Orchard, Horseshoe Lake and Union County.

Upwards of 200,000 honkers are on hand, comparable to the numbers at this time one year ago, but spread evenly among the three shooting spas.

Over one-tenth of these geese will be harvested by hunters who are allowed to bag 22,000. The question is how long it will take.

LAST YEAR, the 22,000 quota was reached by Christmas, although the season was scheduled to extend to Jan. 20. Hunters are bound by the same deadline again this season and most veteran shooters are predicting another premature finish.

But that will, of course, depend on some intangibles, too. Like a bright December moon and sunny days which encourage wild birds to feed during the night hours.

When geese are out all night, they sleep all day, much to the chagrin of hunters crouching in blinds.

But conditions are ideal and a flock of Canadas are picking up the urgent signals of skilled callers in the blinds.

THEY DIP THEIR wings and make a curiosity pass over the bobbing decoys, searching once more for that false move, out-of-place color, conversation or the glare of the sun or moon off the steel barrel of a shotgun.

The callers are tooting irresistably now and the geese are preparing to lock their wings and glide into the marsh water to join their inanimate friends.

But while they are still 100 yards away, a hunter leaps from his blind and empties his three-shot clip. Nothing drops. He wasn't even close.

The geese spook, scatter and wing it for safety. Other hunters are growling, their gun safeties still on.

THE PRACTICE is called "skybusting." The incident is unfortunately typical.

A rookie shooter looking down the barrel of his shotgun sees something different than the veteran goose-gunner. The beginner is awed by the size of the birds.

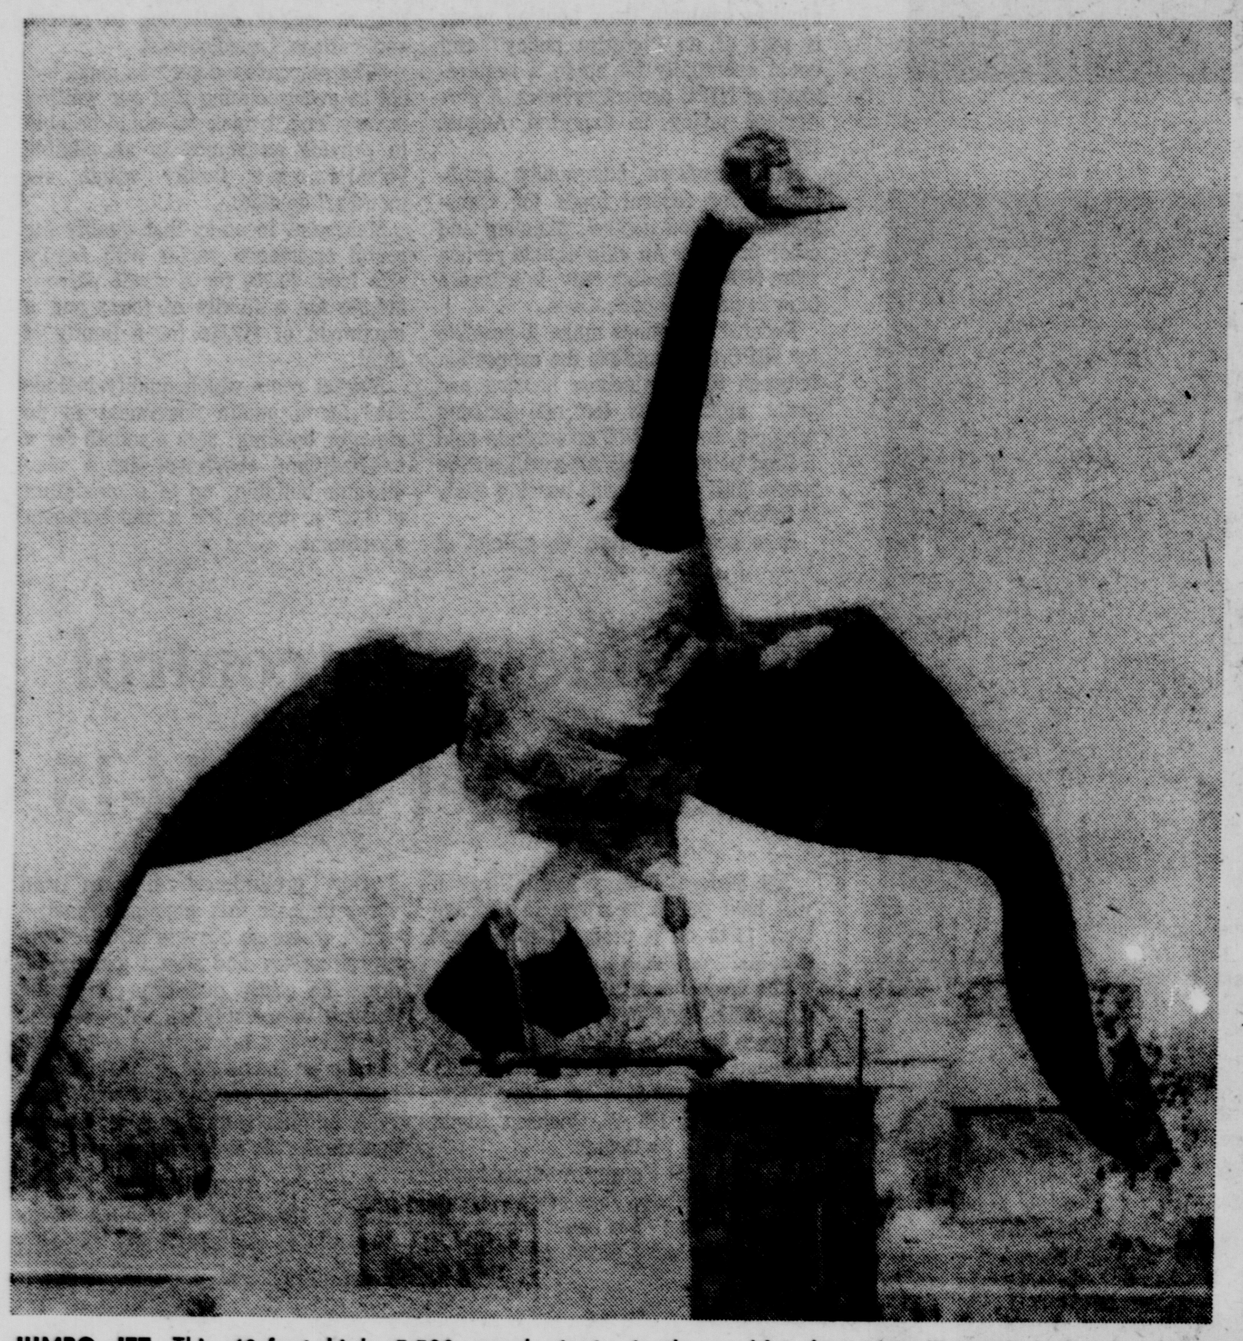
The first impression of a Canada goose is that it's actually a Boeing 747. Impossible to miss . . . at any range.

The type of gun being used is also significant. Most long-barreled "goose guns" are full choke which means that the shot pattern remains dense at a greater distance.

A MODIFIED choke presents a broader pattern, but is restricted in range and the improved cylinder model is almost ineffective against the big, powerful geese.

The appropriate equipment takes some of the adventure out of goose shooting, but it doesn't stabilize the human element. That will always be as unpredictable as the weather.

GOOSE TOOTER. Calling geese is a sophisticated art, but it all goes for naught when a novice hunter begins shooting when the birds are still out of range.



JUMBO JET. This 40-foot high, 5,500-pound giant Canada goose is what novice hunters must envision on their first trip to the quota zone counties in southern Illinois. Actually, the largest goose statue in the world is known as "Maxie" and is headquartered in Summer, Mo. The $16,000 bird was one of the most impressive Bicentennial projects in the country.

Deer presenting driving hazard

November and December are the worst months for deer kills on Illinois highways and motorists are urged to be especially watchful for deer along the roads during this period.

From dusk to midnight, drivers should be especially alert. Drive with caution near wooded areas and where "Deer Crossing" signs are posted.

Whitetail are now in rutting season. As a result, they move about more readily. Hunting pressure also disperses deer to some extent. Reduced speed limits have helped to cut road kills. Still 1,360 deer died on roads last year.

Summer resorts brace for winter

by VIC WATIA

EAGLE HARBOR, Mich. — To most summer funseekers and resort owners, the first snows of winter mark the end of the season and the beginning of the long wait.

To Bill and Marie Langdon, the snows, shrouding the jackpines and birches in a scene of pristeen tranquility, mark the end of one season and the beginning of another even more exciting.

Completion of a new, 50-mile snowmobile trail in Michigan's Upper Peninsula has bolstered the Langdons' hopes of turning this tiny north woods haven into a year-round hideaway for outdoor sports enthusiasts.

THE SNOW-covered woods and glittering frozen lakes provide all the beauty and advantages of the alpine hideaways, except the mountains.

There is ice fishing, cross country skiing, snow-shoeing and just plain relaxing in the crisp, clean, quiet woods. And best of all, at least to Bill Langdon — there is snowmobiling.

The new trail, winding through Keweenaw and Houghton counties from Copper Harbor to the village of Laurium, provides some of the most breathtaking forest scenery the area has to offer. But the new snowmobile paradise is as yet undiscovered by most out-of-state snowmobiling enthusiasts.

But the Langdons of Eagle Harbor are betting it won't stay undiscovered.

"HAVE YOU ever seen anything as beautiful as this?" Langdon said, showing me a photograph of a snowmobiler parked near a clump of birch trees on a bluff overlooking Lake Superior.

"Or this?" he said, producing a picture of a lone cross country skier on a snowcovered, tree-canopied trail.

Keweenaw County annually draws thousands of tourists during the summer and fall months. Its scenery is second to none and there are endless stretches of beaches where visitors can search for semi-precious agates washed ashore by Lake Superior.

But the Langdons believe winter offers as much, if not more, for the visitor. For example, instead of the scenic car ride up Keweenaw's Brockway Mountain Drive, visitors can view such tourist attractions by snowmobile or on cross country skiis. And, there's snowshoeing, ice fishing and hunting.

FOR THE amateur photographer or nature lover there are frozen creeks, snow-laden pines, a vast array of winter wildlife and a multitude of other subjects. And there's plenty of solitude.

"We tried to talk other resort owners into staying open with us, but we didn't have any success," Langdon said.

For that reason, the Langdons are the only resort owners in Eagle Harbor who are staying open through the winter. They plan to keep their Four Seasons Resort motel and restaurant open year-round.

Illinois remains under fire watch

The danger of forest and ground cover fires in Illinois is great at this time. Foresters throughout the state issue daily fire danger ratings as precautionary measures. Following is a brief summary of the system used:

The fire rating for any given day will fall into one of five categories — low, moderate, high, very high or extreme. Ratings are computed using the National Fire Danger Rating System. It is the rate of fire spread in a timber, rate of fire spread in fields, relative humidity, moisture content of fuels and wind speed.

ONCE THE rating factors have been established a fire build-up index is computed, and the number rating translated into fire classifications which are then reported to the public. Index numbers, ratings and definitions are:

0-9 - Low - Fires will start from a lighted match, but tend to go out. The fire will not generally spread.

10-19 - Moderate - Firest start readily from a match, burn briskly and tend to spread rapidly as they increase in size.

20-29 - High - Fires start readily from a match or glowing cinder, spread rapidly and tend to crown (burn to the top) of young conifers.

30-39 - Very High - Fires will start from glowing cigarette butts or sparks; tend to spread rapidly and will crown in most trees. Spot fires are common (carried by wind ahead of main fire).

40-above - Extreme - Fires are in explosive conditions. They start readily from sparks, burn fiercely, crown readily and are generally accompanied by many spot fires.

RATINGS WILL vary from day to day, with a small rain or absence of wind reducing the index number a small amount, while a large rain (one inch or more) might reduce the index to zero.

A typical day rating would be:

Relative humidity - 51%; Vegetation in "cured" stage - 1; Moisture in fuels - 9.

The drying factor is then computed and added to the previous days build-up index: 2 + 27 equal 31. Using a slide rule, and adding a wind speed of four miles per hour, the rating would then be 16 for timber areas and 22 for field and ground cover locations, or moderate to high.

The system does not take into consideration "risk" factors involved such as weekends, holidays and opening days of hunting seasons, when more people are likely to be in forest areas.

DURING PERIODS of extended moderate to very high ratings, foresters use aircraft daily to check for fires. The flights generally cover the southern third of the state and the Illinois River valley. The public is used to report on fires in other areas of the state.

Although fire towers are still standing in some parts of the state, they are rarely used, with foresters climbing to the top only occasionally for quick looks at the immediate vicinity.

To report a forest or open grassland fire, contact any local conservation office, your local fire department, or the nearest police.

Crying fowl

Outdoors
Jim Cook
Outdoor Editor
394-2300

It's an adventure in the goose blind outside the pint-sized town of Cairo, Ill., in an area appropriately called "Little Egypt" country.

The bench in the blind is unyielding despite shifts in weight distribution and the additional padding of an extra jacket.

The sky is still dark and overcast. The wind is blustery out of the northeast. All the so-called "tangibles" of goose hunting are favorable.

FINALLY, THE clock strikes sunrise and the war begins. The "enemy" is some 200,000 honkers that have rented winter homes in the plush downstate area.

The geese are bound for the fields — a virtual resort atmosphere in the refuges of Crab Orchard, Horseshoe Lake and Union County.

Upwards of 200,000 honkers are on hand, comparable to the numbers at this time one year ago, but spread evenly among the three shooting spas.

Over one-tenth of these geese will be harvested by hunters who are allowed to bag 22,000. The question is how long it will take.

LAST YEAR, the 22,000 quota was reached by Christmas, although the season was scheduled to extend to Jan. 20. Hunters are bound by the same deadline again this season and most veteran shooters are predicting another premature finish.

But that will, of course, depend on some intangibles, too. Like a bright December moon and sunny days which encourage wild birds to feed during the night hours.

When geese are out all night, they sleep all day, much to the chagrin of hunters crouching in blinds.

But conditions are ideal and a flock of Canadas are picking up the urgent signals of skilled callers in the blinds.

THEY DIP THEIR wings and make a curiosity pass over the bobbing decoys, searching once more for that false move, out-of-place color, conversation or the glare of the sun or moon off the steel barrel of a shotgun.

The callers are tooting irresistably now and the geese are preparing to lock their wings and glide into the marsh water to join their inanimate friends.

But while they are still 100 yards away, a hunter leaps from his blind and empties his three-shot clip. Nothing drops. He wasn't even close.

The geese spook, scatter and wing it for safety. Other hunters are growling, their gun safeties still on.

THE PRACTICE is called "skybusting." The incident is unfortunately typical.

A rookie shooter looking down the barrel of his shotgun sees something different than the veteran goose-gunner. The beginner is awed by the size of the birds.

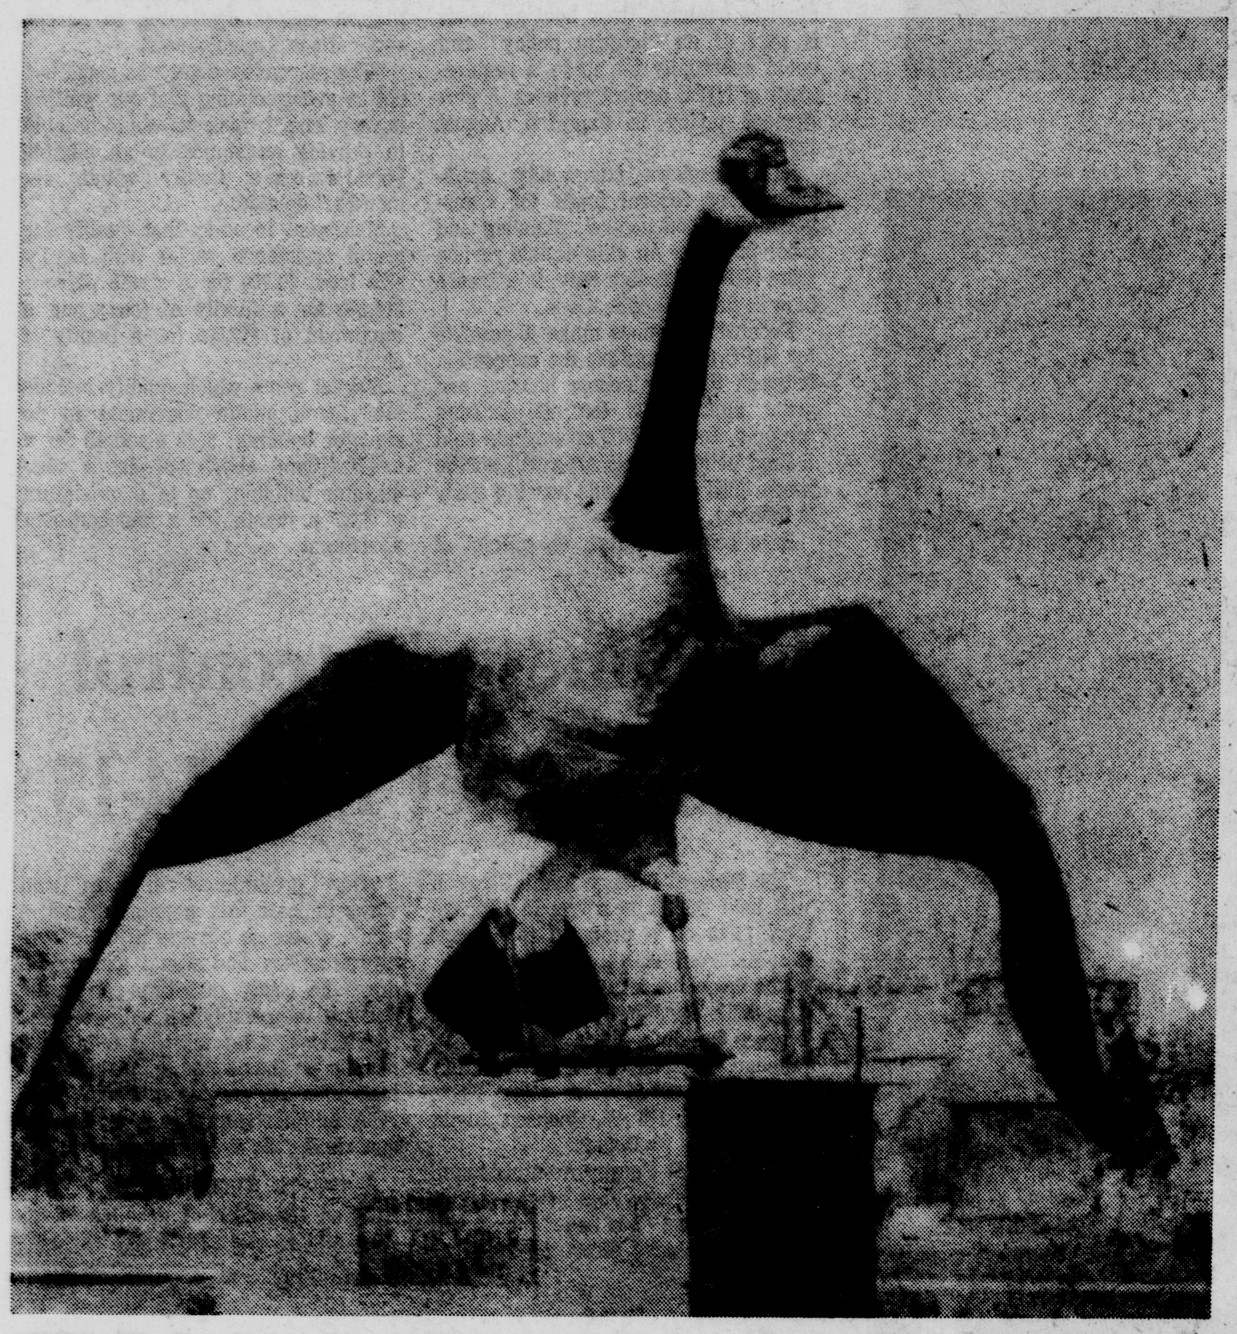
The first impression of a Canada goose is that it's actually a Boeing 747. Impossible to miss . . . at any range.

The type of gun being used is also significant. Most long-barreled "goose guns" are full choke which means that the shot pattern remains dense at a greater distance.

A MODIFIED choke presents a broader pattern, but is restricted in range and the improved cylinder model is almost ineffective against the big, powerful geese.

The appropriate equipment takes some of the adventure out of goose shooting, but it doesn't stabilize the human element. That will always be as unpredictable as the weather.

GOOSE TOOTER. Calling geese is a sophisticated art, but it all goes for naught when a novice hunter begins shooting when the birds are still out of range.



JUMBO JET. This 40-foot high, 5,500-pound giant Canada goose is what novice hunters must envision on their first trip to the quota zone counties in southern Illinois. Actually, the largest goose statue in the world is known as "Maxie" and is headquartered in Summer, Mo. The $16,000 bird was one of the most impressive Bicentennial projects in the country.

Deer presenting driving hazard

November and December are the worst months for deer kills on Illinois highways and motorists are urged to be especially watchful for deer along the roads during this period.

From dusk to midnight, drivers should be especially alert. Drive with caution near wooded areas and where "Deer Crossing" signs are posted.

Whitetail are now in rutting season. As a result, they move about more readily. Hunting pressure also disperses deer to some extent. Reduced speed limits have helped to cut road kills. Still 1,360 deer died on roads last year.

Summer resorts brace for winter

by VIC WATIA

EAGLE HARBOR, Mich. — To most summer funseekers and resort owners, the first snows of winter mark the end of the season and the beginning of the long wait.

To Bill and Marie Langdon, the snows, shrouding the jackpines and birches in a scene of pristeen tranquility, mark the end of one season and the beginning of another even more exciting.

Completion of a new, 50-mile snowmobile trail in Michigan's Upper Peninsula has bolstered the Langdons' hopes of turning this tiny north woods haven into a year-round hideaway for outdoor sports enthusiasts.

THE SNOW-covered woods and glittering frozen lakes provide all the beauty and advantages of the alpine hideaways, except the mountains.

There is ice fishing, cross country skiing, snow-shoeing and just plain relaxing in the crisp, clean, quiet woods. And best of all, at least to Bill Langdon — there is snowmobiling.

The new trail, winding through Keweenaw and Houghton counties from Copper Harbor to the village of Laurium, provides some of the most breathtaking forest scenery the area has to offer. But the new snowmobile paradise is as yet undiscovered by most out-of-state snowmobiling enthusiasts.

But the Langdons of Eagle Harbor are betting it won't stay undiscovered.

"HAVE YOU ever seen anything as beautiful as this?" Langdon said, showing me a photograph of a snowmobiler parked near a clump of birch trees on a bluff overlooking Lake Superior.

"Or this?" he said, producing a picture of a lone cross country skier on a snowcovered, tree-canopied trail.

Keweenaw County annually draws thousands of tourists during the summer and fall months. Its scenery is second to none and there are endless stretches of beaches where visitors can search for semi-precious agates washed ashore by Lake Superior.

But the Langdons believe winter offers as much, if not more, for the visitor. For example, instead of the scenic car ride up Keweenaw's Brockway Mountain Drive, visitors can view such tourist attractions by snowmobile or on cross country skiis. And, there's snowshoeing, ice fishing and hunting.

FOR THE amateur photographer or nature lover there are frozen creeks, snow-laden pines, a vast array of winter wildlife and a multitude of other subjects. And there's plenty of solitude.

"We tried to talk other resort owners into staying open with us, but we didn't have any success," Langdon said.

For that reason, the Langdons are the only resort owners in Eagle Harbor who are staying open through the winter. They plan to keep their Four Seasons Resort motel and restaurant open year-round.

Illinois remains under fire watch

The danger of forest and ground cover fires in Illinois is great at this time. Foresters throughout the state issue daily fire danger ratings as precautionary measures. Following is a brief summary of the system used:

The fire rating for any given day will fall into one of five categories — low, moderate, high, very high or extreme. Ratings are computed using the National Fire Danger Rating System. It is the rate of fire spread in a timber, rate of fire spread in fields, relative humidity, moisture content of fuels and wind speed.

ONCE THE rating factors have been established a fire build-up index is computed, and the number rating translated into fire classifications which are then reported to the public. Index numbers, ratings and definitions are:

0-9 - Low - Fires will start from a lighted match, but tend to go out. The fire will not generally spread.

10-19 - Moderate - Firest start readily from a match, burn briskly and tend to spread rapidly as they increase in size.

20-29 - High - Fires start readily from a match or glowing cinder, spread rapidly and tend to crown (burn to the top) of young conifers.

30-39 - Very High - Fires will start from glowing cigarette butts or sparks; tend to spread rapidly and will crown in most trees. Spot fires are common (carried by wind ahead of main fire).

40-above - Extreme - Fires are in explosive conditions. They start readily from sparks, burn fiercely, crown readily and are generally accompanied by many spot fires.

RATINGS WILL vary from day to day, with a small rain or absence of wind reducing the index number a small amount, while a large rain (one inch or more) might reduce the index to zero.

A typical day rating would be:

Relative humidity - 51%; Vegetation in "cured" stage - 1; Moisture in fuels - 9.

The drying factor is then computed and added to the previous days build-up index: 2 + 27 equal 31. Using a slide rule, and adding a wind speed of four miles per hour, the rating would then be 16 for timber areas and 22 for field and ground cover locations, or moderate to high.

The system does not take into consideration "risk" factors involved such as weekends, holidays and opening days of hunting seasons, when more people are likely to be in forest areas.

DURING PERIODS of extended moderate to very high ratings, foresters use aircraft daily to check for fires. The flights generally cover the southern third of the state and the Illinois River valley. The public is used to report on fires in other areas of the state.

Although fire towers are still standing in some parts of the state, they are rarely used, with foresters climbing to the top only occasionally for quick looks at the immediate vicinity.

Toy store busy on first day of Yule shopping

by LEA TONKIN

The biggest shopping day of the year began early for Yoit Callaghan.

By 8:30 afriday morning, she had noticed waiting shoppers dawdling near the entranceways at Schaumburg's Woodfield Shopping Center. And when the doors to Creative Playthings opened at 9:30 a.m., customers were in line to browse in the upper-level toy steore.

The annual Christmas holiday shopping frenzy had dawned. For Ms. Callaghan and fellow storekeepers, the day after Thanksgiving is generally second to none as measured in holiday sales, numbers of customers and sheer exhaustion.

"I'M SETTING UP an extra table in the front," Ms Callaghan called to one of her sales staff. As manager of the toy store, she had made sure there would be extra help on hand for the crush of holiday shoppers. The table would be manned to accommodate customers who paid for their purchase by check.

The phone rang. A record store manager called to announced that he had received a shipment of merchandise intended for Creative Playthings. Ms. Callaghan dashed out of the store, down to the record store. Just after she left, the record store manager called back to say the items were really intended for his shop.

A dark-haired woman said she was looking for a fairy dress for her little girl. Did the store have one in the right size? Ms. Callaghan walked to the back of the store, checking the outlet's inventory of costumes. A pink ballerina costume was found in the right size. "But she really wanted a fairy dress," the customer said, pointing out the blue gown used for display. Ms. Callaghan decided to sell the display gown, marking down the price.

Children and adults crowded the store aisles, trying out puppets and exercise bars. One elderly customer played the "xylopipes" accompanied by an amateur, preschool guitar plucker. A little boy made his way straight to the rack of wind-up toys and methodically setting them all spinning, clacking and squealing.

"I WANT THIS! a curly-haired little girl said, rushing towards a baby carriage. She couldn't push it very far down the aisle. Boxes of unpacked toys stook in her way.

Ms. Callaghan says she put away most of the toys that came into the store this week, but "we got two, 500 piece shipments Tuesday and Wednesday, they weren't supposed to come back to back."

By 10 a.m., Ms. Callaghan was dividing her energies between the cash register and questions from customers. Surrounded by costumed dolls, stuffed bears and other toys, she fielded questions quickly.

"How much is Filmore?" asked a man who was looking at a floppy stuffed dog.

"He's $24.95," Ms. Callaghan said.

"How about this gym set?" a lady asked. "It's $65," Ms. Callaghan said.

A SMALL BOY, whose skating cap was pulled down nearly to his nose, set a large red magnet on the counter. He gave Ms. Callaghan two rumpled $1 bills. "Let's see, honey. Do you have enough money It costs $3.95, I'm sorry," she said, as he turned away.

Amidst the hubbub of the children and adults at play, Ms. Callaghan seems to take it all in with pleasure. "We leave the toys out for the children and everyone, because that's the fun part," she said.

Adults as well as kids have fun in the store, Ms. Callaghan said. "It gives them a chance to play.

"It's a part of ourselves we shouldn't lose," Ms. Callaghan said of child's play. "Although we should be more mature about some things, we should not lose the ability to play."

TOYS, STUFFED animals and games are gifts purchased for adults as well as children. Ms. Callaghan said she also has noticed the trend toward purchases of quality, traditional toys such as doll houses, kitchen sets and ladder exercisers.

As the day goes on, the number of browsers and buyers continues to increase.

A customer asks for a Winnie the Pooh bear. Ms. callaghan accompanies the shopper to a group of stuffed teddys, pointing out one that is "just beautiful."

A rocking ride for a pint-sized cowboy.

Yoit Callaghan exchanges glances with "Filmore."

4 more suburbs urged to study housing needs

by KURT BAER

The Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission has cited four more Northwest suburbs that should study their low-income housing needs when they apply for federal funds.

Des Plaines, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg and Wheeling were identified by NIPC as communities that have more than 5,000 jobs, but fewer than one low-or moderate-income housing unit for every three jobs and less than 2 per cent minority population.

Arlington Heights, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect and Palatine were named last week along with 22 other Chicago suburbs.

THE SUGGESTION that the communites evaluate their housing needs is part of an "interim policy" and could eventually be made a requirement of NIPC project reviews. A permanent policy is expected August 1977.

NIPC reviews community applications for federal funds for transportation, flood control, planning and other projects. An unfavorable review from NIPC, although rare, is a severe blow to project applications.

Federal guidelines make it possible for NIPC to strengthen the connection between the low-income housing and grant applications for non housing projects. But a NIPC spokesman said a final policy in this area will not be made until an areawide housing study is finished.

In a related matter, an official of the Cook County Housing Authority said the first six leases negotiated under a new rent subsidy plan for low-income families will go into effect in suburban Cook County about Dec. 1.

ELIGIBLE LOW-INCOME families pay no more than 15 to 25 per cent of their income for rent, under the plan. The county, using funds from the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, pays the balance directly to the landlord.

Scott Lancelot, field representative for the housing authority, said about 50 applicants for rent subsidies have been approved, but that only about six of them have found housing. Landlord participation is voluntary.

The housing authority Aug. 4. took applications for the program, in Des Plaines and is continuing to accept applications, Lancelot said.

"The response we got was good, but not so overwhelming that our waiting is very long. I think we would be able to provide assistance to an eligible low-income family within six months," he said.

Maximum incomes that qualify for rental assistance varies with family size from $9,900 for a single person; $14,200 for a family of four; and a maximum of $17,800 for a family of eight.

Market rents which qualify include $193 for a studio apartment in an elevator building; $243 a month for a two-bedroom apartment in a non-elevator building; up to a maximum of $337 a month for a four-bedroom apartment.

Gasoline price control hearings set Dec. 14-15

The Federal Energy Administration will hold public hearings in Chicago Dec. 14-15 on a proposal to exempt gasoline from federal price controls.

The hearings will be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days in Room 2525 of the Dirksen Building, 219 S. Dearborn St., Chicago. Persons who want to testity should call 353-8549 or write FEA, Room A-333, 175 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago 60604 by Dec. 9.

The Federal Energy Administration has recommended that price controls be lifted based on a belief that it will have no harmful effect on price or supply.

"Our preliminary findings and views indicate that gasoline decontrol would create no adverse price or supply situations and would greatly reduce the costly and time-consuming burden of complying with current regulations, a burden that falls most heavily on the 200,000 small businessmen who run service stations," said FEA Administrator Frank G. Zarb in announcing the agency's proposal.

A decision on whether to lift controls on the price of gasoline is expected to be one of the last decisions of President Ford's administration.

Area banks, S&Ls to sell postal stamps for holidays

Holiday postal stamps will again be sold at area banks and savings and loan associations, the U.S. Postal Service announced.

Both religious and secular subject stamps will be on sale at Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Assn., Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights, Douglas Savings and Loan, First Arlington National Bank, North Point State Bank and Northwest Trust and Savings Bank, Arlington Heights.

Stamps also are on sale at the Bank of Elk Grove Village, Financial Security and Savings and Loan Assn. of Elk Grove Village, and Suburban National Bank of Elk Grove Village, Elk Grove Village; and the Bank of Rolling Meadows.

7-Eleven stores collect tots' toys

7-Eleven food stores in the Northwest suburbs are accepting toy donations as part of the 29th annual "Toys for Tots" sponsored by the U.S. Marine Corps.

Barrels will be put in each store after Dec. 1 where persons can drop off toys that will be distributed to needy families at Christmas. New toys or toys that are in good shape and immediately usable are requested. The Toys for Tots program cannot repair broken boys.

Further information on the program is available from Lt. Col. R.R. Thrasher, telephone 539-6464.

National's 50% sale draws crowd

National Tea Co. advertised it as the "Greatest Food Sale in Chicago History" and area residents took them at their words.

In its swan song in the Chicago area, National food stores threw open the doors at its Buffalo Grove and Wheeling Dundee Road stores for a 50 per cent off sale. Store officials carted in the inventories from the more than 50 closed National supermarkets for residents to take home "by the can, by the case, by the truckload."

Response to the sale apparently was overwhelming, with shoppers walking out pushing carts overflowing with meats, canned goods and other items. A spokesman for the Wheeling store, 901 Dundee Rd., said the store was so crowded that "you can't walk, move or crawl. We don't even have enough carts."

KEN TOMAFIEWICZ, manager of the Buffalo Grove outlet, 1300 Dundee Rd., said a high turnout of shoppers were going through "everything on the shelves."

He said meat was the first food item sold out.

"We're going to be open until we run out of stock," he said.

By midafternoon, crowds in the stores thinned out. Shelves at the Wheeling store were picked clean except for isolated cartons of baby food, cleaning materials and other miscellaneous items. Tomafiewicz said half his store's stock was sold out by 2:30 p.m.

NATIONAL OFFICIALS said the sale will continue as long as a supply of merchandise is available.

"We could close Dec. 4, 11, 18 or the 25 depending on when our stock runs out," one spokesman said.

National and the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. (A&P) announced Oct. 1 a plan for A&P acquisition of more than 60 National stores. The $22 million transaction does not include more than 90 remaining National stores in the Chicago division.

More than 80 per cent of the National outlets, including the Wheeling and Buffalo Grove stores, will close by the end of this year unless purchased by other food chains.

Retail sales down 1% in September

Monthly retail sales figures declined 1 per cent in September because of slackening demand for new and used automobiles, the Commerce Dept. reported Friday. The monthly federal retail sales report showed that an estimated $53.9 billion worth of retail goods were sold in September, 1 per cent below the August level. But "excluding the automotive group," the report said, the sales estimates for September "were virtually unchanged from August." New and used car sales have been slumping after a good start earlier in the year. They declined 7 per cent in September from August, the report said, but still remained 16 per cent above the September, 1975, level. The Commerce Dept. said the retail sales figures reported were adjusted for seasonal variations and trading-day differences, but not for price changes. Despite the over-all monthly drop, the report said adjusted sales rose 7 per cent compared to the September 1975 level. On a quarterly basis, it said, total retail sales for July, August and September were 1 per cent above the March-June quarter and 9 per cent above the same period in 1975.

Brandy import duties raised

President Ford raised import duties on some European brandies Friday in he latest round of a longstanding trade dispute between the United States and the European Common Market. The duty increases partially restored tariff levels reduced in 1974. But the increases were less than some American farm groups had been demanding, and left levies on some European brandies untouched. Ambassador Frederick Dent, Ford's special trade representative, announced that the import duty on bottled Common Market brandies priced between $13 and $17 per gallon has been raised from $1.25 per gallon to $3 per gallon. Duties on bulk brandy selling between $9 and $17 per gallon, which had been $1 per gallon, were also boosted to $3. Dent said the increases were ordered because, despite intensive bargaining in recent months, the United States has been unable to persuade the Common Market to reduce its import duties on American poultry, particularly turkey and turkey parts.

4 more firms hike steel price

by SCOTT MACLEOD

Four more major steel companies Friday raised the cost of sheet steel 6 per cent, and if the latest increases hold, the price of steel used in manufacturing cars and appliances will have gone up 12 per cent in 1976.

There was no immediate comment from President Ford, on a working vacation at Camp David, or from president-elect Jimmy Carter in Plains, Ga.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability, after Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. and National Steel Corp. first announced increases on flatrolled products Wednesday, said it would investigate those and further steel price actions.

THE FOLLOWING companies announced increases Friday: Armco Steel Corp., Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp., Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. and Inland Steel Corp.

All six companies are among the top 10 steel producers in the United States.

There was no indication whether America's No. 1 and No. 2 producers — United States Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel Corp. — would join the others.

The new sheet prices, amounting to about $15 per ton, take effect Wednesday.

STEEL EXECUTIVES throughout the industry said the increases were justified because of high costs for energy, wages and materials. Many complained of continuing lagging profit margins.

In Detroit, General Motors said the increases would be reviewed next Poor's 500-stock index, which includes after the Thanksgiving holiday.

Most steel firms raised sheet steel prices 6 per cent in April, but that there are indications that the recent settlement with the United Auto Workers may jump the prices a bit more.

THE LATEST 6 per cent increase served to recover from a decision the industry made in August to bow to competitive pressures in a "soft" market and roll back an announced 4.5 per cent increase.

Eact time the steel industry has announced price increases in sheet steel this year, the Council on Wage and action did not affect auto prices.

Costs for 1977 Models were generally up 5 per cent in September, and Price Stability launched an inquiry. As an inflation monitor, it does not have authority to roll back prices.

The agency cleared the April increases as justified by increased costs, and abandoned an investigation in August when producers volunteered the rollback.

A.G. SCOTT, a Wheeling-Pittsburgh vice president, took issue with a statement made Wednesday by William Lilley III, acting director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, that the demand for steel products is not strong enough to sustain a 6 per cent increase.

"The flat rolled market during the past three months has been stronger than most other steel markets," said Scott. "The order volume in flat rolled products is approaching the record levels of late 1973 and 1974."

The only steel markets that remain depressed are those involving capital goods expenditures and construction, Scott said.

Dow gains 5.66 following holiday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Taking advantage of easier money and ignoring adverse news, investors drove prices broadly higher Friday in slow post-Thanksgiving trading on the New York Stock Exchange and sparked hopes a year-end rally was under way.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which gained 1.66 points Wednesday, rose another 5.66 to 956.62. That gave the closely watched average a 7.82-point gain for the holiday-shortened week. The market was closed Thursday for Thanksgiving.

On a broader scale than the Dow average, the NYSE common stock index added 0.37 to 55.33 and the average price of a common share increased by 23 cents. Standard & week, when executives return to work some over-the-counter stocks, gained 0.74 to 103.15.

ADVANCES ROUTED declines, 934 to 434, among the 1,838 issues crossing the tape.

Volume totaled 15,000,000 shares, down from the 20,420,000 traded Wednesday.

Buoyed by reports the Ford administration was trying to deregulate gasoline prices before leaving office, several oil stocks advanced. Occidental Petroleum, the Big Board's most active issue, gained ½ to 21 on 237,200 shares.

Atlantic Richfield, which has bought The Observer newspaper of London, gained 1¾ to 60-1/8. Cities Service, which said it stands to increase gas sales earnings from a Federal Power Commission ruling by $25 million, gained 1¼ to 37-5/8. Mobil and Getty were pointsized gainers.

ROYAL DUTCH Shell gained 1¾ to 48¼. The company said it will raise capital spending outside North America by about one-third next year.

Nuclear energy issues benefited from speculation customers will be looking to them once OPEC raises prices. United Nucelar gained 2½ to 32-7/8, Kerr-McGee 1-3/8 to 73¼ and Atlas Corp. ¼ to 4-1/8.

Prices closed mixed in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share decreased by 1 cent, but advances topped declines by a three-two margin. Volume totaled 2,010,000 shares, compared with 2,710,000 traded Wednesday.

Stories by Dave Ibata

They haunt flea markets, antique shops and house sales in search of the marvelous images of an ephemel al past, captured by a time machine on metal and paper.

They seek something most people have taken for granted: photographs.

But these photographs are messengers from another age: antiquities of the 19th and early 20th Centuries.

"This is a brand-new field," said Cliff Kranik, an Arlington Heights resident who, with his wife Michelle, operate the Chicago area's only catalogue center for antique photographs and paraphernalia.

Kranik explained that until the late 1960s, most persons considered old photographic mementoes only as charming nostalgia, if not inconvenient and worthless clutter. "It's amazing people took so long to realize they are natural collectables," he said.

The Kraniks have ridden the crest of the recent boom in antique photography. In 1971, they created Graphic Antiquities, and have grown with the popularity of the old images. Today their unique enterprise serves 800 customers yearly from throughout the world, and maintains a 50,000-photograph inventory taking in everything from the first images of the 1840s to the roll-film family snapshots of the 1920s.

Each collector stakes out a comfortable nook in which to immerse himself. Some collect portraits of famous statesmen; others, working class portraits taken using dirt-cheap tintypes; some seek scenic stereo views; others, war photos. One well-known collector, Walter Johnson of Columbus, Ohio, has assembled between 300 and 400 post-mortum daguerreotypes — pictures taken in the 1840s and '50s of deceased persons lying in state, treasured by the dearly departed's loved ones for years to come.

Scholarly historians are in the minority; most collectors are ordinary students and working people.

The Kraniks regularly issue catalogues, and encourage transactions through their P.O. Drawer 1234 at Arlington Heights. However, visitors to their business who expect a browser's paradise will be disappointed; most of the Kranik's stock is kept safely sealed in area bank vaults.

The hobby of collecting old images apparently has not grown to the point it can support more than one operation the likes of the Kraniks' in the Chicago area. Of the dozen major dealers of antique photography in the United States, only six — the Kraniks among them — derive the major portion of their incomes from buying and selling yesterday's memories, Kranik said.

Kranik described the antique process collectors most often encounter:

Daguerreotypes, 1840-1860. The first practical and widely-applied photographic process, in which photographic images were produced on light-sensitive sheets of silver.

"The phenomena of photography that was found in daguerreotypes of the 1840s really has no equal in terms of social impact," Kranik said. Rather than hiring an artist to render a portrait, he explained, people now could have a photographer capture a likeness, process it and present it — complete with a glass cover-plate and a gold-gilded leather frame — in perhaps an hour's time.

While initially relatively expensive, costing between $5 and $8 for a sitting, daguerreotype photography became less costly as techniques improved and more practitioners brought competition to the field. By the 1850s, "Anyone with 25 cents could have his picture taken" Kranik said.

Ambrotypes, 1855-1865. A light-sensitive "collodian" was painted on a sheet of glass and exposed in a camera. The deliberately under-exposed negative then was laid on a black surface and framed to appear as a positive.

Tintypes, 1854-1930. The poor man's photography, in which a light-sensitive chemical was spread on a black metal backing and exposed. Once processed, the image proved durable, though of rather poor quality even by photographic standards of the mid-19th Century. "Class" photographers snubbed the tintypers, who were especially popular among soldiers of the Civil War.

Cartes de Visite, 1860-1890. "Visiting card" photographs which were the first to adapt images reproduced on paper by negatives for widespread use. The use of negatives as an intermediary step between camera and framed photograph gave photography the capability of mass production. More than one image could be derived from a single sitting, unlike paper photography's predecessors.

People had their portraits printed up by the hundreds, and used them as calling cards. Families put out baskets in front entrances of homes so that visitors could deposit their Cartes de Visite. Because this pleasant social custom caught on so well in the mid-1800s, today's collector's market is glutted with such items.

"It revolutionized the whole field," Kranik said. Before, having one's picture taken "was a very formal, very ceremonious occasion." People sat in a rigid, upright chair, and stared, unsmiling, into the camera.

People started smiling for the Cartes de Visite, Kranik said.

Photography studios also sold Cartes de Visites of famous persons. Later, larger format paper photographs of well-known scenes were sold as "Cabinet Cards," to be displayed in family parlors.

Kodak introduced the world's first roll film camera in 1889, and marketed it specifically for the average citizen; "You press the button, and we do the rest," boasted the advertising slogan. And after even Grandma mastered George Eastman's wonderful box, photography lost much of its mystique.

Old photographs gathered dust and cobwebs in millions of attics and basements around the country. People forgot the early glamor the silver images once evoked. But in 1970, a single event revived the romance of early photographs.

That year, the Parke-Bernet Galleries of New York City auctioned off the massive, 30-year collection of the estate of Sidney Strober. Incredibly cheap prices were posted to all comers. "That really electrified the whole collecting community," Kranik said. Before, the few serious collectors worked alone, with little or no contact with fellow enthusiasts. Suddenly all were brought together for a holiday the likes of which probably never will happen again.

Photographs that today sell for between $300 and $500 each were dumped for between $50 and $75. The Strober collection fanned out across the nation, sparking interest wherever parts of it were displayed. The boom was on.

The demand for antique photographs has skyrocketed. A daguerreotype of President Millard Fillmore in 1971 was bought for $500; in 1976, it was sold for $3,000. A daguerreotype of Edgar Allen Poe recently was purchased for $38,000 — the most ever paid for a single photograph.

Factors that determine the value of an antique image are demand, subject matter, personalities depicted, the photographer who took the picture, quality of the image, a multitude of influences unique to each process and the whims of each collector.

Processing daguerreotypes is a dangerous business

Three weeks after collector and photographer Cliff Kranik started intensive experimentation with daguerreotypes, chemical poisoning set in.

He felt spells of dizziness; he could not breathe deeply without pain; and the joints of his knees and elbows became inflamed. After the third week, Kranik wisely decided to end his experiments with the highly volatile 19th-Century photographic process.

"I really got the feeling I was doing myself some damage, even while working with a ventilation hood," Kranik said.

A French artist and experimenter, L.J.M. Daguerre, perfected in 1839 the world's first practical — and perhaps most dangerous — photographic process. Knowledge of his discovery rapidly spread to the rest of the world and by 1850, every major Western city boasted of at least one daguerrean studio.

Daguerreotypes are remarkably beautiful photographs. The quality of their images were limited only by the primitive optical equipment of the 1840s and '50s. Their capacity for extremely fine detail and wide range of contrast was unmatched by any other photographic process up to the mid-1900s. Many admirers of daguerreotype photography maintain modern technology still has failed to exceed the exquisite quality of Daguerre's invention.

A daring handful of contemporary photographers have dreamed of reviving Daguerre's process, made perfect in the 1850s yet rendered obsolete by cheaper, safer developments of the 1860s.

Imagine, they thought: Combine the detail of the daguerreotype with modern precision optics. The possibilities are endless! If only the researcher who tries to produce these lovely, and sometimes fatal images, survives to savor his achievements.

Kranik estimates about 30 persons in the United States today have produced daguerreotypes. As a student at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, a friend of mine and I also tried Daguerre's invention. Months of tedious research taught us respect for those pioneers who took their lives in their hands to produce, at their best, daguerreotypes far superior to any of today.

First obstacle to overcome was cost: Daguerreotypes originally were produced on plates of pure silver overlaid on copper sheets. Resisting the temptation to take a U.S. quarter-dollar and roll it flat to reproduce such plates, we spent six months learning how

Now that the last morsel of Thanksgiving turkey has been digested it's about time to knuckle down and start making out this year's Christmas list.

It should be simple enough — a tie for Uncle Harry and a bottle of cologne for Aunt Bess. But isn't that what you gave them last year? Well, okay then, a fifth of Scotch for Uncle Joe . . . or is he on the wagon again?

Come on now, be a little creative when it comes to Christmas shopping this year. Just use your imagination. After all you have the whole world at your feet and most of it has a price tag.

Don't you have a relative who would just adore his own personalized yo-yo? Or a friend who couldn't make it through another day without a sterling silver corkscrew? And ladies if your husband drives you nuts with his shower stall rendition of "O Solo Mio" then this year stuff his stocking with a bar of soap in the shape of a microphone. The "Singing Mike" is only $5.

Just think of the possibilities. This year's Christmas catalogs are full of ideas from inexpensive "kooky" gifts to those that are outrageous both in price and practicality.

Take for instance the category of novelty catalogs which includes Sunset House and Miles Kimball. They're full of odd and inexpensive trinkets ranging from a set of sponges in the shape of a loaf of bread to a tool used to clip unsightly hairs from nostrils to a welcome mat which reads "Wipe Your Feet Stupid(!)."

And that's only the beginning.

If you wish to be a bit more extravagant and money is no object then scan the pages of the Christmas catalogs put out by Marshall Field & Company and Neiman-Marcus. Along with the usual fare of sweaters, scarves and sleepware you'll find those gifts for the man or woman who seems to have everything. Field's is featuring an autographed letter signed on March 14, 1821, by none other than Thomas Jefferson. It comes with an engraved portrait and transcript in a half-morocco slipcase for just $8,500. There's also an antique Hornby train set, circa 1938, for $500 and from collector's room a porcelain sculpture of a Panda, by Edward Marshall Boehm studios, a masterpiece for $3,800.

Neiman-Marcus, a Dallas-based firm which opened a store in Northbrook Court shopping center this year, has long been a leader in the unique when it comes to Christmas shopping. This year's mail order catalog offers a Peruvian handbag for $2,500, a woman's floor-length Russian sable coat for $45,000, and an automobile, a 1976 Excalibur II

But Neiman-Marcus is most famous for its annual His and Her gifts. Last year, for instance, the catalog offered couples a "Saurian Safari," a scientific expedition in Utah, for $29,995. This year's featured His and Her special is a pair of six-month-old buffalo calves, male and female, to start your own herd. The guaranteed purebred American bison are $11,750 a pair.

Who in the world buys this stuff? Well, the folks at Neiman-Marcus are notoriously discreet, refusing to reveal the identity of their customers although a spokesman did say the pair of camels featured in their 1967 catalog was purchased by a lady in Texas as a gift for her mother. How thoughtful.

But even if you don't know for whom these gifts are intended it may be fun to guess. For instance, Neiman-Marcus will create a handmade dollhouse duplicating your own home, complete with furniture, hot and cold running water and even scaled down versions of your own wardrobe for prices starting at $6,500. Who would buy that? Mary Hartmas maybe?

There's also a sterling silver swizzle stick for $18 that would make a perfect gift for Dean Martin and the odds are Jimmy the Greek would enjoy a pair of dice made of vermeil for $30. Such a deal!

And if you think your friends in Buffalo Grove would appreciate the pair of baby bison but you can't quite picture them under a Christmas tree — don't worry. This is the year of the buffalo. From the stuffed animal section of Neiman-Marcus catalog you can order a glowering bison standing four feet tall at the shoulder for only $700. You can also buy a roll of 40 buffalo nickels dated 1938 for $450 or a single three-legged buffalo nickel coin, 1937 D issue, for $275.

Buffalo are nice, I suppose, but when it comes to house pets they just don't compare to man's best friend. This year remember Mother's little precious with a 14-carat gold leash with matching collar and gold regulation dog tag also from Neiman-Marcus. The 58-inch leash is $500 and the collars range in price from $250 to $375. Fess up, isn't Rover really worth it?

If there's a child on your list who seems to have everything then try something different this year. For a cool $2 million Sakowitz in Houston is selling an amusement park designed by Roland Crump who works for Disney. The same store also offers rental of an amusement park for 5,000 friends for six hours. Six Flags over Texas can be rented for $75,000 or you can rent the Circus Vargas for $47,500 with popcorn and cotton candy thrown in for free.

A half-scale Model T Ford which holds two youngsters can be purchased for $895 from the New York-based mail order house of Hammacher Schlemmer, the same firm offers wooden pepper mills, 54 inches high, for $69.50 each and a deluxe walk-in wine vault holding 852 bottles for $2,850.

This year's market of Christmas gifts seems to contain more of the kooky kind than usual, captializing, I suppose, on the success of the Pet Rock which brought in $4 million last year. Rock Bottom Productions, makers of Pet Rock, is back this year with their "Offical Sand Breeding Kit" that comes with a manual explaining how to get sand to breed and grow into a beach, landfill or kitty litter.

Another item which has all the makings of a best seller is a jar full of shredded money selling for $5 and up. Instead of burning old currency the government now shreds the stuff to the tune of some $9 billion a year. The crumbled cash has been used for insulation, roofing and a variety of other purposes and now it is being sold in eight-ounce glass jars by novelty companies. Some of the jars contain up to $10,000 in cash, non-negotiable of course.

From Alaska comes the newest in holiday decorations — Mooseltoe, which consists of two mooseberries tied up with spruce and ribbon. For those of you who don't know what mooseberries are, they come from a moose in the form of droppings. The ornament, which sells for about $3, can be stored and used year after year and after you've done whatever you do with Mooseltoe you can grind up the droppings and feed them to your philodendron.

Also making the kooky list this year is a Do-It-Yourself Howard Hughes Will Kit. It sells for $4 but who knows, you could become a millionaire.

Now if you intend to be serious about your Christmas list but you're still looking for something a bit unusual then you can rely on some of the old standards.

Almost everyone enjoys receiving a Christmas basket chocked full of edible goodies and there are a number of catalogs which cater to these culinary Christmas tastes. From The Swiss Colony catalog you can order a Pet Gouda, a cardboard "live" box containing two pounds of Gouda cheese in a waxy red coat. For the gift that keeps coming all year long sign up for The Swiss Colony cheese-of-the-month plan or better yet enroll a friend in the Fruit-of-the-Month Club offered by Harry and David, an Oregon-based mail-order firm.

For a bit more flair flip through the pages of Neiman-Marcus. For $38 a 2½ pound smoked salmon from the lochs of Scotland will be flown across the Atlantic along with your Christmas wishes and for 154 you can send a box of 12 frozen bricks of Texas beef chili, each weighing about a pound.

Jewelry is another old standard so if you find yourself on Christmas Eve without a gift for the wife remember that diamonds are a girl's best friend. The 107.07-carat Cartier diamond is now available from Cartier International Jewelers. The stone is valued at $5 million but the price is negotiable. If the Cartier doesn't suit your fancy you can choose from a large selection of gems in Tiffany's catalog including a pear-shaped diamond ring for $375,000. There's also an 18-carat gold cigaret case set with sapphire and emerald stones for $6,650 and an 18-carat gold Rolex watch for $3,425.

Tiffany's offers all sorts of little trinkets for loved ones from gold and silver hair pins ($190 and $36) to adjustable collar stays in 14-carat gold ($65 and $75). Their sterling silver collection includes such things as bookmarks ($10), a pedometer ($25.50), a golf marker ($6.50), and a key-shaped tool for squeezing the toothpaste out of a tube ($11.50). For the betting man that carries credit cards instead of cash there's a sterling silver coin ($10) which reads heads on one side and tails on the opposite side and for the child born with a silver spoon in is mouth there's a sterling silver rattle ($22).

In the latest Gucci catalog, along with lizard handbags and designer scarves, there's a canvas cover for a "TV Guide" with the traditional green and red Gucci stripe and the GG design, a new addition to the line of Gucci gifts and only $25.

Neiman-Marcus has its share of trinkets, too. There's a nine-piece jigsaw puzzle made of solid brass for the executive desk ($70), a toothpick in vermeil with initialed leather case ($9.50), a Lucite mousetrap 7¼ inches long that can be used as a paper holder ($20), and for those hooked on the nostalgia of the Wild West there's a pair of initialed copper, brass and stainless steel spurs in both men's and women's styles ($110).

OK, so none of these gift ideas trigger your imagination and there's still someone on your list who has absolutely everything. Never fear, there's always the old reliable gift certificate.

At Saks Fifth Avenue you can buy a scroll, written in Old English script, that is redeemable for $2,000 in merchandise in the men's wear department. Tiffany's is again offering their special gift certificate — Tiffany Money which comes in a red drawstring pouch, packed in a Tiffany box and giftwrapped. There's a sterling silver coin for $25, a vermeil coin for $100 and even an 18-carat gold coin for $1,000.

Who in the world buys this stuff? Well, the folks at Neiman-Marcus are notoriously discreet, refusing to reveal the identity of their customers although a spokesman did say the pair of camels featured in their 1967 catalog was purchased by a lady in Texas as a gift for her mother. How thoughtful.

But even if you don't know for whom these gifts are intended it may be fun to guess. For instance, Neiman-Marcus will create a hand-made dollhouse duplicating your own home, complete with furniture, hot and cold running water and even scaled down versions of your own wardrobe for prices starting at $6,500. Who would buy that? Mary Hartmas maybe?

There's also a sterling silver swizzle stick for $18 that would make a perfect gift for Dean Martin and the odds are Jimmy the Greek would enjoy a pair of dice made of vermeil for $30. Such a deal!

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"Bugsy Malone" — Ingeniously conceived, beautifully mounted musical parody of the 1930s gangster film genre, played in perfect scale by an all juvenile cast. A great technical achievement with a rousing musical score by Paul Williams. Should delight adult and child alike. (G).

"Norman . . . Is That You?" — Redd Foxx and Pearl Bailey discover their son's a homosexual and try their hardest to straighten him out in an extended situation comedy that keeps its sights — and the offensive level of its humor — aimed appropriately low. (PG).

"Carrie" — A hated high school girl (Sissy Spacek) develops supernatural powers and uses them to get revenge on the whole town. Surprise ending rockets everyone from their seats. Also stars Piper Laurie as a religious fanatic. (R).

"The Next Man" — The Saudi Arabian representative to the United Nations falls in love with a beautiful American girl who belongs to an assination team. Unfortunately there is not enough action to sustain the intrigue. Stars Sean Connery and Cornelia Sharpe. (R).

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"Bugsy Malone" — Ingeniously conceived, beautifully mounted musical parody of the 1930s gangster film genre, played in perfect scale by an all juvenile cast. A great technical achievement with a rousing musical score by Paul Williams. Should delight adult and child alike. (G).

"Norman . . . Is That You?" — Redd Foxx and Pearl Bailey discover their son's a homosexual and try their hardest to straighten him out in an extended situation comedy that keeps its sights — and the offensive level of its humor — aimed appropriately low. (PG).

"Carrie" — A hated high school girl (Sissy Spacek) develops supernatural powers and uses them to get revenge on the whole town. Surprise ending rockets everyone from their seats. Also stars Piper Laurie as a religious fanatic. (R).

"The Next Man" — The Saudi Arabian representative to the United Nations falls in love with a beautiful American girl who belongs to an assination team. Unfortunately there is not enough action to sustain the intrigue. Stars Sean Connery and Cornelia Sharpe. (R).

CATLOW — Barrington — 381-0777 — "Two-Minute Warning" (PG).
MOUNT PROSPECT CINEMA — Mount Prospect — 392-7070 — Theater 1: "Two-Minute Warning" (PG); Theater 2: "Santa and the Three Bears" (G).

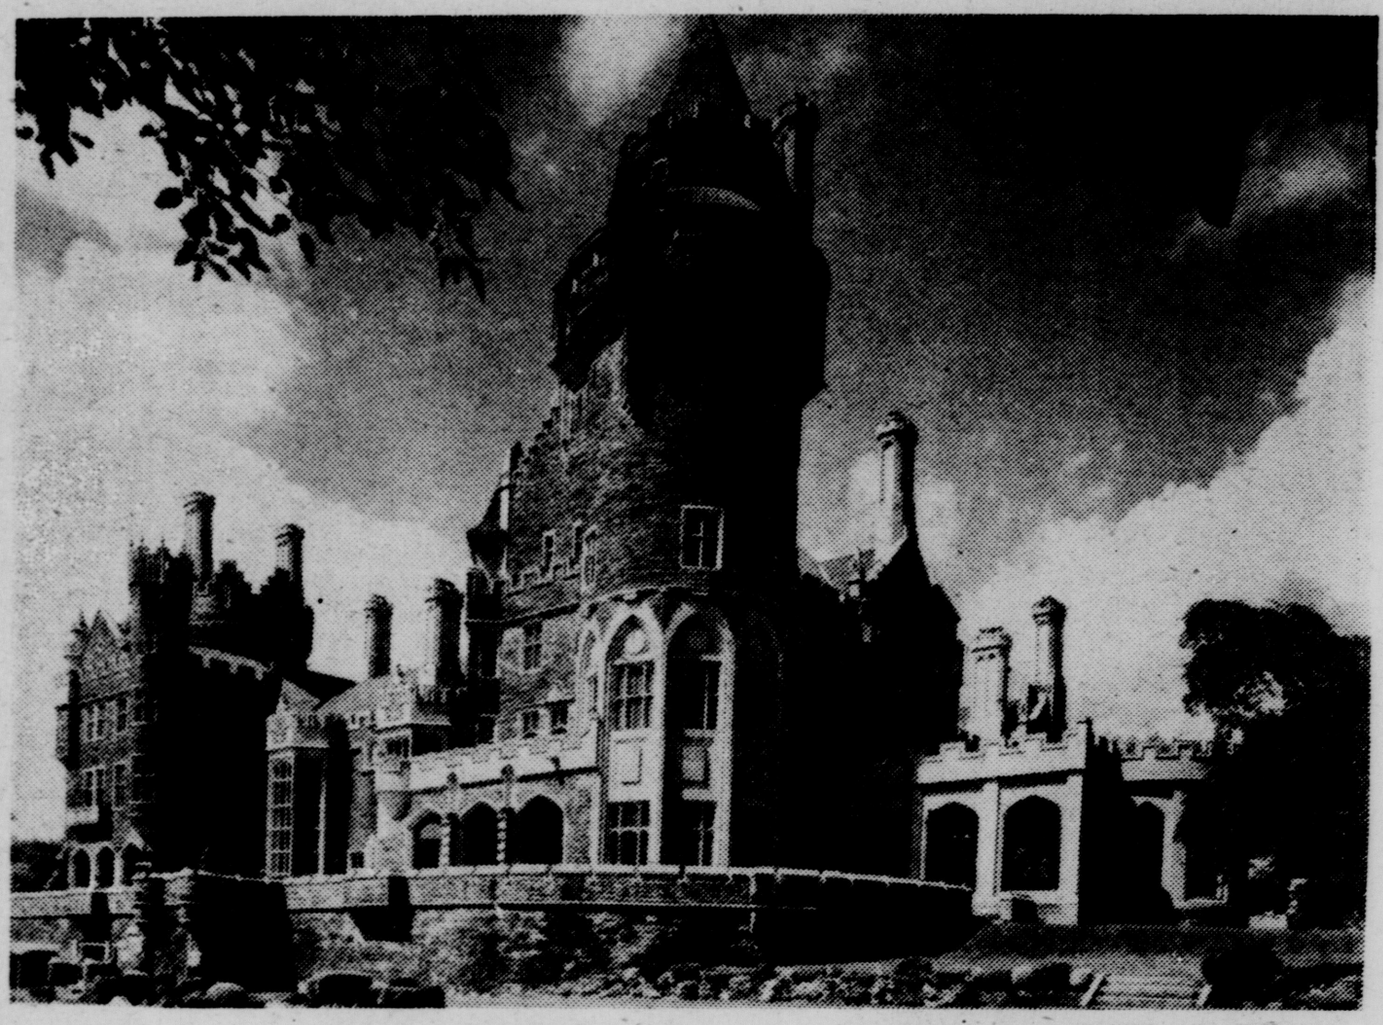
Wintertime vacations in Toronto



There's a lot to see and do when it snows up north in Toronto

by Mary C. Kenessey

(Ms. Kenessey is a writer for the Convention and Tourist Bureau of Metropolitan Toronto.)

Go north for a winter vacation, instead of south, you say? North to Toronto? You'd have to be out of your mind!

After all, we know about Canadian winters, don't we? Snow, ice, mukluks, dog sleds . . . Nelson Eddy calling for Rose Marie.

But the qualities that make the city attractive during June, July and August — cleanliness, safety, friendly people, restaurants, theatres and a multitude of things to see and do — are there during the winter, too plus the bonus of Christmas celebrations and all manner of outdoor winter activities.

And, surprise! . . . with an average January temperature of 26 degrees, it's not really that cold!

In fact, Toronto, with its parks, its array of shops, restaurants, nightclubs, theatres, its museum and art gallery and its historic sites can prove quite a wonderland for the winter vacationer, both child and adult alike.

Realizing Toronto's appeal as a winter travel destination, a number of the city's hotels are offering some attractively-priced Winter Weekend vacation packages. Every hotel throws in its own special bonus . . . Sunday brunch, complimentary admission to the house nightclub, free cocktails and sightseeing tours are some of the extras.

The word "Toronto" means meeting place, and for the people of this city, City Hall is just that. Nathan Phillips Square, with its reflecting pool in downtown Toronto, forms the backdrop for office workers, tourists, children and teenagers who come to sit, stroll, watch the fountains or listen to band concerts. In winter the pool is transformed into a skating rink where residents and visitors alike skate to the music, drink hot chocolate, eat popcorn and warm themselves by the roast chestnut stands.

Night-time brings an almost fairyland quality to the scene, with the ice glowing from the outdoor lights and the twin columns of the Hall reaching upward in the background. Nearby, the illuminated face of the Old City Hall clock tower — Toronto's answer to Big Ben — smiles down on the gracefully-spinning couples below. No charge for all this — just bring your own skates.

Close at hand is an almost endless variety of shopping opportunities from underground shopping malls, providing snug avenues for the strolling populace, to high rise department stores. There's even a "village" shopping centre within the city.

Restaurants abound offering many types of international cuisine. Gourmet dining, fast food, Italian, German, Scandinavian, take your pick. Eat steak in a converted warehouse surrounded by a glorious muddle of antiques and bric-a-brac; try lobster cosily esconced beside a blazing log fire; or take the kids to feast on spaghetti in a refurbished street car.

Theatre and nightclubs are very much alive during the winter months. The visitor may take his choice of a variety of evening entertainment — night clubs, discos, music hall or intimate theatre-supper clubs, cinema and stage performances.

Toronto's theatres range from small group productions to the large, new and plush. The O'Keefe Centre, which falls into the latter category, brings to the public international stars and productions. Harry Bealfonte is appearing now to Dec. 4 — he holds the theatre's all-time box office record. A Christmas treat follows for the children of all ages — a fine, old traditional British pantomine, "Jack and the Beanstalk," runs Dec. 7 to 18. The National Ballet of Canada presents its famed production of "The Nutcracker" from Dec. 23 to Jan. 1. The London stage production of "On Approval," starring popular Kenneth More, is booked for Jan. 10-22, while another British actor, Wilfrid Hyde-White, takes the lead in an elegant staging of Oscar Wilde's "An Ideal Husband," Jan. 24 to Feb. 5. The National Ballet returns Feb. 11 to March 12 in its spring season.

Another Christmas delight for the children may be enjoyed at the nearby St Lawrence Centre. "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown" — a Christmas Party with the Peanuts gang — lasts from Dec. 22 to Jan. 1. There's Pepi Puppet-Theatre at the Poor Alex Theatre with performances Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Only "Old King Cole" calls for his fiddlers three Nov. 27 to Dec. 19, "Alice In Wonderland" plays from Jan. 15 to Feb. 13 and "Aladdin" displays his magic lamp from Feb. 19 to March 20.

"Harry's Back In Town" at the Bayview Playhouse Theatre . . . two hours of high-stepping entertainment, with the music of Harry Warren — "Mr. Hollywood Musical." The run of this successful show has been extended indefinitely.

The Toronto Symphony Orchestra is based at the city's Massey Hall. This orchestra, under the guidance of Music Director, Andrew Davis brings to the city's cultural scene such artistes as Vladimir Ashkenazy, scheduled for Dec. 3, Maureen Forrester Dec. 7 and 8, Anton Kuerti Jan. 18 and 19, Riki Turofsjt Jan. 22 and 23, Vaclav Hudecek Feb. 1 and 2 and Isaac Stern Feb. 15 and 16.

On Jan. 15 and Feb. 19 Massey Hall is host to a young audience for two ManuLife Young People's Concerts — sharing with them such goodies as "The Dance of the Comedians," "Polovtsian Dances" and the overture from "Fledermaus."

But Toronto has more to offer its young visitors. How about a fairy castle in a 20th Century city? Casa Loma, a genuine fake castle was constructed by Sir Henry Pellatt, who fulfilled a lifelong ambition, and went broke in the process. Now we have the fun of exploring its 98 rooms, climbing to the battlements, skulking up the secret staircase and creeping along the 800-foot underground passageway to the stables.

Exploring is the order of the day at the Ontario Science Centre, too. Here the world of science is presented in more than 500 exhibits crying out to be pushed, pulled, jiggled and observed. Challenge a computer to a game of tic-tac-toe, feel the silence of a totally soundproof tunnel or take a driver reaction test. A painless and fun way to absorb a world of information.

And through Jan. 4 visitors to the Centre may participate in Christmas around the world. Six ethnic groups — Baltic, Italian, Dutch, Polish, Armenian and Korean — will take one week each to share their celebrations of the festive season in a Holiday Festival. Also, the exhibit, sponsored by I.B.M. Canada Ltd., showing the mathematics, science and astronomy of Copernicus (1473-1532) has been extended until September '77.

The wonders of the heavens may be experienced at the McLaughlin Planetarium, adjoining the Royal Ontario Museum. Lounge back in comfortable seats and watch the mysteries of the skies unfold in the domed Theatre of the Stars. From Dec. 2 to Jan. 2 the theatre is showing "The Christmas Star." Or, make a point of seeing the Laserium display of lights and music. Laserium and Theatre of the Stars alternate so check for times and prices of admission. And remember, admission to the Planetarium entitles one to entry to the R.O.M., a museum famed for its beautiful Chinese collection.

Toronto also boasts a first-class art gallery in the Art Gallery of Ontario. This building is the perfect setting for an extensive Henry Moore collection, plus the permanent displays of 14th and 20th century paintings. From Dec. 4 to Jan. 30, the Charles S. Band Bequest, an exhibition of canvases by major Canadian artists, may be viewed.

A particularly exciting exhibition makes its appearance Jan. 15 to March 13. Form and Freedom: Northwest Coast Indian Art, on loan from Texas' Rice University, is a collection of over 100 artifacts, some of which have never been shown before, including a couple of pieces picked up by Captain Cook on his voyages.

Admission charge to the Gallery is on a voluntary basis. Closed all day Monday, the Gallery stays open until 10:00 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and it's open on Sunday from noon.

While Toronto is a booming, modern city, its residents are justly proud of its many historic buildings. In the midst of one of the busiest sections, flanked by swank hotels, is the Village of Yorkville. Incorporated in 1853, the village coat of arms depicts the occupations of the first five council members, a brewer, a blacksmith, a brickmaker, a carpenter and a farmer. The village is now one of the most popular areas for walking and browsing, a fascinating blend of old and new structures housing art galleries, restaurants, antique shops and boutiques.

A number of Toronto's historic sites are maintained and administered by the Toronto Historical Board. At the Mackenzie House, home of William Lyon Mackenzie, Toronto's first mayor, one steps into life in a 19th century townhouse. From Dec. 3-24, the rooms are decorated and the table set for Christmas, with a traditional Kissing Bough suspended to catch the unwary. January through February the house shows a delightful collection of antique dolls and toys.

The Gibson House demonstrates rural life in 1851 and from Dec. 5-31 the house is filled with the aroma of Christmas baking and the pungent scent of cedar garlands. From January through February, "Kits and Caboddles" allows lovers of knick-knacks the pleasure of examining antique containers of all kinds — pill boxes, jars, hat boxes, etc. Historic Houses are closed on Christmas and Boxing Days.

Old Fort York, the 1816 fortification constructed on the site of John Graves Simcoe's 30-log hut fort, is always popular — summer and winter. An added attraction for the young in heart, is the Garrison of York display featuring 100 hand-made, hand-painted lead soldiers — the work of the Ontario Model Soldier Society.

The sports lover is catered to in this city as well. There's football at the 54,000 seat C.N.E. stadium and hockey at Maple Leaf Gardens. Young hockey fans will want to make the pilgrimage to the Hockey Hall of Fame situated at Exhibition Place — just across from the C.N.E. stadium. There they can gaze at the Stanley Cup, sweaters of hockey greats, trophies and skates — memorabilia dear to the heart of every aspiring Gordie Howe.

Rothmans brings International Tennis to the Coliseum at Exhibition Place from Feb. 15 to 20. Among the superstars invited are Arthur Ashe, Tom Okker, Bjorn Borg and Ilie Nastase.

The 30th annual Canadian National Sportsmen's Show at the Coliseum, March 18 to 27, promises to be the biggest yet. The accompanying Sportsmen's Dog Show runs March 19, 20, 23, 24, 25, 26 and 27. Boating enthusiasts have their day at the Coliseum Jan. 13 to 23 with the Toronto International Boat Show.

But Toronto in the winter is more than just entertainment, history and cultural events — it's outdoor fun. The city's many parks provide unlimited opportunities for winter fun, be it skating, tobaganning, skiing, or just snow ball fights.

Ontario Travel Information at 416-636-0111, of the Ontario Ministry of Industry & Tourism, stand ready to give locations of ski trails, mountains and rentals for the energetically-inclined.

The Metro Toronto Zoo, one of the city's most popular summer attractions, has a unique appeal in the winter months. The 710-acre park is divided into six geographic zones, containing more than 3,000 animals. The recently-opened Canadian Animal Domain may be viewed from the Canadian Domain Ride — a silent, smooth running, enclosed train.

Distinctive features of the zoo are the marked trails for cross-country skiers — a stimulating way to view the animals and enjoy the spectacular winter scenery. Admission fee of $2.75, youth $1.50 and children 50 cents, allows unlimited rides on the train. Open daily from 10:00 a.m. — animals retire for the night at 3:00 p.m. — no admission thereafter. Check beforehand as viewing hours are subject to change.

Black Creek Pioneer Village, a re-creation of rural Ontario village life 100 years ago, provides a picturesque playground for winter fun. Enjoy Christmas in the Village from Nov. 27 (closed Christmas and Boxing Day). From Jan. 3 the buildings of this living museum are closed for the winter months, but the Village rings with the sounds of laughter and excitement during the weekends. Skating, tobogganing and horse-drawn sleigh rides — but call ahead at (416) 661-6600 to find out if there is enough snow to warrant the Village opening.

An hour's drive north of Toronto to the village of Kleinburg results in a truly different experience — the McMichael Canadian Collection. The scenery of the Humber River Valley provides the setting for this jewel of an art gallery. Thirty rooms constructed of hand-hewn timbers contain works by the Canadian Group of Seven and superb carvings and paintings by native Indian and Eskimo artists. Beautiful art inside, winter scenery through the picture windows, the gleam of polished wood, the warmth of open log fires, tea and homemade scones — who could ask for more. Open every afternoon except Monday — admission free.

As result of a major rescheduling of Amtrak's train, "The Inter-American," passengers may now ride all the way by rail between Chicago and Mexico City with only one change of trains in Laredo, Tex.

Formerly a three-times-weekly train between St. Louis and Laredo, The Inter-American is daily between Chicago and Fort Worth, continuing three times weekly between Fort Worth and Laredo via Austin and San Antonio.

The schedule change, plus track work at Fort Worth, eliminating a time-consuming back-up operation, cuts 1 hour and 10 minutes from Chicago-Laredo schedules both ways. The Inter-American is now scheduled to arrive at Laredo southbound at 6:15 p.m. and the Mexican train the "Aztec Eagle," departs at 7:10 p.m.

Northbound also there is more time for a connection between the Mexican and U.S. trains. The Inter-American's departure is at 10:55 a.m. The Aztec Eagle's scheduled arrival at Nuevo Laredo is 6:25 a.m. but delays of up to two hours or more have occurred. The Mexican train operates daily.

Previously it had been necessary for travelers making the rail connection to overnight in Laredo southbound, and sometimes northbound, too.

of mountains, cowhands and Indians.

Much sought after nationally and especially in the Chicago area are photographs by Alexander Hesler. Hesler opened a daguerreotype studio in Galena, Ill. in 1848, moved to downtown Chicago in 1853 to a studio on the 300 block of West Lake St., found new downtown quarters after the Great Fire of 1871, and opened a branch studio in Evanston late in the century.

Oddly enough for a photographer who was active up to the day of his death in 1895 (he reportedly was taking a portrait when he was struck by a seizure, collapsed and died), his works are rarely found. Perhaps out of admirable humility, Hesler seldom signed his creations.

Also popular among modern collectors are urban industrial and war photographs of the early 1900s up to the 1920s. Collectors eventually will start reaching for photographs of the Depression and World War II years, Kranik predicted. "Once the market for these starts drying up, they'll become wanted because they won't be available."

A sleeper on the collecting scene are photographs of immigrants, Kranik said. "Photographs of Ellis Island are going to be the collectable pictures of the future, particularly those showing national costumes."

Why this growing interest in such images – most of them rather commonplace, forgotten for years at the bottom of trunks and the top shelves of dusty closets? People are becoming aware, Kranik said, "that history is just yesterday." § to chemically plate silver on sheets of window glass.

Finally we were producing 4-inch by 5-inch glass plates bearing a microscopically-thin, impractically delicate layer of silver. Iron oxide powder — also known as "Jeweler's Rouge" — and a soft cloth were used to buff the plates to a bright sheen. The fine red powder took well to the plates (it also adhered lovingly to clothes, skin and the hairs within one's nostrils).

To sensitize a plate for exposure in a view camera, we exposed the silver surface to iodine fumes. We also could have exposed the plates to bromine and chlorine vapors to boost the plates' sensitivity to light. However, all such chemicals have one drawback: They destroy lung tissue.

By skipping the bromine and chlorine, we consequently struggled with incredibly slow plates. Exposures under a massive bank of studio lights pouring out a broiling 1,000 foot-candles lasted 6½ minutes. We took turns baking in front of the camera. No normal human on earth can hold perfectly still for more than 10 seconds, and inevitably our likenesses came out somewhat blurred.

To develop their plates, most modern daguerreotypists follow tradition by using boiling mercury. Elaborate fuming traps have been built to keep mercury vapors contained, and the bodies of photographers safe from harm. Special precautions must be taken against mercury poisoning, which crippled and deformed so many early daguerreotypists.

Still, some modern photographers are somewhat careless. One daguerreotypist in New York City reportedly vented his mercury out a hotel window overlooking 5th Avenue.

We sidestepped mercury development by using the "Becquerel Process," in which an exposed daguerreotype plate was developed using intense yellow light. After a 15-minute development, we were rewarded with an image — perhaps not as sharp as might be obtained with mercury vapors, but an image nonetheless.

The image was "fixed," or made permanent, in a solution of sodium thiosulfate, sodium sulfate and distilled water.

By the summer of 1975 our efforts had paid off; we were making the world's first glass-plate daguerreotypes. We also had learned why previous daguerreotypists never used glass plates: Immersion in tap water destroyed the silver; exposure to extremes of temperature, as would be encountered in mercury development, cracked the glass. It's far easier and safer to use silver on copper. §

A book for every age and any interest

by Dorothy Oliver

There are dozens of new children's books on the market in time for the holiday season, and what better gift than an addition to a child's personal library.

For the sports-minded young man in your life try "The Giant Book of Strange But True Sports Stories" by Howard Liss (Random House, $3.95).

The soft-cover book is packed with funny anecdotes from the sports world including every imaginable sport from diving to hockey to tennis to track.

Comic black and white illustrations by Joe Mathieu accompany each story. The langauge is simple enough for pre-teens and the stories will give them something to talk about for months.

For the small fry on your list look over the new "The Mother Goose Book" (Random House, $6.95) with its ample helping of the classic fairy tales and some of the best illustrations to ever accompany the rhymes.

Alice and Martin Provensen provided the art for this book and their work is captivating. While you're reading, your child will be engrossed not only in the words but in the lively and colorful pictures that go along with them.

"The Mammoth Book of Word Games" by Richard B. Manchester (Hart Publishing Co., $6.95) is a must for the older child with a penchant for words.

Every page brings a new challenge from finding misspelled words in a story to cryptograms and anagrams that will tease even an adult brain. There are Threezies (where you're directed to think of words with letter sequences such as NFL, UMB or PHA), word mazes, crossword puzzles and matching games.

It would take a pretty smart 10-year-old to tackle this book and even adults will find it a stumper at times.

If you've visited the museum and found it unbelievable, buy "Ripley's Believe It Or Not!" (Warner Books, $5.95).

Every page is a montage of the famous Ripley's facts with illustrations for each. This book is more than the paperback variety for although it is soft-cover it is a giant of a book measuring 11 by 15 inches.

Those hard-to-buy-for teenagers who seem to spend their waking hours with a stereo or radio blasting in their ears would appreciate "The Rolling Stone Illustrated History of Rock and Roll" (Rolling Stone Press, Random House, $9.95).

Another soft-cover, giant-sized edition, the book traces the history of modern music.

Each period of music is explored by individual authors and the result is a factual yet readable history.

Segments are devoted to rhythm and gospel, the sound of New Orleans the teen idols of the '50s, the rock films and a capsule on the future of the '70s.

The world of rock has been scandalized by payola, drugs and sex and the book does not ignore any of these. It treats the death of Jimi Hendrix and Janis Joplin frankly but in no way attempts to glorify or sensationalize the drug culture that surrounded their lives.

It is a serious book for the music lover and a good history.

On the lighter side "Now You See It Now You Don't" by Bill Tarr (Vintage, $5.95) is for the magic lover in your household. A soft-cover volume, this book deals with sleight of hand and includes 224 pages of how to do it.

Each trick is accompanied by excellent illustrations by Barry Ross that make it absolutely clear how the magic is performed.

If your daughter is a student of ballet you will find no more treasured present than "A Very Young Dancer" by Jill Krementz (Random House, $8.95).

The book and its photographs take you through the experiences of 10-year-old Stephanie who attends the George Balanchine's School of American Ballet and tries out for a part in the New York City Ballet's Nutcracker.

The book is written in Stephanie's words as she goes from being one of the students to a star and back to being a student who has to be told to pull in her stomach.

It is a charming book about a charming little girl who has fulfilled the dream of every budding ballerina.

Sesame Street has a raft of books, calendars and other offerings out this season for your little ones. One of the more useful is "The Sesame Street Postcard Book" (Random House, $2.50) that is simply 24 postcards for a child to send to friends.

There are birthday postcards, get well post-

When he was about 25 years old, Theodor S. Geisel was scared off a speaker's podium by a group of first-graders who had come to a Cleveland bookshop to hear him talk about his newest book and draw pictures for them.

Today, at 72, Geisel is probably the world's favorite doctor with millions of children all over the world.

His middle initial stands for Seuss (rhymes with choice), but he is known to his audience as Dr. Seuss (rhymes with goose).

A tall, handsome, gray-haired, gray-bearded man, his immensely popular books are published in a variety of languages in the Orient as well as the western world. They are landmarks in children's literature, full of fanciful creatures and joyous, sometimes nonsensical rhymes with a very serious purpose: teaching children to read and learn and use their imagination.

He is such a relaxed, delightful conversationalist that it is hard to believe that story about the bookstore audience. It was his first public appearance as a writer, Geisel recalled in an interview.

As he began drawing, "The kids glowered at me. Finally, I said, 'What's the matter, don't you like the way I draw?'

" 'No,' they said. 'Gus can draw better than you.' "

So he invited Gus, a retarded 12-year-old child, to take over.

"He could draw better than I. He drew the Indian from the penny beautifully. I snuck out. You get a little scared."

Years later, Geisel was asked to speak before the Fashion Group in New York City, along with another famous artist, the late Helen Hokinson.

"We're working artists, not speaking artists," they told their hostess. So the fashion industry group had Gracie Allen deliver Miss Hokinson's speech, interspersing her own comments. Comedian Victor Moore did the same with Geisel's speech.

So it was back to the drawing board, a place he obviously prefers to any other occupation.

In addition to writing and illustrating books, Geisel is president of Random House. He sometimes jokes about his work, but he is very serious about its aims.

"I'm having a war against kids learning by word lists," he said. He thinks one major reason for illiteracy is schools' removing children from the phonic system entirely. "I think children can read anything if you take the trouble to write clear sentences."

One recent book, written under his other pseudonym, Theo. LeSieg (his real name spelled backwards), contains words like Zacharias, quite a mouthful for a beginner.

Geisel said he uses long words deliberately. It gives the child a chance to ask, "Mama, what's a Zacharias?". Then they stop and have a discussion about it.

"Not enough mothers are doing that," he said. "Down in New Zealand where I have gone twice, there is no illiteracy. They are all middle-class English, they are in the habit of reading, and they still read to their kids at night.

"I don't know how much television is at fault (in children's reading problems). It consumes so much time when they could be reading."

One thing saddens the good Doctor Seuss.

"There are an awful lot of children we are not reaching because of the price of the books."

The Beginner Books, which he illustrates as well as writes, retail for $3.95 each, and the Bright and Early Books, for $2.95 each.

The latest in the former series is "The Cat's Quizzer," a question and answer book featuring the familiar Cat in the Hat creature.

Geisel aims to teach not just reading skills but respect for the world around us. In "The Lorax," he "definitely started out to make a point about the environment."

His most recent LeSieg is "Hooper Humperdink . . .? Not Him!," a psychological story about outsiders and the way children exclude them.

"It's autobiographical," Giesel said. "This sort of thing really happens, to you, to me, to everyone."

He said he doesn't illustrate the LeSieg

"They got 100%.

"They got every question WRONG!

"Are you smarter than a Zozzfozzel?"

And another thoroughly enjoyable Dr. Seuss book begins.

Few children's books compare to the creative, entertaining and educational fare produced by Dr. Seuss. His newest book, "The Cat's Quizzer" will keep you laughing while your little one learns to read in a most delightful way.

The first page of the book makes it plain to a youngster that even guessing one of the following questions right will make him smarter than the dumb old Zozzfozzels.

While some of the questions might stump the adult reader, most are simple and fun: "Do elephants have uncles?" "Are freckles catching?" "How old do you have to be to be a Boy Scout (a Girl Scout, drive a car, fry an egg, vote for President, be President)?"

Some pages require a child to look closely and then answer a quiz on the following page. One wildly illustrated page asks the young reader to find 100 objects that begin with "H" (the Zoozzfozzel can only find six).

A true or false page asks if only red heads can wiggle their ears or whether camels drink water on Thursday.

There are mazes and tongue twisters (say Ellie's Elegant Elephant as fast as you can), and some questions that require logic, "Are there many women kings?" "Are there many women uncles?"

Once again the wizzard called Dr. Seuss has succeeded making learning fun by setting it in a fantasyland inhabited by the Cat in the Hat.

Veteran Seuss fans will enjoy this beginners book and it is an excellent gift for the young child who's learning to read.

If you're a newcomer to the world of Seuss this is a good start but take a look at the others he has written. "One Fish, Two Fish", another beginner book, is a tongue twister that will challenge young and old readers. Another favorite in our house is "The Lorax," Dr. Seuss's venture into a story with a message - how man pollutes his environment for the sake of the mighty dollar.

A book for every age and any interest

by Dorothy Oliver

There are dozens of new children's books on the market in time for the holiday season, and what better gift than an addition to a child's personal library.

For the sports-minded young man in your life try "The Giant Book of Strange But True Sports Stories" by Howard Liss (Random House, $3.95).

The soft-cover book is packed with funny anecdotes from the sports world including every imaginable sport from diving to hockey to tennis to track.

Comic black and white illustrations by Joe Mathieu accompany each story. The langauge is simple enough for pre-teens and the stories will give them something to talk about for months.

For the small fry on your list look over the new "The Mother Goose Book" (Random House, $6.95) with its ample helping of the classic fairy tales and some of the best illustrations to ever accompany the rhymes.

Alice and Martin Provensen provided the art for this book and their work is captivating. While you're reading, your child will be engrossed not only in the words but in the lively and colorful pictures that go along with them.

"The Mammoth Book of Word Games" by Richard B. Manchester (Hart Publishing Co., $6.95) is a must for the older child with a penchant for words.

Every page brings a new challenge from finding misspelled words in a story to cryptograms and anagrams that will tease even an adult brain. There are Threezies (where you're directed to think of words with letter sequences such as NFL, UMB or PHA), word mazes, crossword puzzles and matching games.

It would take a pretty smart 10-year-old to tackle this book and even adults will find it a stumper at times.

If you've visited the museum and found it unbelievable, buy "Ripley's Believe It Or Not!" (Warner Books, $5.95).

Every page is a montage of the famous Ripley's facts with illustrations for each. This book is more than the paperback variety for although it is soft-cover it is a giant of a book measuring 11 by 15 inches.

Those hard-to-buy-for teenagers who seem to spend their waking hours with a stereo or radio blasting in their ears would appreciate "The Rolling Stone Illustrated History of Rock and Roll" (Rolling Stone Press, Random House, $9.95).

Another soft-cover, giant-sized edition, the book traces the history of modern music.

Each period of music is explored by individual authors and the result is a factual yet readable history.

Segments are devoted to rhythm and gospel, the sound of New Orleans the teen idols of the '50s, the rock films and a capsule on the future of the '70s.

The world of rock has been scandalized by payola, drugs and sex and the book does not ignore any of these. It treats the death of Jimi Hendrix and Janis Joplin frankly but in no way attempts to glorify or sensationalize the drug culture that surrounded their lives.

It is a serious book for the music lover and a good history.

On the lighter side "Now You See It Now You Don't" by Bill Tarr (Vintage, $5.95) is for the magic lover in your household. A soft-cover volume, this book deals with sleight of hand and includes 224 pages of how to do it.

Each trick is accompanied by excellent illustrations by Barry Ross that make it absolutely clear how the magic is performed.

If your daughter is a student of ballet you will find no more treasured present than "A Very Young Dancer" by Jill Krementz (Random House, $8.95).

The book and its photographs take you through the experiences of 10-year-old Stephanie who attends the George Balanchine's School of American Ballet and tries out for a part in the New York City Ballet's Nutcracker.

The book is written in Stephanie's words as she goes from being one of the students to a star and back to being a student who has to be told to pull in her stomach.

It is a charming book about a charming little girl who has fulfilled the dream of every budding ballerina.

Sesame Street has a raft of books, calendars and other offerings out this season for your little ones. One of the more useful is "The Sesame Street Postcard Book" (Random House, $2.50) that is simply 24 postcards for a child to send to friends.

There are birthday postcards, get well post-

BALEFUL BEASTS AND EERIE CREATURES, a series of short stories (Rand McNally, $5.95)

Reviewed by Kurt and Pat Gerlach

The advent of Jim Hensen's television "Muppets" and a new seriousness in the investigation of the Abominable Snowman, the Loch Ness Monster and Bigfoot appears to have liberated monsters from the category of purely fearful superstition to be completely avoided by children.

Though it is not recommended bedtime reading, "Baleful Beasts and Eerie Creatures," a collection of nine mysterious tales which bring more than a slight shiver to the spine of child or adult, could be pleasant Saturday afternoon reading.

But we don't suggest the book for persons younger than seven or grandparents who might be inclined to take the tales too seriously.

In two favorites, familiar objects are transformed into evil creatures through strange, circumstances.

In Beverly Butler's "The Patchwork Monkey," a six-year-old boy's strong love for a stuffed monkey he received from a neighbor purported to be a witch spells disaster for the child and an older sister.

The story is realistic enough to provoke distrust for calico monkeys from now on.

And a box delivered by the postman is inadvertently turned into a killing menace by a curious girl spending a day alone in her new home in a strange city in Rita Ritchie's "Nightmare In a Box."

"Tigger," a conceited bobcat who helps with the space program, provides a chuckle or two along with a drop of perspiration in A. M. Lightner's story.

Another contemporary tale, "The Night Creature," by Richard R. Smith tells of the frightening experiences of a boy who is taught to fly after being "powered" by a levitation machine invented by his uncle.

Ancient legends inspire the themes of Lynne Gressner's "The Yamadan" and "Monster Blood," Charles Land's story of a boy able to combat his fear of the unknown, because as a monster buff he has done his homework.

Other tales deal with alien surprises — either on Earth or in other worlds under exploration — in which creatures completely beyond human knowledge are the menaces.

In Wilma Bednarz "You Are What You Eat," the ability of a child to suddenly begin communicating with his grandfather because the elderly man is the only person who will take time to listen to the troubled child, is shown. The boy is later recognized as a hero by the government for having prevented space aliens from a United States takeover.

Carl Henry Rathjen's "To Face A Monster" tells of another boy who encounters his aunt's prize pug showdog who has been exposed to radiation and has grown into a towering evil beast.

In most of the stories, parents come across in a very realistic way, cautioning children not to spend too much time wrapped up in horror tales, reminding them to eat dinner, go to bed and clip the hedge.

Illustrations by Rod Ruth provide color and add a new dimension to the stories.

The reviewers

Because of the special category of books being reviewed today some were distributed to specialists with an intimate knowledge of the children's book field — children.

The reviewers range in age from seven to thirteen with the youngest working with one of their parents and the oldest tackling the reviews on their own.

Before you read what they have to say,, let me introduce them to you.

Susan Frisk, 10, worked with her father, Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk, in reviewing "Secrets of a Cypress Swamp." In another team effort, Kurt Gerlach, 7, and his mother, Pat Gerlach, a reporter for the Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg Herald, reviewed "Baleful Beasts and Eerie Creatures." Mia Logan, 9, with the help of Associate Sports Editor Paul Logan read and reviewed "The Witch Book."

Alissa Blood, 11, the daughter of the secretary to the editor, Sandra Mynars, reviewed "Misty." Bill Oliver, my 13-year-old son, reviewed "Jumping Jackdaws" and Scott Oliver, 9, and I reviewed "Professor Wormbog."

Horse lovers: this book will set you dreaming

A PICTORAL LIFE STORY OF MISTY by Marguerite Henry (Rand McNally, $5.95)

Reviewed by Alissa Blood

If you're the kind of person who goes crazy over horses, this book will set you dreaming! It's about Misty, a horse that came from Chincoteague, an island in the Atlantic Ocean. She was born on July 20, 1946, and was to become famous through the books Marguerite Henry wrote about her.

Mrs. Henry was visiting Chincoteague to watch Pony Penning Day when they chase the wild ponies from Assateague to Chincoteague and that was when she found Misty. She wanted to bring her back to Wayne, Illinois to write a book about her.

So she went to the person who owned Misty, Grampa Beebe, and asked if she could keep Misty for a few years until she was old enough to have children, then she would be sent back to Chincoteague. Grampa Beebe accepted when told his grandchildren were to be in the book.

If there were no pictures like the ones in this book the story wouldn't have been that interesting. I am glad that the people who were with Misty liked to take lots of colored snapshots.

The book tells of many exciting things that happened in Misty's life, like the big birthday party where almost 500 people came to help Misty celebrate, and when Misty, Friday, and Brighty were on the train track and a train was coming. And when they made the movie Misty. And there are other exciting things in this book.

While Misty lived in Illinois, many children from the Chicago area came to know her when she went to visit schools and libraries.

What I like best about the book is when Misty first arrived in Illinois and the few weeks after that. Misty's adventures reminded me of having a new puppy in the house. After running around the pasture, Misty kicked Marguerite in the shin, for she still had some wildness in her. Then one time Marguerite put out a combination of oats and molasses with a candle and tablecloth for Christmas Day.

After reading this book, I wanted to read the original book about Misty and now I'm reading this one again!

SECRETS OF A CYPRESS SWAMP by Jo Polseno (Golden Press, $5.95)

Reviewed by Susan and Bob Frisk

Jo Polseno is a noted wildlife artist, but he also is capable of vivid portraits with words.

Polseno has succeeded admirably to capture a mood in pictures and text with his latest ecological work of 64 superbly illustrated pages.

"In southern Georgia, south of Waycross and north of Fargo, there is a swamp that stands forever in the glow of an eternal twilight beneath a canopy of bearded cypress giants.

Polseno examines a day at this mysterious swamp, uncovering the secreats of an area sheltered beneath hundreds of giant cypress trees, continously veiled in twilight. It is a sometimes eerie picture but always vibrant.

Exploitation, fire, deluge and drought have all failed to lay waste the Okefenokee Swamp. Polseno uncovers this rich and curious area with all its delicate egrets and ibises, its predatory alligators and bobcats, its perpetual dark mist.

Polseno describes the special interactions among wildlife, weather and geography, and it is a second success for this native of Bridgeport, Conn., who is considered one of the ten best ornithological painters in North America.

Polseno's first book, "Secrets Of Redding Glen," was selected for the 1974 Children's Book Showcase as one of the outstanding science books of 1973.

The sensitive prose helps capture the mood of Okefenokee, but the paintings are the real joy of this book. Polseno is a master and everyone, young and old, will be fascinated by his exceptional illustration.

Susan enjoyed this lyrical evocation of the Okefenokee, and the book is advertised only for the age group 10 and up. That's a very fair guide, and you should be careful if you are considering this as a gift book.

Polseno has succeeded admirably to capture a mood in pictures and text with his latest ecological work of 64 superbly illustrated pages.

"In southern Georgia, south of Waycross and north of Fargo, there is a swamp that stands forever in the glow of an eternal twilight beneath a canopy of bearded cypress giants.

"As silently as a falling leaf, a young doe and her fawn appear at the water's edge. The morning hush is broken by the call of a cardinal as a mocking bird sings from a loblolly bay — the first sounds to drift through the mist of the dark and mysterious Okefenokee Swamp."

If you find those paragraphs appealing, you'll thoroughly enjoy this trip through an extraordinary swamp.

Polseno examines a day at this mysterious swamp, uncovering the secreats of an area sheltered beneath hundreds of giant cypress trees, continously veiled in twilight. It is a sometimes eerie picture but always vibrant.

Exploitation, fire, deluge and drought have all failed to lay waste the Okefenokee Swamp. Polseno uncovers this rich and curious area with all its delicate egrets and ibises, its predatory alligators and bobcats, its perpetual dark mist.

Polseno describes the special interactions among wildlife, weather and geography, and it is a second success for this native of Bridgeport, Conn., who is considered one of the ten best ornithological painters in North America.

Polseno's first book, "Secrets Of Redding Glen," was selected for the 1974 Children's Book Showcase as one of the outstanding science books of 1973.

The sensitive prose helps capture the mood of Okefenokee, but the paintings are the real joy of this book. Polseno is a master and everyone, young and old, will be fascinated by his exceptional illustration.

Susan enjoyed this lyrical evocation of the Okefenokee, and the book is advertised only for the age group 10 and up. That's a very fair guide, and you should be careful if you are considering this as a gift book.

These witches will bewitch you not scare you

THE WITCH BOOK a collection of short stories (Rand McNally, $5.95)

Children know what witches are — wicked. They learn from fairy tales.

Since youngsters have this preconceived notion, how would you think they would react to discovering there are also wonderful witches?

Eight authors have come up with bedtime-story-length tales in a recently published children's book called simply "The Witch Book."

This brightly colored collection of short stories offers suspense, excitement and humor. But best of all, instead of leaving a child afraid, each tale imparts a positive thought.

In the opening story "Beware of the Witch of the Vasty Deep," a sea witch discovered lying, hating and stealing were wrong. She learned how to get along with human beings and comes away from that experience saying, "People are somewhat likeable."

Children will find out the same thing about witches.

My nine-year-old daughter Lisa thought witches were always evil women . . . until she read "The Witch Book."

Her favorite story "The Witch named Noab" featured a little old witch who righted a wrong with her magical powers. Noab had a crooked nose and chin and spooky eyes — all the ingredients of a seemingly evil person. But after reading the story, she told me, "Some (witches) are mean and some are nice. You can't tell from their faces."

Such little lessons can last a lifetime. Throughout the book these positive thoughts appear, but it is up to the parent to carry through on the moral of each story.

Youngsters 10 and older won't have much trouble reading these stories, but a dictionary might be needed for such words as stalactite, wolfsbane and chugarumped.

If thinking of witches has always made your child a little uneasy, "The Witch Book" will make a bewitching difference.

A preposterous, colorful tale by Mercer Mayer

PROFESSOR WORMBOG IN SEARCH FOR THE ZIPPERUMP-A-ZOO by Mercer Mayer (Golden Press, $3.95)

Reviewed by Scott and Dorothy Oliver

Read "Professor Wormbog" and you will enter the preposterous, hilarious world of an adventurous little man and his beasties.

The newest book by award-winning Mercer Mayer, "Professor Wormbog" captures the interest of young children with its comical illustrations (also by Mayer) and simple prose.

The book is written for the five-to ten-year-old age group and judging from the reaction of one nine-year-old who completed the book in an hour and immediately began it again, it is on target.

The story is of a little professor who wears a safari helmet, Sherlock Holmes mustache and hiking boots, and his search for an animal whose name begins with "Z" so he can complete his collection of beasts that starts with an Ashinforit and Blowfat-glowfish and ends with a Yalapappus.

Along with his sidekicks Ickky, Kerploppus and Little Laff, the Professor searches out the Zipperump-a-zoo under the ground, on the sea and in the air.

Scott particularly enjoyed the detail in Mayer's colorful illustrations which included a message to "brush your teeth" and another to "wash your hands and feet . . . use soap." Every page is a conglomeration of color, action and comedy as the harried professor meets up with a smoke-breathing monster, a lovesick bird and card-playing fish.

To Scott they were "weird but funny" and his second time through the book was spent looking for the things he may have missed the first time around.

"Professor Wormbog" may remind you of the fantasy made famous by Dr. Seuss, although Mayer's style is more outrageous than the good doctor's. Mayer has twice won the Brooklyn Art Books for Children Citation, as well as several International Books for Children awards and the Society of Illustrators Citation of Merit.

It's a book worth reading, according to Scott, particularly pages 27, 30, 31, 33, 42 and 43.

THE WHOLE KIDS CATALOG, created by Peter Cardozo (Bantam $5.95)

Reviewed by Dorothy Oliver

When your darling daughter asks where she can find a collection of paper dolls which includes such role models as Florence Nightingale, Sarah Bernhardt, Madame Curie and Aquitaine Murasaki, just what are you going to say?

Or when your toddler is ready for a medieval alphabet coloring book, where are you going to find it?

Or when your son shows an interest in forecasting the future, how will you be able to come up with a soothsayers handbood?

It's all in knowing where to look. And if you have a copy of "The Whole Kids Catalog" (modeled after the "Whole Earth Catalog") you'll be able to find everything and anything that would appeal to a child.

Billed as "The great new catalog of super things to find, to do and make . . ." the soft-cover volume has 215 pages of listings of where to send for information and is written in a language that children understand.

If your child's tastes don't run along the lines of soothsayers, medieval numbers or Aquitaine Murasaki, there are also listings for the simpler things in life such as how to make puppets, costumes, Indian handicrafts or toys, how to cook, how to sew, and where to get information on collecting stamps, rocks, coins, or butterflies.

Most of the where-to-send listings will cost the sender money but a full section of the catalog is devoted to places where information is free or "almost free," meaning $1 or less.

In addition to "how to find it" the catalog has listings of places children can go. For example, the section on children's museums lists museums around the country where young people can visit and explore.

"It's hard to believe there are people who don't know there is such a thing as a children's museum, when in fact there are 70 of them in the U.S. today," the catalog reads. "How do you describe a children's museum? It's a place designed to stimulate kids' powers of imagination; where playing and learning are paired and happen at the same time; where exhibits are experiences in which kids participate . . ."

Like this excerpt, much of the catalog is written to awaken the curiosity of children, to open up new areas of interest for them and make them more aware of the world we live in.

"The Whole Kids Catalog" has something for every age group, and even adults will find it fascinating. Although it's a little large for a Christmas stocking it would be a good addition under any tree.

"I don't like to draw people very well. I can draw animals better.

"Every year I get ideas for a couple of books that call for a different kind of illustration, maybe more realistic."

Geisel claims everything in his life has happened by accident. A non-commercial cartoon he drew and captioned during the Depression led to a 15-year advertising contract with an oil company to illustrate a single line, "Quick, Henry, the Flit," on behalf of the firm's bug-killer. He began writing and illustrating children's books because that was one of the few artistic activities not excluded by his oil company contract. "I knew nothing about children's books," he said.

He has no children of his own, only two stepdaughters from his second marriage. When he began studying children's literature, "I wasn't really horrified, I was sort of bored."

His first two books were traditional literary fairy tales. Then he branched out into animals, real and fanciful.

Geisel claims even his plots and characters are accidental. "Horton Hears a Who," was born when a sheet of transparent paper on which he had drawn an elephant blew on top of a tree drawing in his studio in LaJolla, Calf.

"Sometimes I begin by making sounds and illustrating them," he said.

Now there's a statement any child would appreciate.

And for your artist there is "Altair Designs 3" (Pantheon Books, $2.50), the newest of the creative design books developed by Ensor Holiday.

Each page is a pattern of geometric lines that can be colored any way your child desires. Examples in the beginning of the book show the many designs and pattern that can be created and the geometrics are repeated several times so the child can experiment.

This is the third in the Altair series and an interesting concept in art books.

it. When he trees it he finds the broach.

The thing that keeps you interested in the book is that Simon can make an adventure out of anything he can find. For instance, Grandmother buys him a coil of rope. With this newly bought rope, Simon plays jungle, becomes Sherlock Holmes capturing fiendish criminals, and has many other adventures.

The funny thing is that Grandmother is just like him. She is the pogo stick champion of her block and takes part in many of Simon's adventures.

At one point in the book Grandmother and Simon move to her brother's house and encounter their greatest adventures of all. James, Grandmother's brother, is a big man who owns a big house and a big attic where Simon finds many adventurous things. In the yard, he finds a totem pole and even makes an adventure out of that.

One thing I learned from this book is some English slang. The author lives in England and uses words like bonnet (a car hood), common (a public park), face flannel (washcloth) and hold-all (shopping bag) in her story. If not for the slang dictionary in the back of the book I would have been lost.

"Jumping Jackdaws!" is a good book but I think it should be recommended for the kids in the 10 and 11 year old age bracket.

The Franklin D. Roosevelt Philatelic Society (FDRPS) will commemorate the 35th anniversary of the bombing of Pearl Harbor with the release of a cacheted cover cancelled on Dec. 7.

The black and brown cachet shows some of the destruction which occurred during the 1941 Japanese raid on the U.S. Naval Base and precipitated America's entry into World War II.

The covers will be franked with 6-cent FDR coil stamps (Scott No. 1305) and are available for $1 each from the "FDRPS, Box 150-M, Clinton Corners, N. Y. 12514." Please enclose a self-addressed, stamped, No. 10 (long) envelope for return of your covers.

The FDR Philatelic Society also has a limited number of cacheted covers issued on Dec. 7, 1971 — the 30th anniversary of Pearl Harbor — which are franked with two adhesives from the Roosevelt Memorial issue of 1945, the 3-cent Roosevelt and White House (No. 932) and the 5-cent Roosevelt and Map of the Western Hemisphere (No. 933). The covers were postmarked at Honolulu, Hawaii and

Park opens in McHenry

The Moraine Hills State Park in McHenry County, the first new state park since 1971, is now open to the public.

The 1,668-acre park contains 11 miles of bicycle trails and hiking paths which will be open for cross-country skiing during the winter.

The park also includes areas for picnicking and fishing, two nature preserves for wilderness observation and a playground facility.

The park is located three miles south of McHenry and includes the 47-acre Lake Defiance and three smaller lakes. The Fox River and McHenry Dam are located at the western edge of the park.

The Pike Marsh and Leatherleaf Bog at the park are both nature preserves protected by state law from future development. Fishing is allowed on Lake Defiance, Tomahawk, Warrior and Wilderness lakes and in the Fox River.

Power boating, private boating and bank and ice fishing are not permitted on Lake Defiance. Fishermen must use rowboats provided by the state on a reservation basis.

A playground and concession stand with bait, tackle and rental boats for fishing are located at the McHenry Dam area.

The U.S. has narrowly won the 1976 World Chess Olympics in Haifa, Israel. A half-point behind in 2nd place was the Netherlands.

Though the boycott by Arab and socialist countries cost the Olympics many of the world's strongest players, the American team gained respect with its last minute come-from-behind victory.

Unfortunately, the drastic split in the world chess community represented by the boycott was further exacerbated, when a congress of those nations present passed resolutions (many controversial) which were technically binding on the boycotting members.

A most divisive decision was made, for example, to reinstate South Africa as an Olympic participant.

Substantial goodwill and dimplomacy will be needed to heal the regretable breaches in world chess created by events in Haifa.

The Franklin D. Roosevelt Philatelic Society (FDRPS) will commemorate the 35th anniversary of the bombing of Pearl Harbor with the release of a cacheted cover cancelled on Dec. 7.

The black and brown cachet shows some of the destruction which occurred during the 1941 Japanese raid on the U.S. Naval Base and precipitated America's entry into World War II.

The covers will be franked with 6-cent FDR coil stamps (Scott No. 1305) and are available for $1 each from the "FDRPS, Box 150-M, Clinton Corners, N. Y. 12514." Please enclose a self-addressed, stamped, No. 10 (long) envelope for return of your covers.

The FDR Philatelic Society also has a limited number of cacheted covers issued on Dec. 7, 1971 — the 30th anniversary of Pearl Harbor — which are franked with two adhesives from the Roosevelt Memorial issue of 1945, the 3-cent Roosevelt and White House (No. 932) and the 5-cent Roosevelt and Map of the Western Hemisphere (No. 933). The covers were postmarked at Honolulu, Hawaii and backstamped Dec. 7, 1971 at the Pearl Harbor Navy Base post office. Only 240 covers were cancelled and each cover is numbered and contains a letter explaining the cancelling process. Each cover is $15 from the FDR Philatelic Society at the above address.

The Greek Post Office on Dec. 8 will release two Christmas stamps — a 4 drachmae depicting "The Three Magi speaking to the Jews" and a 7 drachmae featuring the "Adoration of Jesus (Nativity)." Both stamp designs were taken from a manuscript of the Esfigmenou Monastery of Mount Athos.

On the same day, the Greek Post Office will issue five denominations honoring amateur German archeologist Heinrich Schliemann who excavated the royal shaft-graves of the acropolis of Mycenae 100 years ago.

The 2 drachmae adhesive carries a portrait of Schliemann while the 4, 5, 7, and 11 drachmae denominations depict treasures from the tombs.

BEGINNER'S CORNER — Hint and explanation: Expose the king and checkmate!

The U.S. has narrowly won the 1976 World Chess Olympics in Haifa, Israel. A half-point behind in 2nd place was the Netherlands.

Though the boycott by Arab and socialist countries cost the Olympics many of the world's strongest players, the American team gained respect with its last minute come-from-behind victory.

Unfortunately, the drastic split in the world chess community represented by the boycott was further exacerbated, when a congress of those nations present passed resolutions (many controversial) which were technically binding on the boycotting members.

A most divisive decision was made, for example, to reinstate South Africa as an Olympic participant.

Substantial goodwill and dimplomacy will be needed to heal the regretable breaches in world chess created by events in Haifa.

Senior master Orest Popovych is a "match for anyone in the uncompromising aggression department" according to tournament director Bill Goichberg.

In the final position, Slack cannot defend against the double threat of 22. QxR and 22.QR-R1 followed by 23.RxPch.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

The late Walter F. Wyman of Boston was a regular contributor to the early Bridge World magazines. Not only was he a fine player and writer, but a delightful person and a great gentleman.

The bidding may be explained in part by the fact that North and South had a 40-point part score, so that two spades made game.

North really should have bid three spades over the last-ditch three clubs bid by Mr. Wyman who sat West, but this was 1930 and people were afraid of overcalls. Anyway, North did pass and South tried three diamonds which became the final contract.

Against the normal lead of the nine of hearts (no one had tried the lead of third best from three back then) East would try to cash three heart tricks. South would ruff, draw trumps and wind up with game and rubber.

The normal lead was not made. Walter led his ace of spades first. Then he shifted to a heart. East won and led back a spade. It was obvious to East that Walter had led a singleton ace. It was equally obvious to South who played low. Walter took his queen, put his partner back in with a second heart and set the contract by means of a spade ruff.

Ask the Jacobys

We contiue to get questions about how far the bidding should be carried when there is a part score and the opener makes a forcing two bid.

The answer to this question is that responder must bid once, but may pass opener's minimum rebid of his own suit.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of The Herald. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of "Jacoby Modern".)

How much togetherness can any two people stand?

By Dick Kleiner

"Love Will Keep Us Together," sang The Captain and Tennille. On the strength of that one hit record, they got themselves a TV show.

But the song did more than make them rich and famous. It could be considered their national anthem. Because they claim that love will, indeed, keep them together.

They share everything, at this loving moment in their lives. They share philosophy, fortune and fads. They share a way of life, they share work, they share play. In fact, they are somewhat old-fashioned in their outlook on sharing.

Toni Tennille is a beauty, and it's easy to imagine her as a leading lady in motion pictures. But she says no, she won't do it, at least not if the film would include a love scene with her leading man.

"I'd never act in a movie," Toni says, "if there was a love scene with somebody else. I just have a feeling that that wouldn't be right, because Daryl is the only man for me."

Unlike some couples, they don't seem to feel the urge for privacy. They say that they haven't been apart for more than 11 hours since they began living together, four years ago.

They even have the same attitude toward the question of children.

"We have no plans to have any children," says Daryl Dragon, then turning the floor over to Toni, as usual, for a more detailed explanation.

"We feel strongly," she says, "that the only reason to bring children into the world would be if you thought they might make a contribution to humanity. And you just can't be sure if your own children would make such a contribution."

So they are childless, but not children-less. Toni has three sisters and Daryl has two brothers and two sisters. Among their seven siblings, they have a flock of nieces and nephews.

"He's wonderful with kids," she says. "He's a very funny man and he does little pantomime routines for them. He used to do them for me and that's one reason I fell in love with him."

Toni and Daryl met in San Francisco. There is some similarity to the paths which brought them there.

Daryl Dragon is the son of Carmen Dragon, a famous conductor of symphonic music. He started Daryl out on the piano when he was three.

"That was too young," he says. "I had no interest in it then. But I came back to it later."

He worked with several groups, until he found his niche as the keyboard player with The Beach Boys.

Meanwhile, down in Montgomery, Ala., Toni Tennille was growing up. Her father, Frank Tennille, had been a singer — with Ben Pollock and Bob Crosby — until he left the music business to take over the family furniture business in Montgomery.

She studied classical piano and voice (later dancing, too) and she did some acting. Then she, too, joined a group. They were in San Francisco when they needed a new keyboard player.

Dragon, then at loose ends, went up to San Francisco and fit right in.

"I knew right away that he was going to mean something to me. I get strong feelings about people and they're usually accurate."

They began living together in 1972, and the union was legalized in 1974. By that time, they had decided to form their own group, The Captain and Tennille.

His nickname — The Captain — was given to him by one of The Beach Boys. It was a natural nickname, because he had long worn yachting caps.

Now he has 17 caps, including a tweed one he wears on special occasions.

The hats and the nickname really have nothing to do with the sea. Daryl says he's always liked boats but has never had one. Now, when he could easily afford one, he doesn't have the time to indulge a hobby.

In fact, in common with most of those who find fame virtually overnight, they haven't the time for any luxuries. Daryl did buy a 4-wheel drive Toyota "because I've always wanted one."

Daryl Dragon and Toni Tennille say they haven't been apart for more than 11 hours since they began living together four years ago.

Her indulgence was a house. They bought one with a lot of land around it.

Toni was always tall as a child and now is a statuesque 5 feet 11 inches. She says that, as an adolescent, her height bothered her. She used to stoop a little, to try and minimize her stature.

she says. "When I was 13, I was confirmed and the bishop was present. He commented on my being very tall and then he said, 'Someday, you'll love being tall. You should stand up straight and be proud of your height.' Since then, I have."

Daryl is an inch taller than his wife. They even have tallness in common.

McCloskey and Plumb

Q. I was wondering if you could send me some information on the movie, "Dawn a Portrait of a Teenage Runaway?" I am enclosing a self-addressed envelope. S.L.

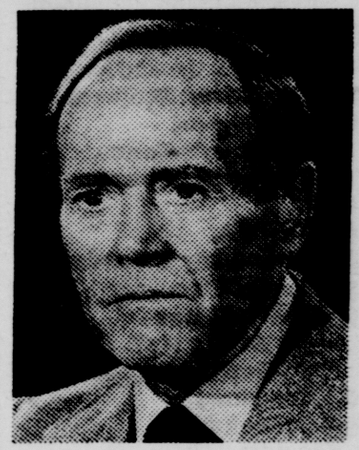
A. I'm sorry, but we only answer letters in print. Because of the volume of mail we just don't have the time to answer letters individually, even if you send an envelope. About "Dawn," Eve Plumb and Leigh J, McCloskey starred. The movie was about a 15-year-old runaway who went to Hollywood and failing to find work, turned to prostitution. It was only fair.

Inger Stevens

Q. I know that "The Waltons" was based on the movie "Spencers Mountain," but I forget who starred in the movie, was it Henry Fonda or James Stewart.

Q. In your crossword puzzle, you referred to Inger Stevens as "the late Miss Stevens." She has always been one of my favorites and I wasn't aware of her demise. When did this happen? And how?

A. Miss Stevens died tragically on April 30, 1970 from acute barbituate intoxication. In other words an overdose of drugs. She was only 35.



Henry Fonda

A. It was Henry Fonda. The James Stewart movie that probably confused you was "Shenandoah," in which he played the head of a family torn apart by the Civil War.

Q. I saw Deacon Jones on an episode of The Odd Couple and they said he was on the Rams. Didn't he also play for the Minnesota Vikings? L.E.

A. The Deacon never played for the Vikings. He did spend some time with the San Diego Chargers near the end of his career. But the glory years were with the Rams.

Right now millions of Americans are being forced to sit back and rock their lives away. Simply because they're older. Stop and think about it!

It's going to happen to you. You're going to be "older" someday. Maybe sooner than you think.

And you're going to have to face the same problems that exist today. Unless you start changing your attitudes about aging now. Get rid of your stereotypes.

Try and imagine what you'll be like. What you'll want to do. What you'll want to contribute. That's all we ask.

But you'd better hurry.

If you don't want to take your old age sitting down, get off your rocker and separate the facts from the myths.

Now.
